P.R.R. Flyer Wrecked In Ohio, 18 Reported Killed and 40 Injured

New York-Bound Train Rams Signal Tower; Death Toll May Reach 23

By the Associated Press

Kenton, Ohio, Nov. 9.—Eighteen to 23 persons were reported killed tonight as a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train hurtled from the tracks and crashed into a signal tower at Dunkirk, 9 miles north of here. Forty persons were reported injured.

First reports to railroad officials indicated that a cylinder head blown off a freight train passing on an adjacent track may have derailed the speeding passenger train, "The Pennsylvanian" en route from Chicago to New York.

Coroner J. A. Mooney, of Hardin County, said nine bodies had been accounted for and that railroad men told him that at least nine more probably were dead in the wreckage of a coach. It was ripped apart.

Toll May Be 23

Guy Davis, of Chicago, a passenger, said he was told by a highway patrolman making a list of dead that at least 23 were killed.

J. L. Gephart, of Fort Wayne, Ind., fireman on the passenger train, was the first of the dead identified.

C. S. Willeke, a Dunkirk barber, said he counted five bodies in the wreckage of the dining car, which was ripped wide open. Seven other bodies were strewn in other wreckage, he reported, adding "at least 12 or 13 more are dead."

Railroad officials in Chicago said the train was an eight-car combination—passenger-baggage, coach, diner, lounge and four pullmans in that order.

Seventy-seven persons were aboard—28 on the coaches, 49 in pullmans.

Seven Cars Derailed

The front three cars ploughed into the signal tower. All cars except the last pullman left the track.

Roy Schwartzkopf, operator of the control tower, said he noticed the headlight of the speeding train "swerving from side to side and swaying back and forth" as the locomotive approached within 400 to 500 feet of the tower.

The locomotive crashed into the control tower, smashing it and setting it afire, as Schwartzkopf and his assistant, Bucky Davis, clambered to safety uninjured.

The railroad's Fort Wayne division sent four wreck trains to the scene.

The injured were taken to Kenton and Findlay hospitals in ambulances summoned by Schwartzkopf.

Davis, the Chicago passenger, said he was playing bridge in the club

Capital's Cold Spell to Continue Through Tonight

Mostly cloudy and rather cold weather is predicted for today, with the highest temperature expected to be 48. And the weather man says it will be colder tonight.

Yesterday local weather was cold and constant, the Weather Bureau said, ranging between a 6:40 a. m. minimum of 40 and a 2 p. m. maximum of 50. Pulaski, Va., was treated to a wet and rapidly disappearing snowfall, the first of the year.

A "disturbance" spinning wildly away to the north was reported to have sneaked winter prematurely into the South yesterday. Weathermen described the "disturbance" as a spinning mass of air which was gathering in cold weather from the northwest as it traveled north.

Quantico to Get Them

186 Too Many Houses Built For Powder Plant Workers

MOVING DAY—The United States will move 186 defense dwellings similar to this one from Indian Head, Md.

Having erected 186 more defense housing dwellings than were needed at the Navy's powder plant at Indianhead, Md., the Government now is to call the bids on "knocking down" the extra dwellings, transporting the parts 60 miles and re-erecting the homes at the Quantico, Va., marine base.

The houses are of prefabricated construction. Cost of demounting and reassembling such structures was placed by the Federal Works Agency, after experiments, at from $395 to $750 per house, according to the type and design of the dwelling. The material loss was said to be "less than $100 per dwelling unit." Transportation charges must be added.

The over-building at Indianhead was laid by the Works Agency to

House Margin For Freeing Ships Declines

50 to 70 Democrats Reported Dissenting; Backers Confident

By James B. Reston
Copyright by the New York Times

Between 50 and 70 Democratic members of the House were reported last night to be planning to vote against permitting American merchant vessels to pass through combat zones to belligerent ports, but despite this division in their ranks Administration leaders predicted that the lower chamber would concur in the Senate's approval by between 25 and 40 votes Thursday.

When the House voted, 259-138, on October 17 to eliminate Section 6 of the Neutrality Act, which forbade the arming of American merchant vessels, only 21 Democrats voted against it, but since then the Senate has voted not only to eliminate Section 6 of the act but also to kill Sections 2 and 3, which forbid United States merchantmen from traveling into belligerent ports and through combat zones. Both sides admit that the Democratic defection on Sections 2 and 3 will be considerably larger than on Section 6 and the Republican leaders believe it will be large enough to defeat the measure.

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican) of New York, said, "If we get 65 Democratic votes this war measure will be defeated, and I

2 Agencies Get Tomorrow Off Despite Rush

War and Navy Depts. To Close; Defense Officials Are Amazed

Employes of the War and Navy Departments whose desks are loaded with a heavy backlog of important defense work will get their traditional Armistice Day legal holiday tomorrow in spite of the national emergency, it was learned last night.

This action, which conforms with precedents of many years standing, has not been concurred in, however, by the Office of Production Management and other defense agencies. William Knudsen, director general of OPM, issued an appeal to his employes which recognized their legal right to take a day off, but requested all who could, to report to work. Most nondefense agencies have decided to remain closed tomorrow.

A spokesman for the British Supply Council said last night that all employes, American and British, will work as usual tomorrow. A similar policy was expected at all other British agencies here.

It is understood that defense agency officials are puzzled by the failure of the War and Navy Departments to follow suit and appeal to the patriotism of their employes to get their work done.

Minor employes in many Government departments have expressed surprise that they are getting the day off in view of President Roose-

'Braves' Beat Hasty Retreat

Young 'Indians' Return Home After Cold Night Roughing It

Two "Indian braves" returned to their homes in Temple Hills, Md., last night—footsore, cold and glad for the comforts of civilization.

They were Caryl Harris and Robert Smith, both 13, who took to the road early Saturday to find adventure in the Indian country of the North, but decided to turn back after spending a cold Saturday night in a woods 15 miles from their homes.

HARRIS

When, to the joy of their frantic parents, the two boys straggled home, they were a chastened pair of "braves."

"I'm going to bed," said Caryl.

The boys walked both ways, a distance of 30 miles, and first one and then the other, got tired, Caryl said. They were carrying an Indian tepee, a knapsack loaded with foodstuffs, and several blankets.

"We didn't get hungry," said Caryl, "but we got awful cold. The blankets didn't seem to keep us very warm." They spread an oilcloth on the ground before bundling up in the blankets, Caryl explained.

The youngsters took with them a hunk of cake and a loaf of bread. Then they stopped at a store and bought some peanut butter and some chocolates. This was not exactly Indian fare, Caryl admitted, but it was good.

The boys said they were going back to the Oxon Hill school today and take a science test. Both are seventh grade pupils.

As to the note which he left under a stone on the back porch of his home, in true Indian fashion, Caryl

Navy Defied In San Diego Pay Dispute

General Strike On Base Project Set Today in Reply To U. S. Ultimatum

The Government today faced strike showdowns in two lines of activity and there were indications that the week would bring important developments in the tightening efforts to reduce defense stoppages due to labor disputes.

Fresh defiance of a Navy ultimatum that A. F. L. building tradesmen resume work today on defense projects in the San Diego, Calif., area, under pain of Navy occupation of the plants, came last night. The A. F. L. workers, having replied on Saturday night with a counter-ultimatum that they would call a general strike today on a dozen projects unless their pay demands there were met, last night saw the general strike call approved by the building trades council.

Teamsters Stand Pat

In addition, Daniel J. Tobin, president of the A. F. of L. teamsters union, made no move yesterday, despite two requests from President Roosevelt, to order striking truck drivers at Detroit to return to work at the Railway Express Agency and submit their dispute to an emergency three-men board named by the President. Tobin originally said he would submit Mr. Roosevelt's request to the union's executive board today. Dissatisfied, the Chief Executive called on the teamsters' leader to order work resumed at once. Tobin again declined and in what he said was his "last word" repeated that the matter would be placed before the executive board today.

The increasingly grave labor situation last night brought from Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM, a declaration that just as employers must "stop thinking in terms of 'business as usual'," labor must "stop thinking in terms of 'strikes as usual'." But there appeared no weakening of the determined stand taken by labor leaders in the outstanding tie-ups facing the country.

Mine Dispute Hangs Fire

On top of the San Diego and Detroit strikes, with their potentially far reaching aspects, the issue of a union shop in the steel-owned "captive" coal mines still was before the National Defense Mediation Board. There was general expectation that the week would bring recommendations for a settlement, though Chairman William H. Davis has warned that the board would not be "pressured" by John L. Lewis, miners' president, setting a November 15 deadline for a settlement. Lewis halted a strike in the "captive" mines upon accepting a proposal that the board reconsider the dispute and issue recommendations, but a few hours later announced

Souvenirs Taken At False Alarm Ruin Plane Plans

A false report that a plane had crashed in a field back of his home yesterday cost Winfield A. Treadwell, sportsman pilot, of Hillendale, Md., $1000, he reported to police.

Silver Spring police received a call from an excited woman that a plane had crashed in the field. Police and rescue squads from Takoma Park and Silver Spring raced to the scene only to find the dismantled parts of three planes, which Treadwell was going to assemble into an airworthy craft.

The call was chalked up as a "false alarm," but passersby, attracted to the scene by the excitement, believed they had found the wreckage of a crashed plane and promptly began to gather souvenirs.

When Treadwell, who was away at the time, returned home he estimated his loss at $1000. Many of the parts carried off by the souvenir hunters will be almost impossible to replace, he said.

British Sink 11 Italian Ships, Stronger Escort Flotilla Flees; Drive on Leningrad Renewed

Germans Believed Trying to Cut Off City Before Finns Cease Fighting

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 9.—The Germans have launched a new drive on Leningrad and are massing a host of fresh troops before Moscow for a final blow at the Russian capital, war reports said tonight.

Thousands of German troops are striking at Leningrad from the north in a drive to score a major success from Finnish positions before Finland answers the United States demand that she quit the war, Russian quarters said.

The Moscow radio disclosed that the Germans also were bringing up new reserves to the Moscow front, and said:

"It is obvious that a new and furious offensive will be launched within the next few days at the approaches to the capital." It added that "our troops are ready."

Leningrad Raid Starts Fires

[A Berlin dispatch said German airmen reported big fires were started in Leningrad yesterday during Nazi attacks in which 53 Red planes were declared destroyed, 15 of them in aerial flights.

[The Berlin radio reported tonight Nazi forces had destroyed 80 bunkers and made a breakthrough on the central front before Moscow. Without specifying the location, the radio said the Russians suffered heavily in men and materials.]

Both German and Russian broadcasts told of violent new fighting on the Karelian front after weeks of quiet.

Russian sources said the Germans were aiming their main drive between Lakes Ladoga and Onega, 100 to 150 miles northeast of Leningrad, but also were attempting to press forward on a more direct line of attack down the Karelian Isthmus due north of the city.

The Russian radio said the Germans had been thrown back, leaving

Finns Won't Quit, Helsinki Radio Says

London, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The Helsinki radio said today that Finland soon would issue a negative reply to United States peace representations.

"The United States exerted pressure on the Finnish government asking them to cease the war with the Soviet Union," the announcer said. "The Finnish government's answer to the American demand will be issued shortly. The answer will be negative."

The eighty-first traffic fatality of 1941 was chalked up against Washington yesterday when a 42-year-old man died in Emergency Hospital of injuries suffered Saturday night.

The victim, Ernest Peterbark, Negro, walked against the side of a Capital Transit bus near Riverside Stadium, police said. He died at 6:25 a. m. of a fractured skull.

Earl Elliott, 35, of Spring Lake Park, Md., was injured critically last night when struck by an automobile while walking on the Rockville Pike in front of Offutt's store near Garrett Park, Md.

Ralph J. Moore, 3638 Windom Place Northwest, driver of the car, told police Elliott walked in front of his car. County police placed a technical charge of reckless driving against Moore

2 Congressmen Ill After Eating Ham

District health authorities are testing samples of ham eaten by two Congressmen and three Capitol employes at a restaurant near the Capitol Saturday shortly before they were stricken with food poisoning.

Representatives Stephen A. Day (Republican), of Illinois, and James F. O'Connor (Democrat), of Montana, are recovering from mild cases of ptomaine at their homes, as is Mrs. Shirley Weiwerz, Day's secretary.

Day and his secretary were treated at Providence Hospital. Still in the hospital last night were Mrs. Robert Messerley, Representative O'Connor's secretary, and Capitol Policeman Felix Martini, but they were expected to be released shortly. O'Connor did not go to a hospital.

Dr. Reid Ashworth, director of food inspection of the District Health Department, said ham was the only food all five had eaten. He directed bacteriological tests to be made on samples of the meat.

Stalin Promises to Arrange Meeting With Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

Kuibyshev, Nov. 9.—Joseph Stalin has promised to try to arrange a personal meeting with President Roosevelt, it was disclosed here today with publication of the Soviet premier's message accepting the United States loan of one billion dollars to Russia.

Such a meeting obviously could not be arranged for any date in the near future because of Stalin's preoccupation with the conflict against Germany.

(A paraphrase of Stalin's message, released in Washington last Thursday when the loan was announced, made no reference to a possible meeting between the American and Soviet leaders.)

The press published today messages received on last Friday's anniversary of the Red revolution from American notables, including Secretary of the Navy Knox, Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Harry L. Hopkins, lend-lease administrator who attended the three-power Moscow aid conference.

In his message Hopkins said:

"We are unanimous in our firm intention to afford you all the resources we have. We are unanimous in the realization of the fact that we are forever indebted to the Russian people for their almost superhuman steadfastness in the fight."

The radio carried an article by N. Sergeyeva, American affairs expert for Pravda, organ of the Communist Party, who said:

"Americans have taken their fighting post . . . American production will throw the balance decisively in favor of the anti-Hitler nations."

Her military arrangements coincided with arrival of Kenkichi Yoshizawa, one of Japan's South Seas experts, who has been named Ambassador to Indo-China.

Heading a staff of officials, which ultimately will total about 350, his arrival was believed by many Far Eastern observers to presage major military developments in the southern Pacific.

Yoshizawa himself is invested with extraordinary powers, and a large staff of political, economic and cultural experts gives Japan a greater representation here than in any other country in the world.

Indications that Japan is paying closest attention to Thailand and Malaya, the elongated peninsula leading to Singapore, were seen in the personal inspection by an Associated Press correspondent of the northern border areas.

R. A. F. Again Lashes at Italy And Germany

Southeast Town Suffers Damage as Nazis Strike Back

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 9.—Ignoring heavy plane losses averaging 4½ to 1, the R. A. F. bombarded both Italy and Germany heavily again last night in a stepped-up air offensive regarded in some quarters as Britain's answer to persistent demands for a second front.

Essen, home of the great Krupp munitions works, and other industrial centers of Germany's strategically important arms producing Ruhr Valley felt the main weight of a strong British bomber force, while an Italian high command announcement disclosed that British planes pounded Italy for the second successive night, hitting the big port of Naples and other points in southern Italy and Sicily.

In addition, the R. A. F. intensified a day and night offensive against Axis strongholds in North Africa, a region frequently mentioned in connection with possibilities of the opening of a second front.

German planes struck back at England tonight, twice attacking a southeast coast town where houses were damaged and some residents trapped in the wreckage.

[The R. A. F. bombed northwestern Germany tonight, causing dead and wounded civilians, "without war or war industry damage," the official news agency, D. N. B., reported.]

The British acknowledged loss of eight bombers over Germany last night, making a total of 91 planes listed by the air ministry as lost in all theaters of war during the week. Eighty-one were lost over Europe and 10 in the Middle East.

Suggestion Raises Storm

Not 'Forcing' Defense Sermon On Clergy, LaGuardia Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, replying to criticism of a sermon outline mailed to leading clergymen in his capacity as civilian defense director, said today the OCD was "not ashamed of praying for the safety of the country or of asking the people of this country to give thanks to God Almighty for our freedom."

In his reply to the criticism, the mayor also said: "The enclosure was nothing new in presenting a thematic outline. I invite everyone to read it." Earlier he said through a spokesman that "nobody's forcing the ministers to use it."

The mayor's letters pointed out that the President had designated November 11-16 as Civilian Defense Week and next Sunday as Freedom Day. The suggested sermon stressed the role of religion in America's development and its relation to democracy.

One churchman labeled the step as an "attempt to goose-step the priests, ministers and rabbis of this country" and another termed it "an unspeakable insult to the clergy of the United States."

Meanwhile, the editor of the Protestant Digest branded the criticism as "a mere camouflage for obstructionist tactics."

Dr. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, chairman of the Citizens Peace Petition Committee and chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union, made the goose-step reference in a letter to the mayor and added:

"When I have to go to Washington for my sermons, I will resign my pulpit, and thus at least preserve my self-respect.

"In Russia, the government suppresses churches. In Germany, the government regiments them. In this country, the government is evidently

Destroyer, Entire Convoy Sent Down In Engagement South of Taranto

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 9.—Under the guns of a heavier Italian naval force, a British warship patrol struck a crippling blow at the supply of Axis armies in North Africa early today when it "annihilated" two convoys, sinking ten transport vessels and one destroyer and seriously damaging at least one other, according to an admiralty announcement.

Despite the presence of two 10,000-ton Italian cruisers with their superior fire power and Italian destroyers at least double the number of the British, the British force of two small cruisers and a pair of destroyers came off without a scratch, the admiralty said.

British Ships Unscathed

The battle was fought south of Taranto, off the instep of the Italian boot.

The British likewise escaped unscathed from a subsequent attack by torpedo planes.

Capt. W. G. Agnew, known as one of the British navy's outstanding gunnery experts, commanded the British flotilla which appeared on the scene as the two convoys—one of eight supply ships and the other of two—were making a rendezvous, presumably en route to Libya.

By British count, the destroyer sunk was the thirteenth lost by Italy in this war. Italy had 61 destroyers at the outbreak of the war.

[At least 30 and probably 100 Axis supply and naval vessels have been destroyed in the Mediterranean since August 1 by British submarines, planes and warships, an Internation News Service dispatch said.]

The fact that the 10 Axis ships were given such a strong escort was said by informed sources to show the Germans and Italians were taking desperate measures to maintain the Libyan armies.

Churchill Sends Congratulations

The admiralty called it a "brilliant and determined action," and Prime Minister Churchill sent his congratulations "upon this most important and timely action which gravely interrupts the enemy's supply lines to Africa and impedes his long-boasted offensive against the Nile Valley."

The Prime Minister asked the admiralty to "convey my congratulations to all concerned."

The British warships were guided to the scene of action, by the reconnaissance of American-built planes which sighted one convoy of eight

Fish Undecided Whether to Heed Jury's Subpena

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, said last night he had not decided whether he would heed a subpena to appear next Wednesday before the special grand jury investigating German propaganda agents.

"I'll have to take it up with my lawyer," declared the isolationist leader, who was summoned by the grand jury following his failure to respond to an "invitation" of Federal attorneys to appear before the investigating body last Wednesday.

Questioned concerning reports that he will make a statement on the floor of the House today regarding the grand jury's summons, Fish gave the same reply: "I haven't decided. I'll have to take it up with my lawyer."

Shelling, Stukas Prove Ineffective Against Chetniks

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Nov. 9.—German parachute troops are dropping over mountainous central and western Serbia in the latest stages of the German campaign to stamp out the resistance of Chetnik armies, according to reliable information from foreign military sources here.

Shelling and dive-bombing proved almost completely ineffective, according to these reports, during the Germans' October campaign against the Chetniks in western Serbia and Bosnia, although German howitzers and Stukas reduced nearly 20 Serbian cities and villages to ashes and rubble.

Chetnik strongholds are in the hills about the cities and villages and are almost invulnerable to aerial attack and out of the reach of most artillery, which must be transported on precipitous mountain roads where Chetniks have blown bridges and mined the passes against the invaders.

German casualties in the October campaign are reported to have been heavy, both in men and material, but Chetnik armies are now said to hold more territory, including villages and entire provices in Serbia, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Montenegro, than in late September.

Heitz Slaying Arrest Reported

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The British radio broadcast a Vichy news agency report tonight that a man described as a Polish Jew had been arrested for the assassination of Lieut. Col. Paul Friedrich Holtz, German commander at Nantes, on October 20. The broadcast was heard here by C. B. S.

A Vichy announcement last Friday said police had arrested a group accused of plotting the assassination but made no mention of the actual assassin.

FANNING OUT—Besides direct onslaughts on Sevastopol and Kerch, which Berlin said had reached within artillery range of both cities, German sources yesterday claimed their forces had reached the southeast coast and fanned out to capture Yalta

New Drive Opens On Leningrad

2500 dead on the field, at Kestenga, a small village not shown on maps, but which apparently is in the 75-mile-wide territory between the two lakes.

The Finns drove between the two lakes several weeks ago and claimed to have reached the Svir River and captured Petrozavodsk on the western shore of Onega.

The Leningrad-Murmansk railway runs behind Kashkina, which the Russians claim to hold, and below the Svir River. Informed sources declared the Russians still control the lower sections of that vital transportation facility.

The German drive apparently was launched with the hope of completing encirclement of Leningrad by cutting the remaining eastern railway outlets and gaining full possession of Lake Ladoga's shores. A direct attack on the city over the ice might then prove feasible during the winter.

Military observers expressed confidence that Leningrad's defenders, who have repulsed far weightier assaults from the south, southeast and west would be able to stave off this new threat.

Despite Adolf Hitler's Munich Putsch anniversary speech last night declaring that the city is completely cut off, informed sources said secondary railway lines running northeastward from the city and connecting with other lines to Moscow never had been in German control although their air force and mechanized patrols had been able to cripple Russian transport part of the time.

Now unfavorable conditions have forced the air force to withdraw many of its planes, and Russian counterattacks eastward from Leningrad and in the Volokolamsk sector 65 miles northwest of Moscow, have forced advanced German tank bases back far enough that they no longer are a menace to these secondary lines, said informed quarters.

Russian sources said the troops now attacking Leningrad had been hurriedly assembled in Finland from Norway and other occupied territory after the disclosure November 3 by Secretary of State Hull that the United States had passed on Russian feelers for peace with Finland and had urged Finland to leave Germany's side in the war.

They said it was curious the attack was launched just after Hitler had declared his forces were now on the defensive before the city because there is no one who can force him to lift the siege, and that he is determined not to sacrifice German lives unnecessarily.

The attack may be designed to bolster Hitler's Finnish support, sources said.

Pravda, Communist Party organ in Moscow, was quoted in dispatches as saying several villages in one sector of the Moscow Front had changed hands several times.

Pravda's correspondent on the Southern Front said the Russians, after holding the Germans in check for several days, made sudden vigorous counterattacks and smashed the thirteenth regiment of the Fourth German Alpine Division.

A German general named Renn was crushed to death under the treads of charging Russian tanks and 35 of his tanks were smashed in the violent two-day battle, said the newspaper.

Russians Report Foe Stalled in Donets By Counterattacks

By the Associated Press

Kuibyshev (Monday), Nov. 10.—Bitter but still indecisive fighting was reported raging in the Crimea and on "all other fronts" early today, according to the midnight Soviet communique.

Meanwhile, Moscow's defenders intensified their counterattacks in preparation for a new onslaught on the capital expected to be launched within a few days by heavily reinforced German troops.

A special bulletin broadcast from Moscow announced the defeat last Thursday of gigantic efforts by 500 German bombers to blitz the capital into submission on the eve of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution while Premier Josef Stalin was delivering his "war of extermination" speech from the capital. Thirty-four of the Nazi bombers were shot down, the announcement said, and not one succeeded in reaching Moscow.

Russian cavalry squadrons meanwhile recaptured an "important" village in the neighborhood of Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, the Soviet radio said. Around Serpukov, south of the capital, Red army tank and infantry units, it was stated, "continue to press the enemy back." In that district the Russians said they killed or wounded 1100 Nazis and recaptured a point identified as "V" over the weekend.

A supplement to the latest communique related that Soviet planes over the western and southern fronts on Saturday alone knocked out 30 Nazi tanks, 30 field guns, 350 trucks carrying troops and arms, more than 80 motorcycles, 30 fuel tank cars and 50 wagons. They also "dispersed and annihilated" two battalions of German infantry.

A counter-attacking Russian tank unit on the southern front, said the communique, wiped out 60 Nazi tanks and more than two motorized infantry battalions last Thursday and Friday.

One Red air force unit over the central front, the bulletin continued, destroyed in the first week of November 232 German trucks, 9 armored cars, 25 fuel trucks, 25 railroad munition cars, 6 railroad tank cars, 7 antiaircraft batteries, 4 searchlights, 5 tanks and 80 motorcycles the riders of which were "annihilated."

The Moscow bulletin added that since the Luftwaffe began its efforts to batter Moscow 400 Nazi bombers have been downed by the capital's belt of anti-aircraft guns alone, not counting the scores felled in combat with Soviet fighter planes.

Since the Luftwaffe's "heavy reverse" of Thursday, it was stated, "only single German bombers accompanied by fighters have attempted to reach Moscow."

[The Associated Press said an official announcment declared six German planes were downed near Moscow Sunday.]

Hampered by floods, sleet and frigid winds and mercilessly harried by Red counterattacks, the Germans and their vassal forces were said by the newspaper Pravda to have made not a single substantial gain in nearly a week in their efforts to advance east of Kharkov and Stalino and to establish siege lines in front of Rostov-on-Don, a key to the oil-rich Caucasus.

In one Donets district Red army units, said Pravda, beat off an attack by two Italian infantry battalions and in another southern sector a "bitter tank encounter" was fought in which 45 enemy tanks and 100 lorries were smashed and the "enemy was unable to follow up his advance."

Germans Report Sinking by Planes Of Six British Ships

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—Germany's air force, operating on two sides of Europe, was credited today with smashing new successes against Russian and British transport and communications, pointing up Adolf Hitler's challenge to Britain to open a western land front.

On the eastern land front, the salient claim of the Hitler command was the capture of Yalta, on the Crimean shore of the Black Sea.

The capture of Yalta raised a new threat to Sevastopol, big base of the Red fleet some 30 miles to the west, German commentators said.

They held that Sevastopol now could be approached from the southeast, along the coast and that the city, except for its sea front, had been encircled.

The official news agency D. N. B., in an analysis of the Crimean situation, said there were signs that entrapped Russian forces, particularly on the Kerch Isthmus, were disintegrating.

Claim 6 British Ships

The high command said Nazi bombers sank six British merchantmen last night, including a tanker, and that 25 R. A. F. planes were downed yesterday and last night. The ships totaled 38,000 tons, the high command said.

Dive-bombers, sent against various British land targets, reported they started a number of fires in the harbor of Dover.

A German tabulation showed that 85 R. A. F. planes, including many bombers, were destroyed during the week.

(The British admit the loss of 91 planes during the week.)

Military sources radiated confidence in the deadly efficiency with which they said their air defenses were clicking against the intensified R. A. F. offensive in the west.

Germans explained the curious circumstance of British admissions of air losses exceeding the German claims with the suggestion that some of the machines lost came down in stormy weather in the North Sea outside the range of German observation.

On the northern Russian front one German battle squadron reported it had broken a strategic Russian rail line in 23 places, selected as being the most difficult for the Soviet repair crews to handle.

Admitting that the Russians work mightily to keep their trains moving over bombed stretches of track, the Nazis said the 23 breaks at one time, including several bridges and explosion of a munitions train, was a lasting blow.

Pounding Sevastopol

In the Crimea and Black Sea area the German air force was reported cooperating with artillery in the pounding of the big naval fortress of Sevastopol on the southwest tip of the peninsula and Kerch at the extreme eastern tip.

The German air force was said to have sunk 17 Soviet transports and damaged 30 others since last Thursday. Since November 1, it was said, German planes also sank 20 Russian warships and damaged six others while sinking 34 Russian freighters totaling 147,000 tons.

German planes also were reported to have destroyed 36 Russian planes on the ground in an attack on an unnamed southern sector airport in which they rendered the landing field unserviceable for a long period.

Along the lower Donets Basin Front, German dispatches said Nazi dive-bombers attacked artillery positions and smashed a number of tanks and "many" truckloads of war materials. They also claimed destruction of four transport trains and the damaging of 33 more, some of which were set on fire.

While German and Rumanian troops were reported officially to be driving the Russians before them along the southern Crimean coast and in the Kerch area, the high command announced the fall of Yalta, an ancient port and one-time autumnal bathing resort of the Russian aristocracy.

Increases Peril of Base

In taking the city, the Germans broadened the wedge driven into Russian troops defending Crimea, increasing the threat to Sevastopol.

Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, headlined the Fuehrer's speech:

"Sharp dismissal of threats from the United States."

Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said:

"Silly threats from America do not take effect."

The Berlin radio, which at intervals turned out highspots of Hitler's talk all day Sunday kept calling attention to direct references to Mr. Roosevelt and Hitler's statement that the German naval officer who does not stand up against attack would expect court-martial.

There were also many references to Hitler's challenge to the English to open a new western front and to his statement that "world bolshevism" had been crushed and that years would be required to replace the weapons the Russians had lost.

Spain's Ex-Envoy To U. S. Dead at 76

Buenos Aires, Nov. 9 (AP).—Pablo Soler y Guardilla, 76, former Spanish Ambassador to Argentina and veteran diplomat who held posts in other South American countries, Washington and Europe, died today at Tigre, summer resort near Buenos Aires. He had been ill several months. Before coming to Argentina in 1910 he was minister to Paraguay and Cuba.

War Sidelights

Buffalo Pilot Wins British Flying Cross

London, Nov. 9 (INS).—Britain honored an American volunteer fighter pilot, Carroll Waren McColpin, of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of the American Eagle Squadron, with the Distinguished Flying Cross today for a single-handed attack on six Nazi Messerschmitt fighters in which he downed two.

At the same time, it was announced that Eagle Squadron Pilot Thomas C. Wallace, of Pasadena, Calif., but a native of Oakdale, Pa., had shot down a Nazi plane Friday.

'Off With Their Heads'

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—Photographs of Greta Garbo, Shirley Temple, John Barrymore and other Hollywood stars displayed on the walls of German cinema houses today drew the fire of the German motion picture industry's newspaper, Film Kurier.

The paper said it was astonishing to see pictures of American players gracing German cinema lobbies despite the ban on United States pictures and urged that they be "relegated at once to the darkest corner and replaced by German stars."

Film Protest Rejected

Buenos Aires, Nov. 9 (AP).—Municipal film censors today rejected a German embassy protest against the showing of the films, "Manhunt," "They Dare Not Love," and "Professor Mamlock," the censors informed the foreign ministry the pictures were not anti-German.

Tolstoy's Estate Occupied

Kuibyshev, Nov. 5 (Delayed) (AP). Frontline dispatches from Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, said today that German troops had occupied the estate of the late Russian author, Leo Tolstoy. The estate in the vicinity of Tula had been converted into a museum by the Russians.

Sailors Forbidden

Buenos Aires, Nov. 9 (AP).—The navy ministry announced today that Argentine sailors are henceforth forbidden to join crews of foreign ships entering war zones unless they first present a written declaration renouncing protection of the Argentine government.

The action followed shortly after the return of three Argentine seamen from a concentration camp in occupied France where they were taken by Germans after the capture of a Danish boat on which they were serving.

Berlin Priests Blast Russia

By the United Press

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Many German Catholic clergymen attacked Bolshevism and described the war in the east as a campaign against Bolshevist ideology in sermons today a few hours after Adolf Hitler had dwelt on the "common European front against Bolshevism" in his Munich anniversary speech.

It was the first time the anti-Bolshevist theme, except perhaps in passing, had been raised in German Catholic churches since the start of the war with Russia. Some priests mentioned the Nazi beer cellar putsch anniversary indirectly, calling it a "day of commemoration."

The anti-Bolshevist theme was particularly dominant in the Berlin diocese, while reports of similar sermons were received from the Rhineland, Bavaria and other provinces.

The sermons recalled the Russian antichurch attitude and the effects of Soviet occupation of such territories as the Baltic states where the Catholic church was said to have been suppressed systematically, hundreds of priests deported and many churches used for administrative bureaus, warehouses, etc.

Except for Hitler's Munich speech, the anniversary of the Nazis' first bid for power in 1923 was observed with wartime reserve. Hitler's speech was printed in full here for the first time.

Observers after a more thorough analysis of the speech considered the highlights his challenge to Britain to undertake an invasion of Western Europe and his blunt assertion that the Nazi system was geared to deal summarily with any trouble on the home front.

A German battery fired 16 salvos today in front of Memorial Temple, Munich, scene of the abortive putsch 18 years ago, while representatives of Hitler and of the German army decorated the graves of the 16 killed in the putsch and of 8 Nazis who died in the beer hall explosion two years ago.

Pope Exhorts Chile to Guard Against 'False Doctrines'

By the Associated Press

Vatican City, Nov. 9.—Pope Pius in a broadcast today to Chile's national Eucharistic Congress at Santiago expressed hopes for world peace and preservation of Chile's religious faith against "false doctrines, immorality, disbelief and reborn paganism."

The pontiff also hoped, he said, that "those social circles which are led by deceptive doctrines and fallacious promises and have deserted the fold of the church, will return to her maternal bosom."

The Pope began his message by saying that Chile was born when the first mass was celebrated for the troops of Valdivia, encamped near the Mapocho River, on February 12, 1541. (Pedro de Valdivia, a Spaniard, founded Santiago, the present Chilean capital, on this date.)

"We thank Heaven," the Pope said, "that across these immense spaces—the theater, alas, at this moment of such terrible combats—we can join our voice to your to form a chant of actions of grace to the lamb which was sacrificed on the altar."

Then speaking of the Divine Host, the Pope said:

"Hasten today to Its throne of love to thank It for your very existence, to tell It you wish to respond to the benedictions which It has not ceased to scatter on your great people. . . .

"May It preserve for your people the gift of faith despite dissimulated propaganda of false doctrines and despite the assaults of excessive immorality, dissolving incredulity and reborn paganism."

"And may Christ the Redeemer deign to preserve the precious gift of peace for you forever," the pontiff continued.

The message, in Spanish, concluded with an apostolic benediction on all the clergy and the people and "the dear Chilean nation."

Policy Group Sees Japanese Power Offset

By the Associated Press

The Foreign Policy Association said yesterday that because of a concentration of newer type British and American warplanes in Malaya, the East Indies and the Philippines "the balance of power in Southeast Asia has shifted against Japan."

In a survey of defensive preparations of the Netherlands East Indies and adjacent areas, the association, a privately funded organization, said:

"Modern long range seaplanes, probably superior in numbers to those which the Japanese could muster for an expeditionary force, can effectively patrol the South China Sea and concentrate rapidly at threatened points. Even a strong naval squadron which had to guard troop and supply transports would be vulnerable to air attack."

The report, saying the Dutch East Indies were at least partially prepared to fight off any Japanese attack, came as American officials awaited the arrival of Saburo Kurusu, special Japanese envoy, who is flying to Washington with proposals for a settlement of the tense differences between Japan and the United States. No further developments in the Far Eastern situation are expected until Kurusu has conferred with Government officials and it has become clear whether there is any hope of a peaceful agreement.

The survey recalled conferences earlier this year at Manila between Air Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, commander of Britain's Far Eastern defenses, and American military officials, and then commented:

"Far Eastern problems were undoubtedly canvassed at the Churchill-Roosevelt conference in August, 1941, and it is probable that a common strategy was devised to meet the possibility of a Japanese drive into southeastern Asia."

Discussing Japanese advantages, the association's report said:

"Careful estimates indicate that, despite the existing trade embargoes, Japan possesses stocks of war materials adequate to maintain a southern blitzkrieg for as long as six months. Tokyo would also hold the advantage of the initiative, since it could choose the time and place of attack. A drive might be launched from Japan's mandated islands far to the east, for example, along the route of the new Japanese commercial airline from the Palau Islands to Dilli, capital of the Portuguese half of the island of Timor."

But, the survey added, "formidable obstacles" would confront Japan in any such operation. Among other factors, Japan would have to reckon with large-scale developments in the rear from the British base at Hongkong and the American bases in the Philippines, the association said.

Kurusu Reaches Wake Island

Wake Island, Nov. 9 (INS).—This little Midpacific island air base welcomed a Japanese diplomat and his secretary last night and sped them on their way again in the China Clipper today. The envoy, Saburo Kurusu, is en route to Washington for discussions of the Pacific situation. His schedule calls for arrival at Midway tonight, Honolulu tomorrow and San Francisco Wednesday.

Canadian Air Ace Lauds American Plane Production

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Air Marshal William A. Bishop of the Royal Canadian Air Force said today the United States was making "wonderful" progress in aircraft production.

Arriving here after a onee-week inspection tour of West Coast aircraft factories, the air marshal said:

"I visited five factories, and I was just taking a look-see. It is perfectly wonderful how things have developed since I was last here last May."

Roll Call to List Irish 'Ayes' On U. S. Policy

"You can count on the Irish, Mr. President," will be the slogan of the American-Irish Defense Association roll call beginning today, it was announced last night by Rossa F. Downing, national chairman of the organization.

Efforts will be made in the roll call to get the signatures of 100,000 Irish-Americans, pledging support of the foreign policy of the Government.

The campaign will be conducted by chapters in Washington, New York, Chicago, Boston, Providence, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, and Allentown, Pa.

In announcing the campaign, Chairman Downing reported that Police Superintendent Maj. Edward J. Kelly has joined the Washington chapter. Other District members he said, are Charles Fahy, new Solicitor General of the Department of Justice; Francis M. Shea, Assistant Attorney General; David Cushman Coyle; Dr. Henry Gratton Doyle; Fred R. Barkley; John B. Colpoys; Msgr. John A. Ryan; Helen Herbert Peck and Mary O. Sullivan.

Plans for the Washington campaign include the setting up of booths in various public buildings and hotel lobbies.

The complete text of the roll-call pledge is: "As an American citizen of Irish descent, I hereby affirm that I support the declared foreign policy of the President and the Congress of the United States. I am unalterably opposed to the Axis powers, and will work to the utmost for an Allied victory. Therefore: I wish to join with likeminded people of Irish heritage in promoting national unity in America and in urging the utmost cooperation between Eire and the United States."

First Army Rests and Prepares for New Test of Speed and Punch in Maneuvers

By Marshall Andrews

Camden, S. C., Nov. 9.—While the Fourth Corps and the First and Second Armored Divisions whip themselves into shape this week for 15 days of battle beginning next Monday, first Army is taking the week for rest and final adjustment.

In the vicinity of Chester, S. C., Fourth Corps, under Maj. Gen. O. W. Griswold, will spend the larger part of the week in field maneuvers in which the two armored divisions and the motorized Fourth Division will work together for the first time. On this side of the Catawba River, Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum's First Army has ahead a schedule of conferences, ceremonies and movements into battle position.

Tomorrow at 10 a. m., chaplains of the three corps and eight divisions in the First Army will meet here with the chaplain of First Army for a conference. Tomorrow night, Gen. Drum will hold a critique at Monroe, N. C., on conduct of the maneuver which ended Thursday. Tuesday, Gen. Drum will speak at an Armistice Day celebration here and units will hold appropriate ceremonies in their base camps.

When the final climactic maneuver is launched next Monday under general headquarters direction, it is expected First Army will lie East of the Pee Dee River and Fourth Corps west of the Catawba, with 60-miles of no-man's land between them.

Unless one or the other develops astonishing speed on the jump off and pins his enemy behind his river line, it appears the battle will be fought to a finish along the pageland Ridge Line, already so familiar to officers and men of Second Corps and the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division.

News Sideshow

Crime War Comes Home To LaGuardia

New York, Nov. 9.—We'll bet Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia's face was red when he heard about this one.

On Friday he sent 250 more police into lower Harlem and the north end of Central Park to combat an outbreak of petty thievery, holdups and attacks on women and children.

At 6 a. m. today, a "tall, thin Negro" entered the Mayor's Fifth Avenue apartment house across the street from Central Park, jimmied a door of an apartment directly across the corridor from LaGuardia's, and stole a $300 diamond ring and some cash from a bureau drawer.

Then the thief fled down six flights of stairs and walked calmly out the door past an elevator operator and a policeman assigned to guard the mayor.

At least that was the story told police by the tenant of the looted apartment, Mrs. Celia Moscowitz.

Not Motor Age

Medford, Mass., Nov. 9 (AP).—Three 10-year-old boys, so small it took two of them to operate a stolen automobile, ended a six-mile ride through heavy traffic today when the vehicle left the road and halted on a grass plot.

Boston police said the automobile had been stolen in the Charlestown district and had been driven uninterrupted until an officer halted traffic.

When the vehicle left the road, the three boys fled but were caught by police, who said one was operating the machine while kneeling on the driver's seat while a second worked the accelerator and brake.

Double or Nothing

Atlanta, Nov. 9 (AP).—Leon Carson, jr., aged 4 and lonesome, visited a neighboring home daily, grew attached to the neighbor's baby and offered to buy the tot. The mother playfully told him he could have the baby for a dollar and suggested that he start saving his pennies.

Leon began saving. He kept the neighbor posted.

"Have you got the dollar yet" she asked on each visit.

Junior finally called off the deal himself.

"Don't need him" he shrugged. "Got too many now."

Daniels Leaves Mexico With Tears in His Eyes

Mexico City, Nov. 9 (AP).—Josephus Daniels left by plane for the United States today, quitting his post as Ambassador to Mexico after 8½ years to rejoin his wife in Raleigh, N. C.

Tears glinted in his eyes as he worked his way through the airport farewell crowd to the plane. He give the ceremonial Mexican embrace to the men and wives of the embassy staff, and girl employes left smears of lipstick on his cheeks.

Dr. Jorge Zawadsky, Colombian Ambassador, gave him a corsage for Mrs. Daniels. It was because of her health that Mr. Daniels resigned his post.

Navy May Need New Bases To Fight Nazis, Stirling Says

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 9.—Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., United States Navy, retired, told an American Red Cross roll call rally tonight that "from now on an all-out shooting war between United States warships and German warships is a foregone conclusion."

Stirling predicted that the United States would be forced to acquire additional naval bases in the Atlantic Ocean to keep Nazi submarines and surface vessels from destroying marine commerce; said a war with Japan is the "last thing desired by the United States and Great Britain," and stressed that an immediate end of national defense strikes is necessary.

"From the moment that the President's shooting order was given to our Navy, all our warships were forced to consider themselves on a war footing," he said. "Our naval ships now must sail the seas prepared at all times to give battle to warships of the Axis powers. They must steam at night without lights. Guns must be shotted and crews ready at the guns. As far as the Navy is concerned the condition is that of war although the country is nonbelligerent," he said.

Stirling declared that naval convoys to Iceland were a "definite responsibility" of the United States, and that the Nation might be forced to seize other Atlantic naval bases.

"It is certain that Germany will not withdraw its submarines and raiders from the areas that are considered as vital to America's defense," he continued. "Therefore, a shooting war at sea must be the natural outcome."

"Iceland gives our warships and planes a position from which to operate far out in the Atlantic. A further extension of naval base positions to northern Ireland, and south Ireland, too, if the Irish join in the war, is a step in defense of the hemisphere."

In respect to the tension in the Far East, Stirling predicted that Japan would not risk a war with the United States unless the nation was convinced that Hitler would be victorious in his European war.

"America's present interest is to keep Japan from actively joining her Axis partners in a shooting war, for America can now foresee that war with Hitler is inevitable, and wishes to avoid fighting a two-ocean war."

He said that in event of an open break, Great Britain would be looked upon to engage the Japanese from Singapore until the United States Fleet arrived at the naval base, and that United States bombers might be used from Vladivostok.

"There are other base positions in the Atlantic Ocean which the strategical conception of fighting Hitler on the seas may make imperative for the United States to occupy should they be menaced by German warships and airplanes," the Admiral said. "These are the Azores and Cape Verde Islands, belonging to Portugal; the Canaries, belonging to Spain, and Dakar, in Central Africa, belonging to France. There is also the island of Martinique, in the West Indies, which gives alliance to the Vichy government, and would, in German hands, prove a menace to the Panama Canal."

Latin-American Civilian Defense Urged by Women

By the Associated Press

The Inter-American Commission of Women sitting in a final session at the Pan American Union yesterday resolved to ask the United States Government to aid Latin American countries in setting up a civilian defense system analogous to that being established in this country.

The resolution was inspired by a group visit of the women to the civilian defense headquarters where they were guests of Mrs. Roosevelt. Later they talked over defense problems with Mrs. Roosevelt at tea at the White House.

Their resolution stated that members of the commission would give the time necessary to promoting civilian defense machinery in their own countries.

Report U. S. Ship Hit Mine in Pacific Unconfirmed Here

A Berlin radio report Sunday that an American ship, carrying war supplies for Russia, had been badly damaged by a mine off Vladivostok found no confirmation in official quarters in Washington, London and Shanghai.

The British radio, heard by the Columbia Broadcasting System's short wave listening post in New York, quoted the Berlin radio on the sinking and added the report was not confirmed from other sources.

The Navy and State Departments in Washington said they had no information. A dispatch from Shanghai said the report had been circulated by German quarters in Tokyo.

British Bomb Sicily, Naples, Raid Bengasi

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 9.—The Italian high command announced today new British bombing raids on Sicily and southern Italy and said two persons were killed and four wounded in Naples, now a frequent target for the R. A. F. in the Mediterranean.

Some damage to buildings and fires at Naples were admitted.

Another bombing of the Libyan port of Bengasi also was reported in a communique, which said dwellings and a hospital were hit causing some civilian casualties.

The high command said three planes were shot down at Brindisi yesterday on the eastern side of the heel of Italy. Forty persons were reported killed and 80 wounded in the attack.

The high command also claimed that an Italian destroyer had shot down four British planes and said one of the Naples attackers was shot down into the sea. The loss of four Italian planes was announced.

Frustrated attacks against remnants of the Italian armies in Ethiopia cost the British considerable losses, the communique said.

On the home front the government has ordered dealers to sell customers only one cake of soap at a time to prevent hoarding and profiteering. People have been paying as high as 60 cents a cake for soap when they could find it.

In Leghorn a newspaper reader complained in a letter about the high prices of shoes, now made of imitation leather with cork soles, and socks made of artificial fibers instead of cotton.

The Italian high command reported that Italian casualties verified in October and not previously published totaled 568 dead, 817 wounded, 444 missing. These totals did not include East Africa.

The list included the first casualties from the Russian front and listed them as 152 killed, 340 wounded and 15 missing.

More Latin Firms Blacklisted

The United States yesterday extended its trade blacklist to 653 additional firms and individuals in Latin-American nations. Fifty-nine names were removed from earlier lists.

The list is made up of persons the Government deems "to be acting for the benefit of Germany or Italy or nationals of those countries and persons to whom the exportation directly or indirectly of various articles or materials is deemed to be detrimental to the itnerst of national defense."

No articles under export control may be exported to those on the list unless a specific government license is granted.

With yesterday's additions and deletions, there are 1523 firms and individuals on the list.

Guatemala headed yesterday's additions with 232 firms. Of these, a majority were plantations devoted to coffee or other agricultural products.

In making the list public, Secretary of State Hull said that arrangements had been worked out with the Guatemalan government whereby limited amounts of coffee produced on these plantations would be permitted to enter the United States so that Guatemala may fill its quota under the inter-American coffee agreement.

Hillman Raps 'Strikes as Usual' Policy

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, declared tonight the Nation must stop thinking in terms of "strikes as usual," just as it must cast aside the idea of "business as usual."

Hillman made it clear, however, in a speech prepared for a testimonial dinner honoring Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, that he did not mean abolition of the right to strike, but he suggested that the right be held in abeyance until all Government facilities of conciliation and mediation had been exhausted.

"The less we use the right to strike now," Hillman asserted, "the more effectively we safeguard it for the future. We must be willing to concede certain privileges to the needs of defense now—today, in order to preserve our fundamental rights for all times."

Both Factions Represented

Representatives of both factions in labor's divided camp attended the dinner, which was arranged to honor Mrs. Roosevelt's endeavors in behalf of the underprivileged and to pay tribute, too, to the President's contributions to labor and humanity.

Upon the skills, energies, ingenuity and devotion of free American labor, Hillman said, rested largely the hopes of free peoples "that the forces of Hitlerism will be turned back."

"American labor will not fail and dare not fail," he said. "Today it recognizes, more than ever before, that labor's bill of rights must be balanced by labor's bill of duties."

Labor's Contributions Praised

Hillman praised labor's contributions to defense, which, he said, included cooperation with management in the problem of priorities unemployment, suggestion of new production methods and plans to convert nondefense machinery to defense uses, and its emphasizing of a need to utilize local labor and to spread defense contracts to the small businessman.

Of Mrs. Roosevelt, Hillman said: "Her constant effort to make democracy real and active for all of our people is a challenge and an inspiration to all of us in the solemn days that lie ahead."

car, toward the rear of the train, when he heard a crash at the front.

"I ran into the corridor thinking to avoid the flying furniture in the car," Davis said, "but when the car began to jolt I grabbed a window ledge and hung on.

"When the car stopped moving the passengers mostly were on the floor and the car was tilted at an angle of 70 degrees. We climbed up the slope and out the windows.

"Several people in the club car were cut, one an old lady.

"An hour after the accident, I was surpised to find I still had my bridge cards in my hand."

Davis is employed by the Beaumont & Hohman Advertising Co. of Chicago.

Davis gave a vivid description of the wrecked coach in which most of the victims were believed to have died.

"It looked like you took a big knife and cut it right down the middle," he said. "Most of the people on the left side came out without a scratch, but those on the right side really got it.

"I couldn't see any bodies inside, because it was too dark, but there were several that were spilled out along the right-of-way.

"It was such a mess!

"Really, I was surprised that there wasn't a lot of screaming and yelling like you would expect in such a thing. There were a few screams and groans, but that was all. The railroad people got there right away and did a good job of rescuing."

the deadline, next Saturday.

The board was understood to have been preparing, over the week-end, a statement of facts developed in hearings at which Lewis and heads of the steel companies appeared. Drafting of the recommendations was expected to follow.

Hillman issued his warning to labor in speaking at a New York dinner in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Representatives of both C. I. O. and A. F. L. unions were present. (Further details on Page 4.)

Base Job Is Big

Work on about 25 million dollars worth of defense contracts would be affected by the scheduled general strike at San Diego. Navy officials estimated that 3500 men are involved, employed on new barracks, an air base, a destroyer base and a housing project.

The unions have demanded that pay be boosted on the Navy projects to the scale paid on other similar work, a demand that would mean a dollar a day increase and give electricians $12 a day, tilesetters, cement finishers and iron workers $11, carpenters, $10 and laborers $7.

Sheriff Bert Strand and Police Chief Clifford Peterson at San Diego said they were prepared to preserve order at the strike-threatened military establishments under their jurisdiction, the Associated Press reported.

Security officers of the Navy, and Marine bases were believed to have taken measures deemed necessary. Guard assignments for today reportedly were tripled. Army posts were not affected by the labor dispute.

At Linden, N. J., nearly all the 125 workers who have remained in the General Motors assembly plant since a strike was called last Friday ignored a U. A. W.-C. I. O. union offer to grant them safe conduct through picket lines yesterday.

Only Four Leave

Only four of the group left the building, it was reported, after union leaders pointed out that those departing would not be permitted to return until the dispute is ended.

Religious services were conducted within the plant, where all work has been halted by the strike, by a foreman who formerly was a minister.

"We didn't have any hymn books but we sang some old songs we all knew," said a company spokesman.

Albert W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, yesterday appealed for an end to labor strikes based upon "unreasonable demands or debatable issues," declaring security of this country depends upon full speed ahead in national defense production. His statement also called upon American men and women for "unity and willingness to make sacrifices."

"Such unity of purpose," Hawkes wrote, "involves not only management and labor, but all American citizens. We hold that the right to work or to refuse to work is one of our great freedoms.

"The Nation is arming itself to preserve this freedom along with the four other freedoms: Worship, speech, press and assembly.

"We believe in the right of the individual to refuse to work and the right of a group to strike. But under our present national emergency we deplore any such action based upon an unreasonable demand or a debatable cause."

think we'll get them."

Fish said that as ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he had to allot the time that would be given to opposition speakers and that he had requests from "a number of Democrats" who have never before opposed the Administration on a major question of foreign policy.

Though he admitted that the issue would be bitterly fought, Representative John W. McCormack, the House majority leader, from Massachusetts, said he was confident the lower chamber would concur in the Senate's action, but he admitted it would be a battle that would find a number of members of his party on the opposition side.

Expects Support to Increase

"It is more important that this measure be adopted now than several weeks ago," he said, "in light of the acute situation in the Far East. Those in control of the Japanese government will make a great mistake if they think the people of the United States are not aware of the fact that the situation is acute and they will make an even greater mistake if they fail to understand that public opinion in this country is behind the foreign policy of the Government."

McCormack said he thought the danger in the Pacific would increase the Administration's support for the bill and added that while the Democrats were divided he thought several Republicans who have not been supporting the Administration's foreign policy would switch on this issue. He indicated that this might be especially true of Representatives from the Pacific Coast.

At least one important bloc is still wavering. This is the group of Northern Democrats who are led by Representative Joseph E. Casey, of Massachusetts. Casey said tonight that his group "was deeply concerned" about the way in which the Neutrality Act was changed in the Senate and added that his colleagues would make up their minds how to vote on the issue Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Administration leaders in the House will do everything they can to minimize the split before the debate starts Wednesday. They are expected to confer with President Roosevelt at the White House tomorrow on the party division.

The 1942 House elections are expected to play an important part in the coming debate. Fish made it clear tonight that in leading the opposition he would tell the House that it would be difficult to convince the electorate in both the primaries and in the final election next year that a vote to send American ships into the war zones was not a vote for war.

The opposition argument will be: First, that sending the ships into British ports is unnecessary since we have the authority under Lease-Lend Act to give the British all the ships they need; second, that it is an act of war which will inevitably mean total war; and third, that members who vote for it will be giving hostages to their opponents in the next election.

Administration leaders contend that repeal of the vital sections of the act is not an act of war, but they are worried about the political capital that might be made of the opposition argument.

In order to assure speedy passage of the bill, some Administration supporters suggested that the House be asked to decide the issue by voting on the conference report with debate limited to one hour. This, however, was rejected by Administration leaders who have provided between six and eight hours debate. This will mean a full day's debate on Wednesday and perhaps two hours' debate Thursday, with subsequent discussion on the amendments and final vote Thursday night.

P.-T. A. Meeting Postponed

The Parent-Teacher Association of Montgomery Hills Junior High School, Silver Spring, Md., has postponed its monthly meeting scheduled for tomorrow night until November 18 because of the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Quantico to Get Surplus Houses

"changes in plans" by the Navy which, after 186 homes had been built for civilian workers, "reported that it needed only 400 of these houses for its personnel." The Indianhead work was hampered by a strike of more than 500 A. F. L. construction workers from May 20 to June 3.

Meanwhile, the agency said, an urgent need has developed for additional housing facilities for the families of civilian and enlisted personnel attached to the Quantico marine base. Works Administrator Carmody recently approved a site near the base for a defense housing project of 250 dwellings but authorization to proceed with construction was withheld, as virtually all funds appropriated under the Lanham Act for defense housing have been exhausted. Hence, in order to relieve the housing shortage at Quantico, it was decided to move 186 dwellings from Indianhead.

Announcing the project, John N. Edy, acting administrator, said the FWA is preparing "to demonstrate for the first time in the history of housing that the removal of an entire village of prefabricated demountable houses to another locality is both practical and economical."

The announcement coincided with a meeting here today of prefabricated housing manufacturers with Clark Foreman, director, and other officials of the FWA defense housing division, to discuss possible improvements in the basic design and construction of prefabricated houses for defense purposes. The group will include manufacturers who produced the Indianhead units.

The seven contractors who participated in the construction at Indianhead will be invited to submit bids on the demounting, transporting and re-erection of the 186 dwellings.

Edy pointed out three possible methods of moving the homes. They may be demounted in sections and hauled by trucks to Quantico over the usual truck route, which crosses the Potomac at Morgantown, Md. They may be packed into freight cars and shipped by rail or they may be taken by boat down the Potomac, reloaded on trucks and hauled the 10 miles from the river to the new site.

The acting administrator said that experiments "proved conclusively that prefabricated, demountable houses can be moved to new sites at a comparatively low cost and with practically no damage to the structures."

The 186 houses to be moved cost the Government $563,341, plus an additional $6580 for water heaters, which will be moved with the houses.

"Despite the cost of transporting the houses to Quantico, either by truck or by rail," Edy's announcement said, "the move will save the Government several hundred thousand dollars, as it would cost more than $500,000 to purchase and erect an equivalent number of prefabricated dwellings on the Quantico site. This saving could not have been made if houses of the conventional type had been erected at Indianhead."

Varied Services in Washington Churches Mark Observation Of Armistice Sunday; Gen. Hines Cites Adherence to Ideals

Washington churches yesterday paused amid a world at war to commemorate the end of the first World War, as Armistice Sunday—spiritual observance of Armistice Day—was observed.

The District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association sponsored its fifth annual Armistice Sunday services at the Unknown Soldier's Tomb. St. Thomas Episcopal Church—where President Roosevelt frequently worships—welcomed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, as guest speaker. Members of George E. Killeen Post No. 25, American Legion, were guests at memorial services at Grace Episcopal Church, Georgetown.

Brig. Gen. Hines told a large congregation that America's part in the post-war peace settlement was "commendable."

Still Believe in Ideals

"We were unselfish, asked for no reward, except a lasting peace," he said, "and if we had had our full say, the terms would have been different."

Later in his address, Gen. Hines advised that "we have not yet changed our stand and still believe in the ideals for which we fought in 1917 and 1918."

"We feel more strongly today than we did then," he continued, "that our form of government offers more for the good of the people of our nation and the world, and that the freedom which our forefathers gained for us must be maintained." The speaker was presented by Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, rector.

Preaching during the same hour just a few blocks away, Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant First Presbyterian Church, asked for a faith in God that is big enough for the present emergency.

Utter Bankruptcy

"The hopeless mess that the world finds itself in," he observed, "demonstrates the utter bankruptcy of a purely mechanistic and humanistic philosophy of life to solve our problems—individually, socially or internationally.

"Thus it comes to pass," he went on, "that Christians all over the world are facing one of the darkest hours they have had to face, and everywhere they are in desperate search for a faith that can match the present hour."

"'This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith'," he said, quoting from John 1, 4-5. His theme was "'V' for Victory—'F' for Faith."

More than 800 Bible classmen from the District, Maryland and Virginia turned out for the Arlington services, where wreaths were laid by Page McK. Etchison for the World Sunday School Association; by H. C. McClintock for the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes, and George E. Harris, for the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association.

Etchison and Harris, both of Washington, are president and executive secretary, respectively, of the Bible Association. McClintock is from Elkton, Md.

Brown Presides

Association Vice President Elton H. Brown, sr., also an officer of the Everyman's Bible Class of Mount Rainier, Md., Christian Church, presided at the services, and Lieut. Col. Walter B. Zimmerman, of the chief of chaplains' office, delivered the main address.

The Rev. J. Lloyd Black, retiring pastor of Park View Christian Church, gave the invocation, and the association quartet sang several selections.

While most churches held their Armistice observance yesterday, others have arranged for commemorating the occasion tomorrow—Armistice Day.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, will address the annual Woodrow Wilson memorial services tomorrow at 3:15 p. m. in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral.

Evensong and special Armistice Day prayers will take place at 4 p. m. in the great choir, followed by a brief ceremony led by the chapters of the District of Columbia division of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

K. of C. Will Give Pound Party Sunday

The fifteenth annual pound and donation party for the benefit of the Little Sisters of the Poor will be held by the Washington General Assembly of the Knights of Columbus next Sunday afternoon at the home on H Street Northeast between Second and Third, officers of the organization announced yesterday.

The Knights of Columbus are currently seeking to raise $13,000 for structural work on the home for the aged, Alfred A. McGarraghy, vice supreme master of the fourth degree, stated, explaining that the Little Sisters do not seek Community Chest funds because of a rule of their order.

Pay Roll Taxes Sought to Beat Off Inflation

By Irving Perlmeter
Associated Press Staff Writer

You're getting too much money!

That is the official Treasury reason for asking Congress to levy between 4 billion and 5 billion dollars of new taxes next year. One suggested method is a 15 per cent tax on salaries and wages.

Not that the Treasury doesn't need the money, but as the philosophy of the new tax proposals can be gleaned from Treasury experts, the more important thing is to "mop up" extra change in people's pockets to prevent inflation. The views that follow are what these experts say are the facts:

1. The Treasury does need more money. In spite of a $3,500,000,000 tax law just passed, the Treasury faces a deficit of from 15 billion to 25 billion dollars in the next year.

2. Because of defense industry, wages and other forms of income will be higher than ever before. The national income next year will probably be about 100 billion dollars, compared with about 85 billion dollars this year.

3. While the people may have 15 billion dollars extra spending money, the defense program will permit them fewer things to buy. For instance, the Government already has curtailed output of automobiles and refrigerators.

Bidding Brings Inflation

4. The natural thing for people to do is to try to outbid each other for the consumer merchandise that can be bought, thus forcing prices up. That's inflation.

5. If prices go skyhigh, most everyone will be impoverished because their money won't buy much. This would hurt especially persons living on fixed incomes such as pensions and annuities. Also, it would hurt the Government because it would have to pay more for defense articles.

6. You can hold down prices by passing a law against them. Congress is working on that, too, but the Treasury says it isn't enough. For one thing, legally fixed prices might be sidestepped by bootlegging.

7. Therefore, the Treasury says, the thing to do is to take away from the people in extra taxes the spare money that the people might use in bidding up prices.

8. Furthermore, the Treasury says it wouldn't do much good to take this money away in the more usual ways, such as an income tax which people have to pay in the following year. By that time, people may have already spent the money without regard to next year's taxes and the damage would be done.

9. Therefore, the Treasury believes in taking away the money before the people get a chance to spend it. Hence it is asking Congress to take it out of the weekly pay envelope. In the first place, the social security tax, which already comes out of the paycheck, would be increased. In the second place, there would be a new income tax which employes would be required to deduct from pay checks. Other devices would be used to collect at the earliest possible moment the tax on other kinds of income, such as stock dividends.

Morgenthau Prepares Cost Paring Plan

By Felix Cotton
International News Service Staff Writer

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., plans to submit specific proposals for cuts of one billion dollars or more in nondefense expenditures. Treasury sources revealed last night.

The Secretary's suggestions will be laid, probbaly this week, before the special Congressional and departmental committee investigating Government expenditures, of which he is a member.

Although the Administration has been apathetic toward cuts in nondefense expeditures, Morgenthau feels that one billion dollars can be readily saved.

His suggestions for economies are expected to furnish the special committee, headed by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, with a starting point in its quest for sums that may be lopped off the Government nondefense outgo total, still close to seven billion dollars a year.

The committee is expected to make a report to Congress early in December, and to recommend in this report a program of economies. An effort will be made to have Congress adopt the committee's recommendations in passing supply bills for nondefense agencies for the fiscal year that begins next July 1.

Morgenthau suggested to the House Ways and Means Committee last April that nondefense expenditures be cut one billion dollars. The first big item to feel the knife, he said, should be the 500 million dollars spent each year in soil conservation benefits to farmers. He also recommended reductions in expenditures for the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration.

He is expected to go into more detail in his economy recommendations to the committee.

Belief Growing Hitler Will Lose, Vermonters Told

There is a growing conviction everywhere that Hitler is going to lose this war, Edward T. Folliard, Washington Post reporter, told the University of Vermont Alumni Association of Washington yesterday.

However, he told some 50 members of the organization at a tea at the Washington Club, 1010 Seventeenth Street Northwest, that foreign military observers are of the opinion that the United States will have to enter the war "wholeheartedly" to accomplish that end.

Genevieve Forbes Herrick, Washington correspondent of the magazine, Country Gentleman, sketched a history of the part women have played in American politics.

Folliard was introduced by Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont.

Administration Held Bucking Wage Ceiling

Copyright by the New York Times

The Administration is firmly opposed to any ceiling on wages in price-control legislation, holding that a segment of the population still does not get a living wage, it was said in responsible quarters yesterday.

This attitude was expressed as Representative McCormick, majority leader, stated that the House might take up price legislation Friday, after it had disposed of the Neutrality Act revision problem.

The attitude of President Roosevelt on the question of what ceiling should be placed on the price of agricultural products remained uncertain.

There is strong evidence that Canada's recent action in establishing ceilings on wages and rents as well as commodities has caused great embarrassment in Washington. Aides of Leon Henderson, price administrator, flew again to Canada over the weekend to study the controls there. The Canadian plan is virtually the same as that advocated by Bernard Baruch.

Taft Urges Definite Period for Control

New York, Nov. 9.—A Government agency should be given the power to control prices for a strictly limited period and at the same time all efforts should be made to reduce the Federal deficit which is the cause of rising prices, Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, said.

"In order that it may be clear that this price control is temporary," Senator Taft said, "it should end on a certain date. I suggest January 1, 1943 and not the end of some vague emergency period."

Senator Taft said he was opposed to an arbitrary ceiling on all prices and wages, and believed it should be confined to the basic commodities and their products.

Titled British Women Toil at Work Benches

By William R. Downs
United Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 9.—More than a dozen titled British women, representing England's oldest and most aristocratic families, have accepted anonymity, dirty hands and the 11-hour day at workbenches in tank, aircraft and munitions factories.

Representing such ancient names as the Duke of Ruthland, Earl Wharncliffe, the Duke of Marlborough and the Duke of Manchester, these women work alongside shop girls, stenographers and milliners, accept their weekly paychecks and ask no special privileges.

The ministry of labor doesn't know the exact number of disguised nobility "doing the heavy" for the duration, but an incomplete list includes Lady Louise Montagu, 33, daughter of the Duke of Manchester; Lady Ursula Manners, 25; Countess Wharncliffe; the Hon. Betty Askwith, daughter of Baron Askwith; Lady Ellen Lena Ewing, 64, widow of Sir Alfred Ewing, former president of the British Association, and Lady Sarah Spencer Churchill, 20, eldest daughter of the Duke of Marlborough.

Lady Montagu, dark-haired sportswoman, who learned her way around machinery when she was a racing car driver and airplane pilot, works in a London tool factory. Her mother was Helena Zimmerman, Cincinnati, Ohio, daughter of Eugene Zimmerman, railway magnate.

"I don't see why we should have any flag waving or do any shouting because we happen to have titles in front of our names," Lady Montagu said. "I like machinery and decided this is the best place for me."

She now is one of the best skilled workers in the shop. For 4 pounds 16 shillings weekly she finishes patterns for manufacture of bullets. She is billeted with other women employes and, like them, works 11 hours a day, six days a week, two weeks on the day shift and two weeks at night.

Lady Montagu, whose family owns Kimbrolton Castle and some 4000 acres in Hertfordshire and one of England's finest private art collections, wiped her grimy hands and pointed to a precision grinder, "made in Providence, R. I., and one of the finest machines I know. We also have other American equipment, including lathes from South Bend, Ind."

Lady Ursula Manners works in an aircraft factory in Northmidlands. Countess Wharncliffe inherited an aircraft factory from her husband, worked her way up from the benches and now runs the shop. Betty Askwith works in a scientific instrument factory, and Lady Ewing is a precision tool maker. Lady Sarah Spencer Churchill leaves her home, Blenheim Castle, early every morning for a tool worker's job in a London motor works.

Totalitarianism Lacks Sanity, Says Bishop Corrigan

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the Catholic University of America, asserted today that "a sane government can never be founded on totalitarianism."

"If the thinking of dictators were characterized by sanity," he declared in an address broadcast by C. B. S., "nations would not be engaged in a second World War.

"There would be due regard for the dignity of every human person. There would be no racial or religious persecutions. The annals of countries would not be disgraced by brutal murders. In a word, the reign of reason would prevail and not the tyranny of physical force, employing every destructive device. Right reason would insist that inventions should be made to serve man, to contribute to his comfort—not to destroy him with ruthless injustice.

"The unwarranted assumption of power and the contniuance of tyrannous government by unreasonable and godless dictators necessarily mean the suppression of all freedoms—the personal freedom given to every individual, the freedom of the family, the freedom of religion, which are a divine heritage; the freedom of the press, the freedom of speech and radio, the freedom of assembly, and the freedom of education.

"TEXAS NIGHT" will be celebrated in the Metronome Room on Wednesday evening with Senator Tom Connolly as the guest of honor, while Texan Maestro Layton Bailey will lead the rodeo of fun. Layton is a Texan from away back. His grandfather, now a hale old gent of 93, was one of the original Texan pioneers, and the Bailey progeny is one of Texas' largest and leading clans. Layton's father is the secretary-treasurer of Southern Methodist University, where Layton first got the idea that leading a band would be a relaxation from cramming for exams . . . "The Eyes of Texas" will be the theme song for "Texas Night," but the Bailey band will also trot out many another Texan melody. There'll be souvenirs, decorations a la "Lone Star." Even if you aren't a Texan you'll enjoy being an adopted son or daughter of the great Southwest State on "Texas Night."

Fifty-second Street, home of Manhattan's best swing, will bounce right into El Patio this evening in the persons of the Larry Bennett Trio, whose jive will "send" you, whose naughty songs will have you snickering into your Scotch. The Bennetteers have a thousand songs, each better than the other. Pretty Thelma Maher's accordion will resound in interludes, thus giving continuous music to El Patio evenings.

PAGING WASHINGTON'S ANDREWS SISTERS. Beginning Tuesday, November 18, the Neptune Room will stage a six-weeks' search for Washington prototypes of the Andrews Sisters. Girl duos or trios will be invited to appear at the Neptune Room each Tuesday evening. Auditions will be held every Monday at the Lester Piano Co., between 1 and 3 p. m. Groups will then be selected for Neptune Room appearances. Not only will each duo or trio be paid for their Neptune songs, but a truly gorgeous prize is hung up for the winners in the December finals—a week's engagement at the Neptune Room, over WINX and in the stage show at a leading Washington theater. C'mon and harmonize, girls.

MYSTERIOUS MYSTICS ARRIVE. The Casino Royal will present the Mystics in their new revue beginning today. The Mystics positively guarantee to read your mind, so be careful what you're thinking about. Also new will be Dancers Pierre and Renee, verra smooth. The marvelous Marvelettes are held over.

Troika's magnetically beautiful revue is being held over intact. It's a dazzler all the way from the time that bounding little Russ, Karavaeff, starts the ball rolling until Conchita and Larry do their last "Chapenacas" encore.

YOUNG CHINA INTO LOTUS. Jade Ling (the Celestial Lotus) and Ching Wan, who head the new "Musical Capers" show beginning at the Lotus today, are splendid representatives of the talents of Young China. Jade Ling danced at the New York's World Fair for the two years of its existence. Ching Wan has appeared at numberless benefits for the Chinese cause, is the only performer in the world doing the dangerous "Spear Dance." His "Ribbon Dance" is a Chinese classic centuries old, symbolical of the awakening of spring . . . New, too, at Lotus are Victor and Ruth, daredevil roller skaters.

CAPPELA AND PATRICIA, now stepping mazurka mazes in the Shoreham's Blue Room. In upper picture, Layton Bailey, who'll give the "Lone Star" musical touch to "Texas night" in the Metronome Room Wednesday

Violinist Jane Marlow, of Restaurant "823," has just become engaged to lawyer Charlie Hyde, is wearing a solitaire of the approximate size and brightness of a flashlight bulb. This is the nicest news of the month.

PAUL YOUNG'S PRESENTS Al Stone, premier comedy emcee, and Pearl Williams, who mixes her songs with sugar 'n spice, tomorrow eve. Also in the new lineup will be "Honey" Cole, golden-skinned dancing star direct from the Roxy Theater; Muriel Moore, blonde tap stepper, and Helene Standish, svelte warbler . . . Tonight's your last chance to laugh at that irrepressible ad libber, Gene Baylos, to listen to the symphonic harmonica of Paul Rich and the succulent piano harmonies of De Lloyd McKaye. They'll all be off to join New York revues after tonight's show.

AT BURT'S TRANSLUX. Walker Colston, national commander of the Rainbow Division of the 1918 A. E. F., and Mrs. Colston entertaining at dinner before heading for the "Ice Follies" . . . Fred Shawn and Ross Filion, of N. B. C., discussing tests for Tommy Johnson's broadcasts . . . Eileen O'Neill chortling those dizzy new lyrics to "Darktown Strutters' Ball," being rewarded with hearty hand-clapping.

"NANIGO SONGS" are an exotic specialty of the Jack Fernandez rumba band at the Versailles. Nanigo is the Cuban equivalent for voodoo and all nanigo songs are vocal incantations to heathen gods. There's 'Babalu," a prayer to the god of death for a favor due the released soul; "Bruca Manigua," a slave's plea to the god of pity; "Tabu," addressed to the god of love. All of these will positively make your vertebrae do a rumba.

The Russian revue at the new Balalaika is a flaming brochette of richly flavored melody, whirling dances, rare comedy. Outstanding are Vova Bajon's girl and soldier skit and the "Mechanical Age," a study in mechanistic musical harmonies.

FACES AROUND PLACES. Viking. The gay party from the British Air Commission that had such a stupendous time at the Viking opening. They started the conga line, which soon included everybody on the dance floor . . . Mayflower Lounge. Bob Considine with Bob Rodenberg, now one of the town's proudest new poppas. Price Administrator Leon Henderson waltzing with great eclat . . . Lounge Riviera. Isabel and Jane Badger, the very pretty daughters of Capt. Badger, of the U. S. S. Carolina. Joe Brookhart, son of former Senator Smith Brookhart. Patricia Prochnik, blonde and sweet. We hear she'll soon be singing in the Pall Mall Room. . . . Cafe Caprice. The Belgian Ambassador, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, apparently enjoying a spot of Hawaiian tuneage by Don Carper's Five . . . Cosmos Room. That Saturday afternoon college crowd, a panorama of what the college girl is wearing this season . . . Plymouth. A group of labor conciliators trying to figure out the right answers to union demands . . . Rainbow Room. A table full of labor men apparently trying to figure the right answers to labor conciliators.

NIGHT SPOT MOVIES. Boulevard Farms has a smart and promising new stunt—the showing of comic movie shorts to their patrons on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The comedies are of the current crop, represent a sifting of the sure-fire laugh hits.

WHAT THE PUBLIC LIKES. The teasing arrangement of "Tea For Two" pianoed in Mayfair by Ken Foy, of Paul Kain's Five . . . Jimmy Summerville's group of "Irish Specials" in the Hi Hat . . . The uproarious "Way Down South" being rolled out by the "Three Loose Nuts" in the Brown Derby . . . The "Spanish jitterbug" music played by the Copocabana's rumba band. . . . That gorgeous appetizer bar at O'Donnell's Farmhouse. Makes you hungry to look at it . . . The luncheon music of Sasha and Raion at the Madrillon. Smooth and light as a bubble . . . The quietude, excellent sea food and fine view of the Potomac at Hogate's.

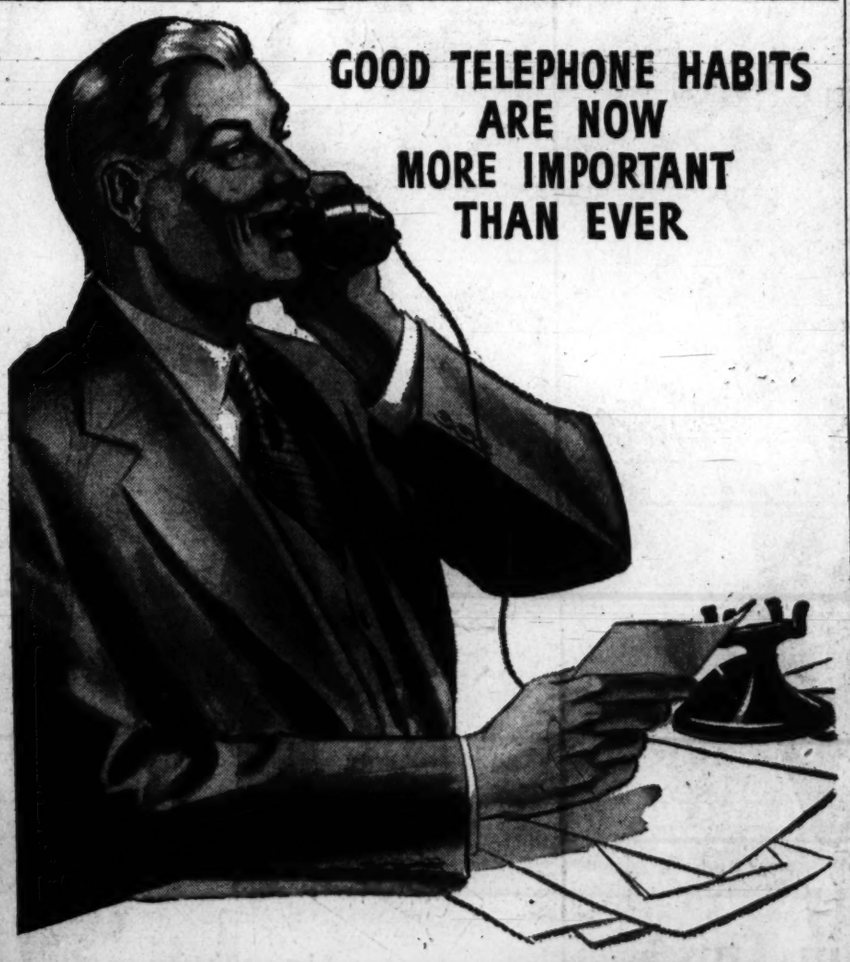
GOOD TELEPHONE HABITS ARE NOW MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER


HAVE YOU NOTICED how often courtesy seems to go hand in hand with efficiency? Take the simple matter of talking over the telephone. Chances are the people to whom you most enjoy talking are those who
- answer promptly when you call . . .
- give their names at once when they answer . . .
- speak clearly and naturally all through the talk . . .
- and when the conversation ends, hang up gently.

Right now, when times are tense, good telephone habits are probably more important than ever. We've got a big job to do and the thoughtful and courteous use of the telephone helps us all to do it faster and better.

President Isn't Expected to Reply to Hitler

By Frank L. Kluckhohn

Copyright by the New York Times

President Roosevelt will speak at Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow at the Armistice Day ceremony, but aides said yesterday it was extremely unlikely that he would reply to Adolf Hitler's speech yesterday in Munich.

In circles close to the White House, Hitler's speech was regarded as "wild." It was felt to be contradictory on vital points even though, in its unusually direct references to the United States, it was believed to reflect a growing concern over this country's huge armaments program and over American naval participation in providing protection for safe delivery of aid.

In some diplomatic quarters it was thought that Hitler's "beer hall" speech marked an attempt to influence the vote in the House on the Senate amendment to remove combat zone restrictions in the Neutrality Act. In others it was believed Hitler was trying to clear himself before the German people for culpability in the undeclared naval warfare in the Atlantic.

It was noted here that Hitler did not mention such sinkings as those of the merchant ships Robin Moor and Lehigh in attempting to place the blame upon the United States for warfare in the Atlantic. Regarded as a direct contradiction in his speech, moreover, was Hitler's statement that ships carrying war materials "will be torpedoed" and his assertion that German submarine commanders were instructed to fire upon an American ship only if the American fires first.

Reports received by the President before Friday and Saturday's heavy bombings of Berlin and other German points indicated that German morale is somewhat shaken by the prospects of years of fighting. Hitler's remark that Germany and Europe could be defended despite American "threats and plans for gigantic armaments" was therefore read with interest.

So, too, was his assertion that he was not taking Leningrad by frontal attack because it eventually would fall by siege, which was felt here to be quite different from his attitude before Warsaw in the early stages of this war. That the Reichsfuehrer found it necessary to tell his people that "I will not sacrifice one more man than necessary" was regarded as significant.

President Roosevelt, informed officials say, has more direct evidence of Nazi designs on this continent than the map he announced he had showing a German plan for conquest. He is represented as prepared to release information concerning this additional evidence at an opportune time.

On the question of ending strikes hampering production of armaments, however, the situation is quite different, and the disposition here is to believe this is the foremost immediate problem at the White House. Congressional pressure for antistrike legislation continues to be strong and new labor tie-ups looming on the railroads and in other fields are received by many Congressmen as proof that legislative action is needed. Hitler's reference yesterday to the superior man-power of Nazi-dominated Europe to that of the United States was widely regarded here as pertinent, since many even in official circles hold that only American superiority in machines and the trained men to operate them can compensate for this gap.

The President is expected to devote personal time this week to the Far Eastern problem and to confer with Saburo Kurusu, Japan's special envoy, shortly after his arrival here this week.

Gideons Close Bible Session At Dedication

The Holy Word is more potent for individual and international salvation than any material weapons, declared A. E. Lewis yesterday, as he led dedication of 2¼ tons of Bibles.

Lewis, Euclaire, Wis., business man and president of Gideons International, addressed a service at the Washington Hotel climaxing a two-day local rally of the organization that distributes Bibles to hotels, hospitals, schools, jails, camps and other places.

He stood near a 7 by 6-foot stack of 500 Bibles, with the books forming a huge cross in the center. They were part of 2070 Bible being distributed to local hotels and institutions as folows:

Ambassador Hotel, 200; Continental, 30; Hamilton, 60; Lee-Sheraton, 200; Washington, 400; Willard, 100; Raleigh, 230; Burlington, 200; Dodge, 100; Harrington, 300; New Colonial, 75, and local jails, 380.

Reviewing the work of the Gideons, Lewis said that since their organization 42 years ago by three traveling men in Janesville, Wis., they had distributed 1,900,000 Bibles in the United States and Canada. One million more probably will be given out this year, he predicted.

He praised cooperation of service chaplains in the work of distributing pocket testaments to soldiers, sailors and marines, pointing out that testaments recently issued bear a message from President Roosevelt on the fly-leaf.

Representatives of the Gideons were guest speakers in several local and nearby pulpits yesterday, and also addressed a dinner Saturday at the Ebbitt Hotel.

The Gideons' official name is Christian Commercial Men's Association.

Entire Nation Is Open to Air Attack, First Lady Warns

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking on her regular weekly commercially sponsored radio program tonight in her role as assistant director of civilian defense, discussed plans for enlisting the efforts of ordinary citizens —"a man in business in Des Moines or a housewife in Wichita"—in the national defense program.

Reminding her Nation-wide audience that "we can be reached in any part of this country by air attack launched from a conquered country in this hemisphere, or from an island that is near enough to serve as an enemy base," Mrs. Roosevelt asserted: "In a country as great as ours, to achieve total defense, every individual must feel responsible for defense. Defense must be built in every community and gradually grow and grow until the country as a whole is impregnable."

Mrs. Roosevelt said that the Office of Civilian Defense would work closely with the State and local defense councils and the volunteer bureaus which "will be etsablished, we hope, wherever possible." The bureaus, Mrs. Roosevelt said, would have three objectives: the enrollment of citizens who wish to play a part in civilian defense; the compiling of a list of all agencies in the vicinity, governmental and private, which could train citizens for civilian defense work, and the ascertaining of local needs and the enlistment of volunteers to meet them.

At the outset of the program, Mrs. Roosevelt gave the reason why Armistice Day had been chosen as the opening day of National Defense Week.

"On November 11, 1918," she said, "we thought we had ended a war which would lay the basis for peace in the future. Today, we realize that we were wrong and that we have to build up our defense, both military and civilian, because we are living in a world which is almost completely involved in a war. It is fitting, therefore, that on this day when we honor the people who gave their lives in the hope that there would be no more war, we should consider our total defense to defeat those who have brought us to another world war. The new peace we make must carry the seeds which will flower into permanent peace."

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke under the sponsorship of the Pan-American Coffee Bureau.

Quezon Expected To Be Elected

Manila (Monday), Nov. 10 (AP).—The Philippine national election campaign ended today with general belief that President Manuel Quezon, the Commonwealth's political strong man, would win reelection in tomorrow's ballotting.

Six other presidential candidates were conceded only the slimmest of chances against Quezon, nominee of the powerful Nacionalista Party.

Sergio Osmena, vice president and veteran Cebu politician, is on the Nacionalista ballot for reelection.

Other candidates for president are: Juan Sumulong, popular front right wing; Hilario Camino Moncado, modernist; Calerino Tiongco, of the outlawed Radical Sakdal Party now called the Ganaps; Mrs. Veronica Miciano, independent, and Ernesto Tupaz Belleza and Hermogenes Dumpit, neither with party affiliation.

Pedro Abad Santos, Socialist Party, withdrew his candidacy.

The two million registered voters also will be asked to name 24 Senators at large, eight each for two, four and six-year terms, and 98 members of the House of Representatives from districts based on population. They will form the new Congress which will succeed the unicameral General Assembly. The Congress is expected to be overwhelmingly Nacionalista.

Yale Getting Ready to Meet Strike Today

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 9.—Yale University made ready today to meet a strike threat by her maintenance forces that appeared likely to seriously inconvenience the entire student body if not disrupt the everyday routine of the institution.

John J. Clark, a representative of the United Construction Workers Organizing Committee of the C. I. O., has served notice on the university that a 9 a. m. tomorrow, in accordance with a vote taken recently, janitors, maids, campus cops and mechanical maintenance crews would walk out in a dispute over a union shop.

A university spokesman said that a representative of the State mediation and arbitration board would meet with interested parties tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., 90 minutes after Clark said the Yale University Employes Local, No. 142, would quit work and form a picket line around the university and the University Club in New York City.

"We are going to make every reasonable effort to give those employes who want to work a chance to do so," the spokesman said.

In a formal statement last night, the university said that it would endeavor to operate as an obligation to "student and faculty members * * * the 1700 other employes who want to work, and the public."

University officials declined to discuss what preparations were being made to cope with any possible emergency that might arise, but well-informed sources said that masters of the various colleges were instructing students along those lines and passing out candles to be used in the absence of electric lights.

Choose Democracy Or Refrigerators, Nelson Demands

New York, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Donald M. Nelson, Executive Director, Supply priorities and Allocations Board, said tonight, "If we don't learn to do without refrigerators and silk stockings, we'll be faced with doing without the basic rights of democracy."

Nelson spoke on the opening program of "Keep 'Em Rolling," first of a radio network series sponsored by the Office of Emergency Management.

"What worries me is the inability of many, many people to realize the changes we must be prepared for," Nelson said.

"Suppose you are planning to build a house. I wouldn't if I were you, because we need the steel and copper you'd use. Your needs are important, but at this moment they aren't as important as winning the race of production.

"It sounds like a far cry from refrigerators to battleships, but it is a desperate cry for metal."

Senators Bitter in Radio Forum On U. S. Unity or Lack of It

Bitter words hurled back and forth in a radio debate last night b two leading isolationists and two pro-Administration Senators brought out the charge by one of the isolationists that "Winston Churchill's word is no better than Hitler's, and both of them will break their word when it suits them."

Making the charge was Senator D. Worth Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, who, joined by Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, debated the question, "Are the United States united?" with Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, and Senator Albert B. (Happy) Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky.

600 Hear Debate

The debate, nationally broadcast from the Shoreham Hotel, was witnessed by a capacity audience of more than 600 persons. Theodore Granik was moderator.

In challenging the British Prime Minister's faith, Senator Clark stated, "Look at India, look palestine. There's your answer. Our ancestors left Europe to escape what will be eternal over there."

Interrupting him, Senator Chandler roared, "What do you expect us to do, ignore Hitler? First we'll let him run us out of Iceland, then Greenland, then Newfoundland. Finally he'll run us and you out of Idaho and North Dakota, Senator."

Senator Nye, asserting that there is no unity in the Nation, claimed that it is not defense "to keep our own military forces wanting for machines and tools, while supplying them at our own expense to powers who may be turned against us some day."

Doubts Effect on United States

He said that he doubted very much if a change of order in Europe would affect us very much. Nye admitted however, that if Britain lost, the United States would require greater defenses.

"I want England to win, even though the only acts resembling conquest through hundreds of years have come from Britain," he said.

Shaking a finger at Nye, Senator Hatch retorted, "We've seen you mistaken as many times as any man in the United States. We're not so sure of your beliefs."

The Senator from New Mexico, earlier in the debate, admitted that "there is a lack of unity in this country. "In fact," he added, "this Nation is being rendered a disservice tonight in this forum by having to discuss such a matter.

Follow President, Hatch Urges

"You are the ones that are making that disunity," he told the two Republicans, "and it is your duty in this great crisis to follow the leadership of our President and the majority of the Congress who represent the will of the people."

Senator Chandler broke in at this point to ask, "Who is going to run this country, anyhow? Is it to be Lindbergh, Nye and Wheeler, or is it to be the President and Mr. Hull? I know and we all know who the people want to run the Government."

The Kentucky Senator quoted the Gallup Poll as proof that a majority of the Nation favored the Administration's foreign policy.

In reply, Senator Clark warned Chandler that he "is being duped and cheated by the English. I don't want them making a sucker out of you."

More power to you on the FEEL FIT Program

...with 2 meals daily you drink a glass of Milk

Nobody ever outgrows the need for plenty of milk in the daily diet.

In fact, the more folks know about maintaining peak health, the more closely they stick to the FEEL FIT Program: Which means a full glass of good rich milk with two meals every day!

Why should you follow this program? Science finds that milk provides more essential elements the body needs than does almost any other food.

Providing your general health is normal, the FEEL FIT Program can mean more power to you. More vitality. A higher level of health. Steadier nerves.

When you start on the FEEL FIT Program, it's a good idea to choose Lucerne Grade A Milk. Because Lucerne Grade A is always pure, always richer than the law requires. Because you get Lucerne Milk country fresh... in a modern, more convenient container. With no bottle deposits to pay.

And because we make you a money back guarantee that you cannot buy — at any price — a purer, more delicious Grade A milk!

What's more, you save money on every quart of Lucerne Grade A. You see, no home-delivery charge is included in the price of Lucerne Milk at Safeway.

LUCERNE MILK

Benefits science finds in milk

BUILDS STAMINA—Milk provides protein in a form most usuable by the body for repair of tissues and muscles. And "protective" vitamin A which helps maintain normal eyesight and health of the skin; helps strengthen resistance of the body.

"TONES" THE SYSTEM—Milk contains thiamine (vitamin B1) which combats nervousness, irritability and fatigue; as well as riboflavin (vitamin B2) which is essential to the maintenance of positive and buoyant health. Milk also helps maintain the normal alkalinity of the blood.

AIDS WEIGHT CONTROL—Milk contains so many health-protective elements it should be a foundation food in the weight control diet. Milk keeps up body strength and energy while you cut down on heavy, more fattening foods.

PROMOTES SOUND TEETH AND BONES—Milk furnishes an abundant supply of calcium and a helpful supply of phosphorus, vital food minerals the body needs for strong teeth and bone structure. Calcium is also necessary for steady working of the heart and for normal muscular activity.

ARMY life? Why it's great.

That's the word from selectees who are drifting back into town to take up civilian pursuits where they left off when Uncle Sam called them.

"No regrets" is the almost unanimous verdict of these men, released from the service under legislation authorizing discharge of those over 28.

"In fact," remarked one of them, John Blake, 33, of 1725 Lanier Place Northwest, "I didn't know whether I was happy or sad when I was notified of my release."

Blake left a job as purchasing agent for Washington Properties, Inc., operators of the Wardman Park and Carlton Hotels, to answer the call to arms. Two and one-half months at Fort Meade, Md., took 35 pounds of excess weight from his 220-pound frame. Then, because of his experience in purchasing, he was transferred to Third Corps Area Headquarters in Baltimore, where he did inspection work in the Army marketing center.

CHARLES A. BONO
Loses fat, gains muscle

With a total of four months' service he had been promoted to corporal and approved for further promotion to sergeant.

Then, on coming back to his old job, he was immediately promoted to assistant to the president, Thomas D. Curson.

"I feel 200 per cent better," Blake declared. "And I'm charged with ambition."

Several of the selectees felt their service in the Army had given them a new outlook on life.

WALTER Maurits Okerlund, 34, of 1727 P Street Northwest, couldn't quite define the change, he just "felt different" on returning to his job as observer at the Weather Bureau, Twenty-fifth and M Streets Northwest.

"It gave me something I didn't have before," he said.

Okerlund, tall and wiry, gained seven needed pounds in four and one-half months at Bolling Field.

BACK at work as an interior decorator at Colony House, Connecticut Avenue furniture store, Michael Francis Dunn, 30, of 1730 H Street Northwest, felt his four months at Fort Bragg, N. C., had "made for a more abundant life."

It gave him an awareness of what is going on in the world at war, he explained.

He added: "All in all, it was the best vacation I ever had." Dunn gained 10 pounds.

OLLIE D. Brookman, 36, of 3017 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest, flexed a powerful arm muscle and declared:

"I've got a muscle like a horse—eight months at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., did it. I'm harder and tougher. And I weigh 186 pounds as against 165 when I went in."

Brookman is taking it easy for a few days before resuming operation of a Capital Transit bus.

HIS four months at Camp Lee, Va., made him realize that in times of national emergency every man must put his personal desires and ambitions in the background, said Charles A. Bono, 32, of 1314 Decatur Street Northwest.

"You find out the state has a primary claim on a man and individual hopes and ambitions are secondary," explained Bono, who has doffed his Army uniform to don again the uniform of a guard at the Smithsonian Institution.

MICHAEL F. DUNN
"Best vacation I ever had"

Bono said he "lost 4 pounds of excess fat and gained back 8 pounds of muscle."

BACK as manager of the Executive Pharmacy, 909 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, Harry Milman, 29, of 4628 Ninth Street Northwest, remarked that his six and one-half months at Fort Bliss, Tex., comprised "an expensive vacation."

But it had one advantage, at least.

"My feet feel better," he said.

By Robert Tate Allan

WHILE church school children, members of the congregation and others lined the edge of the foundation site, Mrs. Eugene Magruder yesterday morning turned first earth for a $38,500 addition to Bethesda (Southern) Presbyterian Church, Wilson Lane and Clarendon Road.

Mrs. Magruder, whose loyal attendance for 57 years makes her the oldest member in point of service, was followed in the "spading" by Walter E. Perry, oldest elder in point of service; Albert E. Rose, church school superintendent and general building committee chairman; the Rev. James S. Albertson, pastor, and the following:

Frank A. Bennett, chairman of the board of deacons; G. Wady Imirie, chairman of the board of trustees; Mrs. James L. Thomas, president of the Woman's Auxiliary; J. William Jobes, secretary-treasurer of the Men's Club; J. Arthur Wood, jr., president of the Pioneers' organization, and William B. Magruder, president of the Senior Young People's group.

THE actual ground-breaking ceremonies began after the Sunday school services with a procession led by church school children, followed by young people, representatives of various congregational groups, the vested choir, Boy Scouts and others.

They marched to the site while an instrumental trio played "Onward Christian Soldiers" from the door of the present church school building. The musicians were Jack Stevens, cornet; Charles Wales, clarinet, and Baxter Smith, drum.

THE program opened with a hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," after which the Rev. Mr. Albertson asked Divine blessings on the project, and later gave the benediction.

The program was followed by a more formal ceremony at the 11 o'clock worship services in the church auditorium, where Mr. Albertson spoke on "A Great Task and Its Accomplishment."

The new building project is a feature of the "Church Appreciation" program now under way in the congregation.

The Canary Is a Funny Bird—He Likes His Nip

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

AN astounding bird is the canary.

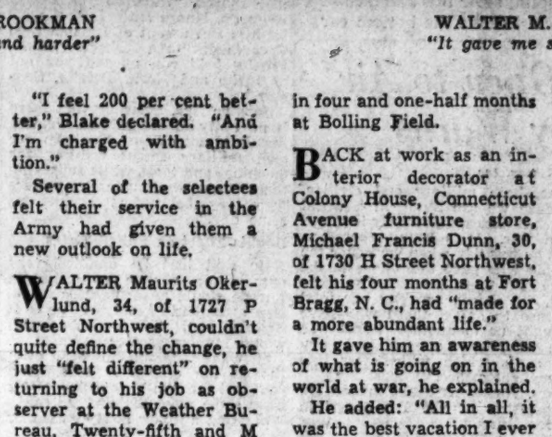
It will take and like a little nip against bodily ailments, must have exactly 12 feathers in its tail to be perfect; it teaches its owner a profound patience and the will to win or lose, and if you ever acquire one or two you're liable soon to have anywhere from 60 to 100. This last involves, not the facts of mating, but a much more subtle thing.

Henry Dvorak, a mechanic, of Astoria, Long Island, whose Border Fancy had the right curve to the skull, the right kind of thighs, feathers, beak, feet and exactly 12 feathers in its tail and won best bird award in the National Capital Canary Show which closed yesterday at Odd Fellows Temple, told how he got his first bird; how he now has 67; why it's hard to have one and not to have 100.



Henry Dvorak and His Border Fancy

DVORAK merely visited a canary show in New York. Then he bought a canary. What transpired certainly was what happened to E. M. Jameson, of 1237 W Street Southeast, Anacostia, who 20 years ago was given a canary and now has 115. As Dvorak said, "I just became interested."

But Jameson, who works in the Navy Yard, discovered his bird wouldn't sing. Bedeviled by this, he went out and got another. Then he made a discovery: that his first bird was a female. Female canaries are not vocal until very late in life. These facts captured his interest, so that he got still another. Then the mysteries of birth and feather and cross-breeding moved him. To explore these thoroughly, requires many canaries.

And it must have been so with Dvorak. As he looked on his prize winner yesterday, he observed in victory that "you have to be a sport with canaries, taking the bitter with the sweet."

THIS undoubtedly was true, for a lady near him had just remarked that somebody had sold her a $40 bird that wasn't worth a cent. But win or lose, Dvorak would have kept his poise, it was plain, because the canary itself teaches profound patience. There were nearly 700 in the cages, and all singing in defeat to Dvorak's bird.

A good fancier reacts instantly to his bird's moods and the canary is an excellent loser. So all the exhibitors were pleasant, they congratulated Dvorak and the show wound up its three-day stand, with Dvorak telling his prize bird that "you ought to feel pretty good about this."

He divulged another fact also. It was that the best way on earth to keep a bird from taking sick in sudden changes of climate—such as between Astoria and Washington—is to give it a snort of whisky.

American Football Players 'Move With Ballet Grace'

Zina Ouzarova

By Jay Walz

BALLET Dancer Zina Ouzarova, whose Russian name is matched by both her looks and accent, arrived in Washington yesterday with great hopes for the American ballet and the American boy.

"He is beautiful," she exclaimed, her eyes flashing. "I saw him a week ago on the football field—what was it, Cornell against Columbia? He moves with such grace—just like a ballet dancer."

Ouzarova (pronounced o-CZAR-ova) would like to place some of this beauty and grace on the dancing stage, because that will mean, in the long run, more beauty and grace for the world.

"TAKE your American girls," she said. "They are very beautiful, too. But that is not all. If they will learn the ballet they will act with poise, and their postures will be better . . . And they will be healthy."

As a matter of fact, the career that has sent the ballerina dancing through the capitals of Europe and South America was launched because of her poor health.

"I was a little girl in Constantinople after the revolution in Russia. I was weak, and some one sent me to a dancing teacher for strength. That I became a ballet dancer was a surprise to all my people!"

Ouzarova has never been with the famous Russian ballet company, although she says an uncle, Sergius Volkonsky, sponsored the Russian ballet art as a director of Imperial theaters at St. Petersburg. She was, she said, managing her own "Ballet Ouzaroff" at the Paris "Champs Elysees" 10 years ago, and for several seasons she was prima ballerina at the Paris Grand Opera.

TODAY she thinks of herself as a dance recitalist, with a repertoire that runs from the classical ballet to the modern. She came to America first as a "visitor" from France.

"This time I am an immigrant," she said, pronouncing the word carefully and proudly, "here to stay. And I'll do anything for the ballet—the American ballet."

Ouzarova, who entered the United States from Montreal, Canada, two weeks ago, plans to live in Washington. At present she is with friends in Arlington, Va.

Precampaign Chest Meeting Set for Today

With representatives from Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia attending, a precampaign Community Chest mass meeting of volunteers will be held at a luncheon in the Hotel Mayflower today.

The Rev. John J. Reilly, director of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, will speak. Presiding will be John A. Reilly, chairman of the Metropolitan Unit.

Among those attending will be area chairmen who will head solicitation in the geographical areas into which the city and counties are divided for purposes of reaching householders and small business firms with the Community Chest appeal. Other leaders expected will include division chairman and team captains.

Large representative groups are planning to attend from Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, of which John B. Diamond and Dr. H. C. Byrd are chairmen, respectively.

At the mass meeting the Montgomery County areas expected to have important representation are the Chevy Chase area, of which Mrs. George M. Ferris is chairman; Silver Spring-Takoma area, Bladen J. Darneille, chairman; Bethesda area, Mrs. B. Peyton Whelan, chairman, and Rockville and Northwest area, Thomas C. Kelly, chairman. Sponsoring organizations taking an active part in the coming Chest campaign include the Takoma Park Junior Women's Club, the Rotary Club of Silver Spring, the Lions Club of Silver Spring, and the Men's Class of the Grace Episcopal Church.

Among leading Washington organizations lending their sponsorship are the Marietta Park Women's Club, Parkview Women's Club, and Takoma Park Citizens Association.

RAF Again Pounds Italy and Germany

Axis losses for the same period, exclusive of the Russian Front, were put at only 19 by the ministry. One Axis plane was shot down over Britain, seven in the Middle East and the remainder over Europe.

The air ministry reported Essen and other industrial towns in western Germany were strongly attacked, and that at Essen heavy explosions were followed by fires.

The fliers told of a great concentration of searchlights at Essen, with as many as 80 crowded into a group to form a single cone of light to protect Germany's all-important war factories.

Successful attacks also were declared to have been made on the German-occupied Channel ports of Ostend, in Belgium, and Dunkerque, in France, and on Ruesseldorf, among other cities of the Rhineland.

These raids continued an attack begun Saturday morning with the heaviest night raid of the war against Germany.

The bombing of Naples, which has been attacked frequently before, was reported to have the double purpose of striking at civilian morale and smashing industrial plants and shipping facilities which are important in the supplying of the Axis armies in North Africa.

Naples Poorly Prepared

Credence is given in London to reports that in the past Naples was prepared poorly for air attack, with inadequate antiaircraft defenses and raid shelters.

The R. A. F. reported that despite heavy clouds over Bengasi, "many bombs were dropped in the vicinity of Cathedral Mole." Many other Axis north and east African points were bombed, and a convoy in the Mediterranean was attacked, the R. A. F. said.

The British announced at Cairo that they raided the southern Italian Port of Brindisi Friday night, a raid in which, the Italian high command said yesterday, 40 persons were killed and 80 injured.

The Middle East command said a "strong formation" of R. A. F. bombers attacked Brindisi objectives, hit an aircraft factory and caused many fires. Other Cairo sources said the attack lasted for 3½ hours in clear moonlight.

The Axis sent a few enemy aircraft over Britain last night, the government said, and dropped bombs at a small number of places on the English coast, causing damage and some casualties in the southeast and northeast. An Egyptian communique said Axis warplanes raided the Suez Canal area again in the early morning, damaging property, but causing no casualties.

Alexandria Cast For Play Chosen

As the result of competitive tryouts held last week at the George Mason School, the Alexandria Little Theater has announced the cast for its next production, "The Torchbearers," to be presented at the Lyceum on December 4 and 5. Capt. Charles F. Knowlton has been named director for the three-act play.

Members of the cast, who will begin immediate rehearsals, are William F. Todd, Miss Marion Brown-Serman, Mrs. W. F. Dodd, Gladys Hayes, Louis M. Faulkner, Mrs. Ethel Parker, Frances Wilson, Thomas Trevett, Thomas Dellacioppa, J. W. Mann, Frederica Young and Charles Immler.

preparing to follow the German example, for what is a request today will swiftly and surely become a command tomorrow.

Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, a nondenominational weekly, said the sermon outline was an insult and added in a statement:

"Hitler and Goebbels never went further. Who would have imagined that an agency of the American Government would go so far as to tell preachers what to preach and actually to provide the outline of a model sermon for them to follow? Mayor LaGuardia's 'request' will soon grow to a demand."

Protestant Editor Disagrees

Kenneth Leslie, editor of the Protestant Digest, approved the step and told the mayor in a letter:

"To resent the Civilian Defense chief's suggestion is simply another in a long list of artificial issues raised for the purpose of hamstringing every effort to strengthen American democratic morale.

"I am confident that the vast majority of sincere lovers of democracy everywhere will not be taken in by such a specious plea which they will understand as a mere camouflage for obstructionist tactics."

Winchester Organizes To Fight Pollution

Winchester, Va., Nov. 9.—Determined to obtain action, Frederick and Clarke County farmers whose property adjoins Abrams Creek and the Opequon have formed an organization for the purpose of fighting pollution of the two streams.

Dr. Edwin C. Yost, of Winchester, is chairman; J. M. Fishpaw, vice chairman; A. C. Haines, secretary, and Lewis Pidgeon, treasurer. Most of the alleged pollution is said to originate in and near Winchester. Plans are being made to conduct members of council and of the county boards of supervisors on an inspection trip along both streams.

British Destroy 11 Axis Craft In Convoy

supply ships on its way out of that Italian port, the admiralty account stated. Italian destroyers coursed alongside them.

The scout planes, Martin Aircraft—or Marylands, as the British call them—notified their command and a British patrolling force consisting of the cruisers Aurora and Penelope, 5000 tons each, and the destroyers Lance and Lively, 1920 tons each, was ordered to intercept. That was Saturday afternoon.

"This force, under the command of Capt. Agnew, made contact with the enemy about 1 a. m. Sunday," the admiralty account continued.

"It then found that the large convoy of eight ships escorted by destroyers was being joined by another convoy of two supply ships escorted by two destroyers. The operation was being covered by two powerful 10,000-ton, 8-inch-gun cruisers of the Trento class.

"Despite the disparity of the force, Capt. Agnew immediately engaged."

Janes Fighting Ships, authoritative naval manual, lists only two Italian ships of the Trento class, the powerful Trento and Trieste, with eight 8-inch guns described as "remarkably powerful weapons with exceptional range."

In addition, these ships have 12 3.9-inch guns and 8 torpedo tubs, and are capable of a speed of 35 knots.

Against this the British cruisers were relatively little craft, with only six 6-inch guns and six torpedo tubes, capable of making only 32 knots.

"Nine of the 10 enemy supply ships were set on fire and sunk," the communique went on. "One of these was an ammunition ship which blew up. The tenth enemy supply ship, a laden tanker of about 10,000 tons, was left blazing furiously.

"This ship was seen still burning 10 hours later and it is considered she was a total loss.

"Of the Italian warships, one destroyer was sunk and at least one other was seriously damaged. One destroyer was seen to be in tow today."

It was while the British were withdrawing from the scene of the attack that torpedo planes swooped down on them but, as the Admiralty said, "the attack was ineffective

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The German radio in a broacast heard today by C. B. S. said official circles in Rome denied "British reports about allegedly heavy Italian shipping losses in the Mediteranean."

"At the same time," the radio added, "German sources state that British reports on German shipping losses in the North Sea and in the Atlantic don't prove right."

"Robert and I have gone to the north woods to look for excitement and Indians. Don't worry about us. We will get along. If we don't we will be back. P. S. Will probably write."

The two youngsters are wrapped up in Indian lore and spend most of their spare time reading about the various tribes and making moccasins, tribal headdresses and bows and arrows, their parents said. At school they have put on several Indian plays.

Disappearance of the youngsters caused a general police lookout from Maine to Florida.

velt's recent warning that "we must work longer hours to produce the munitions required to defeat Hitler."

The War Department press office informed The Post yesterday that "routine" work of the department will not be done tomorrow "because of the legal holiday." A "duty" office will remain at work in each division to take care of any emergency that might arise. This is the same arrangement normally made over weekends and other holidays.

At the Navy Department, a press officer said, "it looks like this office is the only one that will be busy."

"Watch to Be Kept"

The customary 24-hour press "watch" will be kept with most other offices closing, he said. An order issued by Secretary Knox closed the Navy and Marine headquarters establishments except for those employes required for "special public reasons."

All nondefense agencies could not be polled, but it was generally understood that most Government business will be halted tomorrow. Some offices admitted a possibility that a few employes would come to work on their own initiative to keep up to date, although none was considered under any official or unofficial compulsion to come to work.

As for OPM, a large percentage of employes are expected to respond willingly to Knudsen's plea.

Day to Pass Virtually Unnoticed in Britain

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—Britain observed Armistice Day on a wartime schedule today, holding brief church services in lieu of the peacetime ceremonies usually held on November 11 to honor the dead of the World War.

This November 11 will be just another workday in factories, offices and in the services. At the request of King George the nation will let Tuesday pass almost unnoticed.

However "Colonel Britton," director of the British Broadcasting Corporation's "V" campaign, in a broadcast Friday called on German-occupied Europe to stage a "Dead March Day" on Armistice Day.

"Walk slowly in memory of our comrades," he urged, "and by walking slowly, slow up the Nazi war machine.

vicinity of Caobang, Dongdang and Langson adjoining Kwangsi Province of China.

Authoritative sources said the Japanese were constructing no fortifications at all along the Chinese frontier and that there were practically no troops near the borders of Tonkin and Laos, the Indo-China territories facing Yunnan Province of China, Burma, and the eastern frontier of Thailand.

The Chinese were taking no chances of a sudden thrust through Yunnan or Kwangsi provinces to cut the Burma Road, however, and were reported on highest authority to have concentrated many of their best troops along the few potential approaches from Indo-China.

Thailand Prepares For Any Emergency

Bangkok, Thailand, Nov. 8 (AP).—A program of nation-wide training in the use of firearms has been instituted to face any possible emergency. Thailand newspapers said all men and women of Thailand were expected to take advantage of this opportunity to safeguard national independence. Provincial governors will direct the training program.

Tokyo, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Japanese press devoted close attention to news dispatches from Burma today, and Nichi Nichi declared Britain was attempting to prevent the country from gaining its independence because of fear of Japan's ambitions.

"The people of Burma should struggle for their independence," said Nichi Nichi, in an apparent reference to London dispatches on the visit there of Premier U Saw. (The premier has expressed dissatisfaction over talks with Prime Minister Churchill on gaining dominion status for Burma.)

Official quarters declined to comment on the possible withdrawal of United States Marines from China, but well-informed Japanese said Japan some time ago suggested to belligerents in the European war that they withdraw their armed forces from China, adding withdrawal of United States forces would be welcomed by the Japanese people in view of the United States' semibelligerency.

Asahi said withdrawal of the marines was rather late since they already had displayed disagreeable behavior on several occasions.

U. of Va. Student Flying For Britain Is Missing

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Douglas Van Buskirk has received word from London that her husband, Flying Officer Douglas Van Buskirk, one of the first Americans to volunteer in the R. C. A. F., is missing from a flying operation over enemy territory November 7.

Mrs. Van Buskirk is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Ahearn, of Ottawa, and her husband left the University of Virginia at the outbreak of war to join the R. C. A. F. His father is Harold Van Buskirk, New York architect, who served in the United States Navy in the last war.

"I TALKED WITH GOD"
(Yes I Did - Actually and Literally)

and as a result of that little talk with God, a strange Power came into my life. After 42 years of horrible, dismal, sickening failure, everything took on a brighter hue. It's fascinating to talk with God, and it can be done very easily once you learn the secret. And when you do—well—there will come into your life the same dynamic Power which came into mine. The shackles of defeat and fear which bound me for years, went a-shimmering — and now? — well, I own control of the largest afternoon daily newspaper in North Idaho. I own the largest office building in my City. I drive two beautiful cars, I own my own home which has a lovely pipe-organ in it, and my family are abundantly provided for after I'm gone. And all this has been made possible because, one day, about twelve years ago, I actually and literally talked with God.

You too may experience that strange mystical Power which comes from talking with God, and when you do, if there is poverty, unrest, unhappiness, ill-health, or material lack in your life, well—this same Power is able to do for you what it did for me. No matter how useless or how helpless your life seems to be — all this can be changed. For this is not a human power I'm talking about—it's a God-Power. And there are no limitations to the God-Power, are there? Of course not. You probably would like to know how you, too, may talk with God, so that this same Power which brought these good things to me, might come into your life too. I have written the strange, almost unbelievable story in two booklets, and I have given away literally millions of copies of them. As a matter of fact, the story has been told in 67 foreign countries, and in every city, town, village and hamlet in America. It has been written up by such outstanding periodicals as Time, Newsweek, Magazine Digest, and scores of other internationally-known publications.

I want to give you these two booklets. I want to give you also illustrated circulars, and copies of letters which tell what is being accomplished all over the world through this new strange Teaching. If you will send me your name and address on a post-card or in a letter, these two booklets will come to you free of charge. This experience may sound unbelievable, but it's true or I wouldn't tell you it was. The address is Dr. Frank B. Robinson, Dept. 264, Moscow, Idaho.

Legislative Trifling

Representative Koppleman charges that his colleagues of the House Banking and Currency Committee deliberately waited until he was out of town to act on certain controversial amendments to the price-control bill. Had he been present, his vote would have prevented several changes. Indeed, it would have defeated an outrageous scheme to let farm prices soar. If Mr. Koppleman's charge is well founded, the committee has indulged in shameful trickery to emasculate one of the most important bills to come before Congress this year.

But why was Mr. Koppleman absent? He admits that he was in Hartford campaigning for friends in a city election. In other words, he was back home playing politics when he should have been giving his whole attention to the vital tasks assigned to him as a national legislator. Obviously part of the blame for these objectionable amendments falls upon his shoulders.

Political maneuvering and trifling on the part of the committee have produced a bill so worthless that it brings denunciations from even the Administration spokesmen who favor a weak type of price-control legislation. In desperation some Representatives will attempt to rewrite the bill through amendments offered on the floor. But, of course, no satisfactory revision of a complicated legislative proposal can be effected by such means. It would likewise be futile to refer the bill back to the warring members of the House committee for revamping. So all hope of getting a really effective price-control program through the House at this time might just as well be abandoned. There remains the hope that the Senate Banking Committee will do a thorough job of overhauling the House bill. This will take considerable time, and there is no expectation that the Senate itself will have an opportunity to pass upon price-control legislation until 1942. When the Senate debate is over, still more time will be required to reconcile House and Senate versions of the bill.

We have had abundant proof that Congress can act quickly on issues of great moment when it chooses to do so. The obstructive tactics used against this bill strongly suggest that some of our legislators do not want to curb rising prices. Otherwise, they would not dally while living costs mount, and the threat of uncontrollable inflation comes ever closer to realization.

Ships For Britain

The news that the Navy will build 50 "escort vessels" for Britain is a pointed reminder that the Battle of the Atlantic is far from won. Sinkings by the enemy have admittedly been reduced. But ships with desperately needed war supplies are still being sent to the bottom. Some losses have unquestionably been due to insufficient convoy protection. Indeed, ever since goods began to flow across the Atlantic in quantity the British and Canadian navies—and more recently our own Navy—have been hard put to provide enough light surface craft to cope with the enemy. To supplement destroyers assigned to convoy duty the British and Canadians have produced scores of corvettes which are slower and smaller than destroyers but quicker to build. Corvettes, however, lack both the offensive and defensive strength of destroyers. And lately the British have been turning out somewhat larger vessels, presumably of a type similar to that which American naval yards will presently build for the British.

Some indication of the urgency of the new project is revealed by the fact that hurry-up launchings of the escort vessels will necessitate revision of naval shipbuilding schedules and some delay in American warship construction. It is gratifying to read that Rear Admiral Robinson, the Chief of the Bureau of Ships, thinks that the delay will not be great. Once special ways and other facilities have been built, which may take six months, the Navy figures that the escorts can be completed at the rate of two a month during peak construction. It will be late 1942 and probably early 1943 before the new escorts will be a quantitative factor in the combat zones. In terms of naval construction, however, the escort program requires relatively short-range planning. And it is heartening that a phenomenally expanded naval shipbuilding program, which is perhaps the brightest aspect of the defense effort, can be still further expanded without seriously impairing schedules.

Mr. Fish Subpenaed

There is nothing unusual in the action of the special grand jury in commanding Representative Hamilton Fish to testify before it next Wednesday. This jury has an important assignment. It is investigating Nazi agents who are alleged to have violated the law in order to influence our national policy through secretly disseminated propaganda. The grand jury believes that Mr. Fish can throw some light on various aspects of its investigation. So it has quite properly taken the initiative in issuing a subpena summoning him to appear.

Among other things, the grand jury wants to know how a large quantity of unaddressed franked envelopes got into the possession of an alleged Nazi propaganda ring. It wants to know why George Hill, a clerk in Mr. Fish's office, sent a House Office Building truck to the office of Prescott Dennett to take away 20 mailbags after Mr. Dennett had been called before the grand jury. It wants to know why Mr. Hill gave orders to place part of these bags containing franked envelopes stuffed with isolationist speeches in a storeroom used by Mr. Fish. The New York Congressman undertook to tell the House the story of these mailbags. So it is natural for the grand jury to seek whatever information Mr. Fish possesses.

It is true that Mr. Hill told the grand jury substantially the same story about the mailbags that Mr. Fish told on the floor of the House. But the grand jury was not satisfied. It indicted Mr. Hill on two charges of perjury. Mr. Hill's attorney intimated in court that the charge was really aimed at Representative Fish. That, too, seems to strengthen the case for a full explanation by Mr. Fish himself before the jurors who are trying to sift truth from rumor and hot air.

Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney told the District Court that Mr. Hill had admitted receiving at least $12,000 within the past five months from sources he would not disclose. He described Mr. Hill as the "key man here in Washington" of a propaganda machine "master-minded by German agents." A subsequent statement by Congressman Fish declared that "the insinuation that any of this money came from subversive sources . . . is utterly ridiculous and preposterous." These words seem to imply that Mr. Fish has undisclosed information as to the source of the mysterious $12,000.

In the same statement Mr. Fish referred to "official records" of disbursements for sending out Congressional speeches. Undoubtedly the grand jury would like to see those records. And since Mr. Fish said the records had been kept, "with no thought or attempt at concealment," he will doubtless be willing to produce them for the grand jury. Considering these various factors, and the importance of the current investigation, the grand jury would have been remiss in its duty if it had not summoned Mr. Fish to obtain his testimony in full detail. The fact that Mr. Fish is a member of Congress in no way relieves him of the responsibility of contributing whatever information he possesses bearing upon alleged violation of the law. On the contrary, men in high positions have a double obligation to give their full cooperation to judicial agencies engaged in enforcement of the law.

Courage, U. S. Style

The publication of the detailed reports of what happened aboard the United States destroyer Kearny between the time the Nazi torpedo struck her amidships and the time she limped into port at Reykjavik should settle a Great American Question. The question is: Has the character of the American people deteriorated? Hitler's theme is that it has. Even some of our own sociologists support him when he talks about "degenerate Yankeedom." We are supposed to have been enervated by several generations of being what Kipling called a "big fat America." However, the courage and resourcefulness of Commander Danis and his crew should put our fears and Hitler's hopes at rest. They were in the best American tradition.

This tradition, we wish also to stress, comes out of the entire racial complex. Witness the names of the members of the engine-room crew who were killed on the Kearny. They should put an end to our own variety of the Herrenvolk myth—the myth that the American character has suffered from the decline of the good old pioneer stock and the more recent waves of immigration. Out of 13 names on the Kearny list 6 could be identified as "Anglo-Saxon"—that is, of English, Welsh or Cornish origin. Two of the names plainly suggest French origin, two German, one Polish and two are difficult to classify.

Curiously enough, there is only one Scottish and one distinctively Irish name in the Kearny list. Two generations ago perhaps a third of the names in such a list would have been Irish, Scottish and German. That the tradition still counts and still persists across the change of names is indicated by a curiosity in the Kearny list. The injured boatswain's mate was named Leonard Frontakowsky. He is described as a "very tough (i. e., durable) man," but his shipmates knew him as Murphy!

R. A. F. Sweeps

For sheer aerial might and superb tactical organization the weekend sweeps of the R. A. F. over the continent were unparalleled. From Norway to Sicily Axis objectives were pounded by an air armada which in scope of operations, if not in actual numbers, outstripped the Luftwaffe's most impressive efforts. Yet it is possible to detect a rueful note in British comments on the raids. For bad flying conditions cut down the effectiveness of mass air assaults which in aggregate might otherwise have been the most devastating of the war. The British have been careful to emphasize that their losses were due more to stormy weather than to a stalwart defense by the Germans and Italians. If that assertion is accurate, it would seem to indicate that, regardless of heavy antiaircraft fire over some areas, Axis defense from air attack on a grand scale is less potent than had been generally supposed.

But the fact remains that the sweeps were extremely costly. More than 50 planes, most of them bombers, and more than 200 airmen were lost. Considering that 600 to 800 planes took part in the raids, the losses from the air ministry's viewpoint may not appear disastrous. The ministry, it is believed, has been prepared right along for greater losses than have occurred. In fact, sometime ago the ministry assured this country that Britain's supply of airmen was far greater than its supply of planes. When the R. A. F. was on the defensive, fighting off the Luftwaffe over England, British airmen who had to bail out or who were forced down landed in friendly terrain.

Now, however, with the R. A. F. on the offensive, there is no descent—over most of the continent, at least—to friendly terrain. Britons or their allies landing in Norway, France, Germany and Italy are almost certainly lost "for the duration." And for all its surplus of airmen, Britain is hardly in a position to lose several hundred highly trained airmen whenever the R. A. F. puts on the routine mass assaults which it has promised for this fall and winter. It may be that, with more cooperation from General Winter, British losses will be pared down. But the rapidity with which storm conditions developed over Germany this past weekend, after the raids had started, indicates that in the months ahead unpredictable weather rather than man-made hazards may take an increasing toll of men and planes.

Preventive Medicine

Public-spirited doctors and many laymen concerned over the neglect of the national health have been trying for years to devise better means of employing medical skill to keep the people well instead of merely trying to cure specific illnesses. In this department of preventive medicine group-health plans have had some degree of success. Likewise such agencies as the Health Security Administration, which helps patients to work out the problem of paying for medical care, have done well. Still the task of shifting the major emphasis of medical science to the preventive side of medicine remains to be achieved. Perhaps there would be more progress if the work were directed and encouraged by the doctors themselves. This now looks likely. At any rate, the quick response of the District Medical Society to President Roosevelt's suggestion as to periodic medical examinations strikes a very hopeful note. The society unanimously agreed upon a plan to provide standard physical examinations at a fee much lower than that which has been customarily charged. Persons unable to pay for examinations would be granted that service free with the aid of the city's medical schools. Cooperation of the public will be needed, of course, to make the plan a success. It must be remembered also that the periodic examination is only the first step toward preventive medicine in private practice. But that fact does not minimize the significance of the experiment which the Medical Society has launched.

HIDDEN GROVE

This hidden grove is beautiful;
Somber trees and greening pool,
Grasses tall and still, and cool
Gentle wind so lightly blowing.

There was never way of knowing
How a seed begins its growing,
Nor where the mind of man is going
After dust has closed the brain.

But the flashing of the rain
On sunny woods, a lonely crane,
And the moon's ethereal stain
On the sea are truths we know.

Hear the wind so lightly blow.
This is wisdom: watching slow
Shadows move and grasses grow,
By a hidden forest pool.

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Real Motive

In an editorial captioned Virtue of An "If," appearing in The Washington Post of November 8, 1941, you refer among other things, to a magazine article written by Dr. Goebbels in which he speculates upon what may happen to the German people if Germany loses the war. You refer to the Machiavellian motives attributed quite generally to Herr Goebbels' actions and, since a precis of this particular article was given in advance of publication to foreign correspondents in Berlin, you pose the question, "Why is Dr. Goebbels anxious to have us know that Germany is no longer certain of victory, etc.?" You state that you do not profess to know the answer, but you admit that there is some truth in what Herr Goebbels has to say. How discerning!

Of course, there is some truth in it. There always has been some truth in everything that Goebbels, Goering, Hitler, and the whole gang of them have to say. But when there is some truth it is pretty safe to think just a little harder about the real motive behind the utterance. Could it be that Mr. Goebbels wants the British people and the people of the United States to think that Germany is all washed up and that she can be stopped by something short of an all out effort? Could it be that he wishes to melt away our resolve to carry this thing through, even before it has fully crystallized? Could it be that the article might not even be published in Germany, or if published not widely circulated? This procedure has been employed before and has worked. I firmly believe that an editorial along these lines will come closer to the true truth behind Dr. Goebbels' apparent swing to defeatism than the one written.

Significant Christmas

In this darkest hour of all national and world history, the eyes of the Nation and the world are focused in hope and expectation upon the Capital City of the greatest Nation on earth.

Washington is now closer than any other city has ever been to being the capital city of the world. With this status goes both a tremendous responsibility and a splendid opportunity.

We are entering a season in which the world celebrates the birth of the Prince of Peace. One way in which the City of Washington might bring increased hope to a war-torn world would be by staging the most significant Christmas in nearly 2000 years.

In what way? How better than as Christ Himself would proceed if He were present in the flesh! Appoint a program committee of prominent persons to run it for us. Christ's way would be for each person to seek Divine guidance through prayer. Then let both individual and group participation spring naturally from the sure answers to such prayer.

There is ample room in such lovely tribute for both prominent and obscure, rich and poor, wise and simple, old and young.

"Home Work"

It is interesting to read that the public schools of Washington are making plans for children to do their "home work" during school hours because their supposed homes are in such a state of upheaval (due to the radio and other nuisances) that the little ones cannot concentrate. It might be well to bear in mind that most people in the Government, as well as those in private industry, work under conditions that tend greatly to upset their equilibrium, but not to my knowledge has anything been done to ease their tension.

Helping Traffic

For the life of me I cannot see how raising the collateral for traffic offenses will help the traffic movement. The death penalty does not seem to stay the hand of the murderer. Seventy-five per cent, at least, of all motorists want to obey the traffic laws, or those that they can keep up with; to put an extra penalty on 75 people in an effort to get at 25 just does not seem right to me.

The tendency to avoid doing the obvious in the matter of traffic is regrettable. It seems to me that the motorist is already taxed beyond all reason and to put another tax on him is exasperating. Why can we not have traffic rules made simpler, for instance Ten Commandments, and have enough policemen visible to see that they are carried out? You, I and the police then could memorize the rules. With off-street space provided for standing cars and a little old-fashioned courtesy the problem is solved. The problem of courtesy, of course, might be the difficult one. It might turn out to be like the one of Love, upon which hangs all the law and the Prophets. We of this generation do not seem to have either.

War Of 1812

I read with a great deal of interest the editorial, "Atlantic System," in a recent issue of the Post. The writer of the editorial makes capital of the part Great Britain has taken in the past in aiding us to restrain despotism in Europe by the weight of its naval power. If I remember my history correctly the United States went to war with Great Britain in 1812 chiefly for the reason that the latter country was exerting its despotism upon our merchant marine and was doing its best to interfere with our enjoyment of the freedom of the seas. The same editorial casually passes over the War of 1812 with the sentence, "To be sure, we had quarrels with the British on the degree of sea freedom!" It seems to me that the greatest menace we faced on the ocean up to the World War was British control of the seas.

The author of the editorial cites such patriots as Jefferson, Madison and Monroe in support of his thesis. Another true American patriot of those days had an opinion quite dissimilar. On October 3, 1792, John Quincy Adams wrote to Rufus King: "The maritime law of nations recognized in Great Britain is all comprised in one line of a popular song, 'Rule Britannia! Britannia rule the waves!' I never could find that their Admiralty Courts were governed by any other code."

Judge Aukam

In this era of corruption and subterfuge, I would like to call attention to the late Judge George C. Aukam, about whom there appeared in an obscure column of one of our daily newspapers a eulogy worthy of note.

Here was an esteemed judge whose charitable undertakings, secret as they were intended to be, were revealed only after his death—a man whose heart was so touched as to pay out of his own pocket the rent of tenants about to be ejected from their homes.

Let us bow in respect to the memory of this departed gentleman and profit by the significance of this one act of human kindness to the less fortunate.

Gallup Remarks

Commenting, in The Post of November 8, on the results of his poll analyzing the New York City election, Dr. George Gallup remarks:

"The above table reveals the fact, often overlooked, that New York City is surprisingly more isolationist than the country as a whole. This fact undoubtedly accounted for the greatly reduced LaGuardia majority, despite the fact that foreign policy as an issue was not openly debated in the campaign."

Dr. Gallup to the contrary notwithstanding, there is nothing "surprising" in the strength of isolationist sentiment in New York City. It is the result of the immense isolationist and anti-British influence exerted by the Irish Catholic bloc, and by the very heavy Italian and German vote.

I am not implying disloyalty to the United States on the part of the overwhelming majority of these groups; I am saying that to a great degree their sympathies are strongly, even bitterly, isolationist; that they constitute a weighty factor in New York City politics, and, finally, that there was no reason for Dr. Gallup's amazement at the result.

I do think that questions such as these are so deeply important they deserve rather more analytical attention than they have received.

Lambach

Count Ferdinand Czernin is in error when he says that the monastery of Lambach was suppressed by Hitler when he marched into Austria (Austria Felt Brunt of Hitler's Vengeance, Washington Post, November 5). Although it is a matter of record that Hitler has suppressed hundreds of monasteries and convents and has barbarously attacked the Church in Austria as well as in Germany, he did not suppress the monastery of Lambach when he invaded Austria in 1938, and this because it was in this particular religious house that he found the "Hackenkreuz" on the crest of the late Abbot Hagen, which gave him the idea for the Swastika, as he himself declares in his "Mein Kampf." Abbot Hagen had incorporated the "hooked cross" in his coat of arms because of the similarity of his surname with the word "hacken" (hook), instead of the Latin or Greek Cross ordinarily found in crests of an ecclesiastical or prelatial character.

Representative Fish

It is surprising to see and hear Ham Fish of Putnam, Dutchess and Grange Counties talk as though he were the true representative of the people in those counties. True, he was elected. But there is evidence that the people in his district are overwhelmingly in favor of aid to Britain; there have been protest meetings against Fish, not only against his isolationism but also against his secretary who gets involved in mail franking episodes.

Fish's record in Congress is a sorry one. He sees a threat of war in every Administration proposal, and so he has not been a consistent supporter of defense measures.

Recently, when he told a pacifist audience that he would support a national war effort if it came to that, his audience repudiated him. Since then he has not repeated this pledge.

The Post Impressionist

A Pet Problem

When Sam was 12 his great passion was animals. Every day at 3 and all day Saturday he would go to the woods, a paper bag of sandwiches in his jacket pocket and a rabbit trap or a bottle for pollywogs under his arm.

There was no creature in the woods or fields that didn't interest him. Even crickets and warty toads he found fascinating. But best of all he liked squirrels. The glamorous flying squirrels that inhabited a certain grove in Rock Creek Park were nice, he said, but they were hard to catch and harder to tame. The big fox squirrels were apt to bite and were scarce around Sam's home, and the red squirrels were troublesome and nervous, but he admired them both. The best of the species, though, were the ordinary, chunky-gray squirrels, who were easily caught, easily tamed and affectionate.

Catching a squirrel was a fairly easy matter, once you spotted the nests. There was one particular nest Sam knew of, high in the girders of the Million Dollar Bridge, that had a half-dozen little gray squirrels, just ripening for the catch. He watched them for several weeks, noting their growth, and estimating just when they would be ready to take.

Then one day he shinnied up the side of the bridge, a bag in hand, and poked into the nest. He was disappointed to see that most of the nestlings had gone; there were only two left, and one of these was dead. So he took the living squirrel, tucked it in his bag and brought it home.

For the next few weeks Sam didn't get much sleep. Every three or four hours during the night he would get up, warm a pan of milk and feed it to his pet through a rose dropper. The little squirrel thrived and grew. In a month's time he was eating nuts and seeds, frolicking over Sam's arm and face, showing no instinct of fear. He slept each night in a cotton-filled box under Sam's bed.

As he grew bigger and the feathers of his tail sprouted into plumes, Sam took Squirrel—for such was his name—into the woods on his expeditions. The little animal would frisk around the trees, helping himself to Sam's lunch, and crawling into the jacket pocket when he grew tired. He showed no fear of the open spaces, but he had no desire for them, either. His wild relatives left Squirrel cold, and when Sam whistled he was always ready to snuggle in the pocket and return home.

When spring came, Sam thought now he'll want to go away, to build his own nest and find some lady-squirrel. But Squirrel had different ideas. He had normal impulses, to be sure, and he found that lady-squirrel. However, instead of wandering away to some honeymoon oak in the forest, he lured his lady-love to a rafter in the barn and set up light housekeeping.

When autumn came, Missus Squirrel deserted her spouse, but he was not the least perturbed. He was too busy burying hickory and hazelnuts in imaginary holes on the barn floor. He would put each nut carefully on the floor, and vigorously scratch a little hole that wasn't there. Then he'd scamper to Sam for more nuts, proud of his achievements.

This went on the balance of the winter. Squirrel was as much at home frisking around the fireside as snuggled in his nest in the barn. And Sam was the love of his life. For two years the boy and the squirrel were inseparable. When Sam came home from school he would whistle for his pet, and Squirrel would come skidding down the bannisters, and leap chattering into Sammie's arms.

But there were sinister forces at work. Sam's sister, Mary, didn't share her brother's fondness for animals, and next to snakes she hated squirrels most of all. Sam came between the squirrel and his sister time and time again. On several occasions the boy's earnest pleadings saved the animal from banishment. But Mary was determined.

One day when Sam had come in from a game of football, he stood talking to his sister in the front hall. Squirrel, upstairs in Sam's easy chair, heard his master and started to find him. Down the bannister he flicked, mincingly yet hurriedly picking his way. When he got to the newel-post, Mary stood between him and his master. So there was but one thing to do. Squirrel leapt to Mary's head in an easy bound, and then jumped on to Sam's shoulder.

Mary screamed and clutched her head. "He bit me," she accused. But there were no marks. Mary insisted that the squirrel had bitten her, and all of Sam's pleadings were of no avail. Squirrel was banished from the house forever.

For a time Sam kept his pet in the barn and around the back yard. He could flick his tail at dogs, but stalking, fence-walking, tree-climbing cats were another proposition. So Sam decided, for Squirrel's best interests, to take his pet to a safe place for squirrels and release him.

One Saturday, then, the boy put Squirrel in a shoebox and went to the Zoo to call on Mr. Blackburn. He released Squirrel in Mr. Blackburn's office and let him nose around the room. The Zoo keeper seemed very pleased, and agreed with Sam that the best thing to do was to take the little rodent to a safe place for squirrels.

So Sam took Squirrel in the shoebox again to a grove of trees near the sea lions and let him go. For a long time the boy sat on the bench and watched his friend frolic around him. After a while Squirrel ventured into a tree some distance away and Sam decided it was now or never.

He walked away. He hadn't gone more than a few paces when he heard a noise, and, looking over his shoulder, he saw Squirrel leaping, squirrel-fashion, in hot pursuit. Sam started to run, but Squirrel, too, quickened his pace. Sam ran harder; Squirrel skimmed over the ground behind him. The boy ran as hard as he could. Looking over his shoulder he saw his pet, flattened out, racing as hard as he could, but losing ground. Sam ran on, teeth clenched, not knowing where he was going unable to see for tears.

PRESTON PROUD.

Arming Our Ships

By Rear Admiral Yates Stirling

Guns Must Equal The U-Boats'

By the United Press

IF AMERICAN merchant ships are to sail the Atlantic, they should be given an adequate number of guns of such size and range as to enable them to defend themselves from submarines.

Furthermore, if war should come—or even before—it would seem wise to place all our merchant ships in transoceanic service under naval control and discipline. Of course such vessels would have technical status as warships, but that would in no way increase the danger of attack as U-boats are sinking all types of vessels without warning.

During the last war, almost all American merchantmen carrying war supplies were organized into a naval transportation service, with officers and men of the Naval Reserve manning them. Thus crews were brought under naval discipline and were organized to defend their ships. Experienced Navy gunners manned the ship's armament.

What armament should American merchantmen have if they are to sail the Atlantic with a minimum of risk of being sunk?

In the last war, German cruiser submarines, of about 1,800 tons displacement, carried two 6-inch guns, one forward of the conning tower and one aft, while many of our merchant ships were armed with only 4-inch and 5-inch guns, and those at the stern of the vessel in an impossible position to resist a gun attack. The idea of this position of the gun astern was to satisfy the condition that the ship was only armed for defense.

THE GERMAN submarines in this war are probably smaller, only about 800 to 1000 tons, and probably carry only one gun, but this gun no doubt is of long range and of sufficient size to attack most merchant ships. This single gun is probably a double-purpose one, capable of horizontal shooting, and with sufficient elevation to repel attacks from bombing planes.

If American merchant ships are to be armed at all, it seems to me that they should carry guns that will have at least a range equal to the guns carried by the submarine, and should be double-purpose and be placed in positions that cover all angles from which a submarine might attack or be engaged.

It has been proposed also that our merchant ships carry depth charges. At least a dozen depth charges could be carried at the stern of each vessel.

In dropping a depth charge the ship must be making at least 7 knots in order to be safe from damage from the explosion. It might be good tactics for our merchant ships to carry such charges, for there is no telling when an opportunity may be presented to use them, and the knowledge that such charges are carried by merchant ships might cause the submarines to use greater caution in attacking.

ON RETURNING from France in the last war, an auxiliary cruiser and transport under my command was attacked by a submarine. The submarine fired one torpedo at the ship. The torpedo missed by inches because I backed full speed to avoid it.

The ship had 10 depth charges, arranged to be dropped over the stern. Just after the torpedo passed across the bow and I had gone ahead again full speed, I dropped five depth charges over the stern. This was not done so much with the idea of hitting the submarine, as to cause the crew to feel that something was really being done.

But the submarine, after firing its torpedo, steered a course to pass astern of the vessel. Having backed the engines, the ship, instead of being some distance ahead of its position when the submarine took aim, was only a short distance ahead of that position, and in consequence the submarine actually passed close to our stern.

The five depth charges thus exploded so close to the submarine that the shocks put out the submarine's lights and threw its crew into a panic. The submarine captain lost control of his ship temporarily and managed to gain control again only after the submarine had gone down to a dangerous depth, 400 feet. The submarine was nearly lost.

It might give a boost to the morale of the crews of merchant ships to know that they had depth charges with which to attack submarines. But, on the other hand, it would not be the duty of a merchant ship to go out of its way to attack submarines with depth charges. There is a principle that holds for a valuable merchant ship; that is "a submarine astern is a submarine defeated."

Panama's 2-Way Law

Now It Hits Japanese

Copyright by New York Times

Panama, Nov. 9.—The suggestion of the Japanese newspaper Kokumin that the closing of Japanese stores and numerous barber shops by the government of Panama was due to pressure from the United States caused copsiderable amusement here and the threat to blockade the canal, not the least concern.

The law under which Japanese were excluded from commerce here was passed by the pro-Axis administration of former President Dr. Arnulfo Arias, with which the Japanese legation was on most intimate terms.

It is suspected in informed circles here that there may have been an understanding with the former government that an exception would be made for the Japanese and there are a number of things to strengthen that suspicion.

Although the former government fined the Chinese heavily and forced them to sell their business enterprises to favored members of the dominant political party at ridiculous prices and on equally ridiculous terms, until the fateful departure of former President Arias to Cuba, no similar action was taken against the Japanese.

That there was an understanding was also indicated in the note of protest from the Japanese Minister, Masatoshi Akiyama, which read in part, as follows:

"THEREFORE, when the new constitution was promulgated, and also when law 24, respecting nationalization of commerce, was passed, the imperial government retained the fullest confidence in the sincere intentions of the government of Panama and counted on a high spirit of understanding in its application on the part of the government of Panama."

Then it states that with an assurance that the government of Panama would take a friendly attitude, the Japanese government entered on negotiations with the government of Panama that it might give favorable consideration to exempting Japanese from immigration prohibitions, either by law or in any other manner.

So far as the former government responding to pressure from the United States to discriminate against Japanese is concerned, that charge is considered absurd as the Arias government, which promulgated the new constitution and passed the nationalization law, would have rejected such a suggestion from the United States. The Japanese were not concerned about the "freedom and equality of humanity" when Chinese were fined and jailed indiscriminately and their businesses were seized somewhat after the pattern of Nazi confiscation of the property of Jews.

THE PRESENT government did not pass the law against which Japan complains, but is only enforcing it now against the Japanese in the way that the former government applied it to the Chinese, but not in the same high-handed manner, as there have not been any forced sales of Japanese shops. They only have been closed.

Another indication of a possible understanding favorable to the Japanese is seen in the fact that recently large amounts of Japanese goods were imported, which would have been unlikely if they had expected that their shops would be closed. Considerable amounts were probaly for re-export, but that has been stopped now. Imports cannot be reexported except under a license that requires a deposit of the proceeds in a blocked account.

Hoover's Protest

By Ernest K. Lindley

Question Of Finland's Future

FORMER President Hoover's protest against Secretary Hull's efforts to take Finland out of the war is regarded in high Administration quarters as a striking example of failure to put the interest of the United States first.

LINDLEY

Hoover said that an independent Finland was "largely an American creation." He reminded us that they paid their debts. He recalled the outrageous attack of Russia on Finland two years ago, the valiant defense put up by the Finns, and their loss of one-third of their land and of the homes of 600,000 of their people. True, he admitted, Finnish troops have now penetrated into Karelia beyond the old boundaries of independent Finland. But Karelia, he added, was formerly mostly Finnish. He considered Secretary Hull's efforts to get them to stop fighting a "reproach" for their efforts to recover their homes and former countrymen.

From first to last, it is pointed out, Hoover's protest contained no reference to the welfare of his own country. By officials now charged with the heavy responsibility of protecting the interests and security of the United States, this omission is regarded as extraordinary, especially on the part of a former President.

THE SENTIMENTAL and moral factors mentioned by Hoover are thoroughly appreciated by high Government officials, and were referred to by Secretary Hull in renewing his efforts to make Finland stop fighting. But the Finns have gone beyond their former national boundaries. They are engaging Russian troops needed for use aganist the Nazis. And, with German aid, they are menacing the supply route into Russia via the ice-free port of Murmansk.

We have undertaken to provide the Russians with huge quantities of weapons and materials, and a credit of one billion dollars has been set up for them. If it is to our interest to provide these goods and this credit, it is to our interest to see that the goods reach their destination. If part of them are stopped by Finnish troops, the interference with our policy is just as serious as if the same supplies were sent to the bottom of the ocean by Nazi torpedoes.

Hoover is against aid to Russia; and from this his position on the Finnish question follows naturally. His attitude appears to be based partly on disapproval of the Soviet regime and partly on fear that, if we aid Russia, communism will rule Europe and perhaps other parts of the world. His disapproval of communism is generally shared, but is irrelevant. Events have shown that at the present stage of affairs the danger is not that communism will rule Europe, but that nazism will. Nazism has proved itself to be the stronger, and it is not only the Communist regime but Russia as an independent nation which it threatens to exterminate.

HOOVER and many others who oppose aid to Russia profess now to believe in aid to Britain. But the British regard aid to Russia as aid to themselves. They are stripping themselves of supplies to ship to Russia. Churchill enunciated British policy toward Russia immediately after the German invasion began. Russia was not only the more distant power—it was the weaker power.

The British Empire alone probably can never organize and land in Europe an expeditionary force capable of defeating the Nazi army. Possibly the Nazis can be beaten without crushing their army—by locking them up on the Continent and wearing them down by blockade and bombing. But this may not work, and it is less likely to work if the Germans get control of the vast resources of Russia than if they do not.

The Russian army, damaged as it is, is still fighting the Nazis in the field. If it can be re-formed and reequipped with American and British aid, it can provide much of the land power which the orthodox military men think necessary to check, and eventually to defeat, the Nazis.

Adequate aid to Russia may remove the possibility that an American expeditionary force to Europe eventually will be needed if the Nazi regime is to be crushed. Certainly, the longer and the better the Russians fight, the less is the possible need for American troops.

It can be argued cogently that in opposing aid to Russia and Hull's efforts to take Finland out of the war, Hoover and those who think as he does are unwittingly casting their votes for sending American troops to Europe.

THE CONTRARY policy of aid to Russia has been adopted, however. Pressure on Finland to drop out of the war is an important part of that aid. All that Hoover and others like him can accomplish by protests, it is pointed out in official quarters, is to create an appearance of disunity, and so make it more difficult to exert with success the diplomatic pressure which may prevent the loss not only of valuable American supplies, but eventually of American lives.

As for the future of Finland, Hoover himself asserted that an independent Finland was "largely an American creation." Finland cannot preserve its integrity and independence against an all-powerful Germany, any more than it could against a less-than-all-powerful Russia. Finland's future as an independent nation depends upon victory by the western democracies. This is what Secretary Hull has been telling the Finns for several months. Hoover summoned historical precedent to buttress Hull's argument and refute his own.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Purkey's Equipment

Dear Ma:

I do not feel any too good today on account of I just heard about the winter equipment witch has arrived here. It has got me very worried. It includes 8,000 woolen mufflers, 24,000 pairs of artic socks 16,000 burlap insoles, 8,000 sweaters, 12,000 pairs of polarized goggles and 800 kapok sleeping bags. This is on top of a complet supply of woolen underwear.

I am nervus over what is the meaning of this stuff, espeshully when I am told the clothing is designed to protect the wearer when it is 40 degrees below zero. I can't help wondering if I am going to be leased to Labrador or lent to a Admiral Byrd experdishun.

The woolen drawers and shirts has been issued already and they have me crazy on account of I never wore woolen drawers befoar and I feel all wrapped up like a Ejipshian mummy. I itch something awful, too, and a soldier is never at his best when he itches, although I % hear from Sergt. Mooney that most of them itched all through the last war and still did okay.

The woolen mufflers and sweaters got me worried and I wish I knew if I was being pointed for a war in the Arctic or if it is just a case where the Government has some inside dope on a very hard winter in the United States. All I know is that if I ever get into this new equipment I will look like Nanook of the North.

What gets me more than everything else is them sleeping bags. I have slept in a lot of places but never in no bag. I understand you crawl into these bags and pull a zipper over your head which leaves you looking like a sack of mail. Eskermoes wear them I am told. How are the Eskermoes doing now? Are they asking for any all out aid? Anything you hear I wish you wood tell me as any little clue will help.

The more I think about this business of equipping us to stand it 40 below zero the more sicker I feel. Maybe I am going on guard duty in a Vermont farmhouse or something. Sergeant Mooney says we are going to get trained in sleeping outdoors in the snow as soon as we get a little snow, so I gess that no matter what is in the air any hope I will get leased or lent to Miami Beach, New Orleans, Havana or Agua Caliente California in this war has been knocked out. And them polarized goggles what are they for? I hear they are for drivers of tanks but if they are for my outfit the goggles have come away ahead of the tanks.

Well, do not worry as one worrier in the family is enough mom. Your loving son, OSCAR.

Lines on Longevity

(An average life span of 550 years is attainable if conditions in the body at the age of 10 years are retained, according to a professor in the Columbia University School of Medicine—News item.)

Consider, please, the child of ten,
Whose bodily condition's
A miracle to learned men,
Professors and physicians.

Who say that if we could retain
This stamina and vigor,
Five hundred years we might remain,
And somewhat more, they figure.

But I have watched a child at play,
From morning until night time,
And wearily I now must say
That threescore ten is quite time.

The Seasons

Winter is an old dame
In a white lace cap;
Spring is a maid with folded hands
And flowers in her lap.

Summer is a golden queen
Wearing a jeweled crown;
And autumn is a gypsy
In a russet gown.

War Lessons For Us

By Mark Sullivan

Our Need Of Flexibility

EVEN AFTER 11 days of Senate debate, there is still one aspect of repeal of the Neutrality Act about which something useful may be said. This aspect is, the age of the act, the brevity of its life. Its age is almost exactly two years — the act became law November 4, 1939. (This was the final form of several versions that had been passed during four years preceding.)

SULLIVAN

Here, within a space of two years, is a complete about-face of many Senators, of the Senate as a whole, of the Roosevelt Administration. This reversal is not merely a striking incident of modern history. By no means is it occasion for reproach or irony. It bears a useful lesson. The lesson can be the better grasped by observing some other reversals during this war.

A year ago, indeed five months ago, we thought of Russia and Communism as one with the enemy. Posters set up during the early days of the draft act pictured four persons as symbols of what the young draftees were to be on guard against. The four were Hitler, Mussolini, a symbolic Jap—and Stalin. In the same spirit a jocund radio commentator, Mr. Earl Godwin, used to recite a ditty of genial derision directed against

Hit' and Muss' and Gory Joe,
And the little man in Tokyo.

TODAY, "Gory Joe" is the ally and friend, to whom President Roosevelt sends messages of amity and cheer; a missive last week conveyed "felicitation and sincere good wishes"—on the twenty-fourth anniversary of the revolution that set up Communism.

A year and a half ago, France stood with England, one of the two great anti-Axis powers, object of our ecstatic affection and material help. Today, the French government, if not the French people, is at the service of Hitler. Neither we nor England, neither our Government nor our people, are quite certain how to look upon the French navy and the French army in North Africa—whether as an enemy that may attack us, or a lost friend that may be wooed back.

Less than two years ago, we, our Government and our people, were the warmly emotional friend of Finland—because that gallant little land was fighting brutal Russia. Today, our Government tells Finland that she must stop fighting Russia—or forfeit our friendship.

England goes farther. England some two years ago was about to send armed help to Finland against Russia, but could not, because Norway, then free, would not permit passage of English troops. (The experience of Norway is a lesson, too, but that is another story.) Today, England threatens war against Finland—because England this time wants to send armed help to Russia, and Finland stands in the way.

There have been other reversals since this war began. What is the lesson? One is, expect the unexpected. Who will bet that in the final stage of this war, Italy will still be fighting alongside Hitler? Italy has had two roles already, first a neutral, then a Hitler ally. It is a safe guess she—at least the Italian people, if not Mussolini—would like to be a neutral again. Before all is over she may complete the circle by being where she has so often been in history, the friend of England.

THROUGH IT ALL, confusing as it is, one would like to keep hold on some little fragment of principle, or at least of commonsense expediency. One simple thing to cling to is the national self-interest of the United States. By that test, judge repeal of the Neutrality Act. The United States is at this moment under immediate threat of war from Japan, slightly more distant threat from Germany. We might be obliged to divide our Navy in two oceans. From this we may be saved if the United States Navy is free to cooperate fully with the British navy. This will be made possible by repeal of the Neutrality Act. And that is good reason for repeal. Certainly repeal gives us greater flexibility—and flexibility we need in a world in flux.

But no reproach for those who oppose repeal. Some do so, among other reasons, for a domestic motive—for fear of what may happen to America internally as a result of going closer to war, or finally to actual war. For their apprehension there is much basis, as every observant and thoughtful person knows.

In any event, no reproaches—and no listening to reproaches. Never had America greater need for freedom of action in Congress and freedom of opinion everywhere, when honestly held and reasonably expressed. No intolerance, no intimidation, no reproaches. No listening to slogans either, like the Great War ones now remembered only with irony—"the war to end all wars," and "the war to make the world safe for democracy." No acting upon emotional appeals, only cool reason. No taking of fixed positions, on grounds that may shift in a month. The individual American will find his best guidance in some maxims of frontier sense—"keep your feet on the ground," "keep your shirt on."

U. S. Troops In Iceland Found Proud, Tough, Good Soldiers

By Drew Middleton,
Post Staff Writer

General Headquarters, Field Force Four, Iceland.—The American soldier of Field Force Four emerges after a month of hard and varied work as a cocky, outspoken man well equipped for fighting or the more monotonous job of garrison duty on a rocky island on the edge of the greatest war in history.

His officers believe he is stronger, better educated and infinitely better fitted out for active warfare than his predecessor of 1917-18.

The average soldier of this force—it appears after hundreds of conversations with infantrymen, artillerymen, engineers, air corps mechanics and pilots—is a young man very much like millions of others in the United States.

There is one outstanding difference. Deep down under the grousing, the gags, the air of outward stolidity formed by discipline, is pride that he is a soldier. It rarely comes out except in bursts of quick talk about "outside."

Physically most of the United States soldiers here are big men, inches taller than their British fellows. The Army dental service has looked after their teeth. The medical service keeps them in good condition. Long days of work at a variety of tasks ranging from digging drains to marching over rough country in full equipment have made them quick and active.

They are not, for instance, as physically impressive as the guards in London, but they appear better able to take care of themselves in the rough and tumble of modern war.

Of ten men I talked to in one infantry regiment, four had been garage mechanics, one had worked in a brickyard, three had labored on farms, one had worked in a cotton factory and the other had been in a CCC camp.

All had been in the Army more than 18 months.

Their reasons for joining the Army were as varied as their previous jobs.

One of the former mechanics said: "I had bad luck. No sooner would I get started in a garage than the shop would close. I had a pretty good mechanical education, but I wanted a place to use it steady like. So I joined up. I'm a sergeant now and I got better tools and more interesting work than I ever had at home."

The fellow who'd been in a CCC camp said after a year there he "just couldn't get used to civilian life again; you know, you miss a regular sort of life and you miss having guys around you. So I enlisted."

They have picked up the term "Jerries," the British soldier's term for Germans, since they arrived. The old timers still call them "Krauts."

Of the ten only two thought the British could win the war alone. These two and two others reckoned Britain and Russia together might be able to defeat Germany.

They have great confidence in their ability and their weapons.

"After it's over" appears to be a favorite topic of conversation not only among American soldiers but in talks with the British.

All had a high opinion of German mechanical ingenuity and efficiency, but they added "it ain't a patch on what we can do." The factory worker said the Germans "must be sorta dumb, they're all the time hollerin' about war and how good it is. That's just plain dumb. Any soldier knows that."

Each holds a sincere belief that this is the last war. "This sorta thing's gotta be stopped for once and for all."

Although the beefing about the weather was loud in the first week of their stay, a spell of ten days of fine autumn weather heartened most of the soldiers.

Living conditions, they admit after some preliminary grouses, aren't bad, "considering we're a hell of a ways from home." Most of these boys are from Kentucky, Tennessee, and Southern Illinois and Ohio but they've lived under worse conditions on maneuvers and seen "hell of a sight worse towns than Reykjavik."

They think the Icelanders look "sorta sad." The girls are thawing, they report. They show little desire for liberty these nights after a hard day's work. When all things are ready it will probably be different.

Nine out of ten are earnest about "savin' some dough" over here and they rejoice to hear that the marines are saving plenty. Many of them have girls at home and the sad choruses of "high on a windy hill"—a favorite—that echo at nights through the camps are probably dedicated to them.

In their singing, in the cheerful profanity that attends their labors, in the measured tramp and alert stride of the guard, there is a morale that cannot be raised by little booklets on how to be a good soldier.

They are cocky, manually adept, strong, profane and ebullient. They have shown in the past month how hard they can work. There seems no reason to believe that given the requisite air support they cannot fight as well as any soldiers in the world.

Fall of Oil-Rich Caucasus Would Not Strip Soviet of Fuel

As German troops draw nearer the Caucasus regions, the question arises concerning Russia's reserve oil supplies should she be forced to abandon or destroy the rich petroleum fields of this area.

"The Soviet Union ranks after the United States as the second largest source of oil in the world," says the National Geographic Society. "In 1940 production there reached a total of nearly 217,000,000 barrels.

"According to 1940 estimates, between 80 and 90 per cent of Soviet Russia's oil output came from deposits in the Caucasus land bridge that separates the Black and Caspian Seas. More than 160,000,000 barrels were recovered from the famous Baku fields of the Transcaucasus region on the southeast coast. Another 28,000,000 barrels were produced in the North Caucasus, now facing the first line of German attack. The oil fields near Maikop are less than 180 airline miles from the shores of the embattled Crimea.

"The proportion of Russia's petroleum supply from the Caucasus isthmus, however, should be considered in the light of events of 1941. During the past year, reports indicate, the Soviet government has intensified its efforts to increase oil supplies from operating fields still far from the present battle lines.

"Even before the German invasion of Soviet Russia, the near monopoly on petroleum production long held by the Caucasus fields was beginning to lessen. In Czarist days, it is estimated, some 97 per cent of Russian oil came from Baku and other Caucasus sources. By 1939, a number of new deposits had been opened to development, with a geographic range from the Arctic Ocean to the southeast shores of the Caspian Sea, from the Volga to the Pacific.

"In 1929 the first important oil find of the Urals was made at Chusovaya Gorodki, in the central reaches of that long and mineralsrich mountain chain. Three years later the newly established development on the Oukhta River, near the Arctic Circle in northeast European Russia, became the world's northernmost oil station.

"Active fields—near which new roads and towns have been built, and mechanized industries set up—now include those along both the eastern and western flanks of the Urals, with others extending to the banks of the Volga and beyond. One reported new field, at Ivanovo, west of the Volga, is not far from Moscow. The output of the Volga-Ural region, which Soviet authorities had declared would in time turn into a 'second Baku,' was estimated in 1938 at more than six million barrels of petroleum.

"East of the lower Volga, along the northeast shores of the Caspian Sea, are the productive Embu fields, linked with the industrial city of Orsk in the southern Urals by a more than 400-mile long oil pipe line. Other Caspian developments are found to the south, in the Turkmen Soviet Republic, where some of the wells are estimated to have gushed forth nearly two million barrels of oil. In the heart of the Soviet Central Asia still other working operations are found in the once remote territories of Kazak, Uzbek, Tadzhik and Kirghiz. The conveniently located city of Fergana holds one of the largest oil refineries of the Soviet Union.

"The Russians also have petroleum reserves in the Far East, notably on Kamchatka Peninsula and Sakhalin Island. The latter island, owned jointly with Japan, accounted for about four million barrels of oil in 1940. Most of the oil deposits are found on the Russian side of the line, but the Soviet government allows the Japanese to operate many of the fields under special concessions, as well as to purchase supplies recovered by Russian activities. The present concessions expire in December, 1941."

'Individualism' Will See U. S. Through Crisis, Bache Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—From the high plateau of 80 active years, Financier Jules S. Bache predicted today that "American individualism" would carry the United States through what he called its greatest crisis.

"The present situation is a little darker than any we have previously faced," observed the internationally known banker in a birthday interview marking his debut as an octogenarian, "but I have faith in the ability of the American people to overcome the greatest of handicaps.

"When the going is toughest, the spirit of rugged American individualism will come to the fore, and, in my opinion, this spirit will ultimately prevail to the benefit of the entire world, as it has so many times in the past."

Bache, 61 years in the financial district and head of J. S. Bache & Co. since 1892, still works regularly at his office in lower Broadway. Recalling the financial crises weathered during his career, he said:

"During the past six decades I have witnessed the effects of the silver agitations of the eighties and nineties, the 'rich man's panic' of 1903, the Knickerbocker Trust failure in 1907 and the dislocations caused by the World War, both during the war and the even worse problems of the postwar period.

"Always the men of the financial community have devised means of combating these adverse elements to the benefit of our whole economy."

Bache, a world authority in art as well as finance, has one of the most extensive privately owned collections of rare paintings in existence. He established the Jules Bache Foundation in April, 1937, to make it available to the public.

High Court May Rule Today On Right To Criticize Trials

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court may rule today on long-pending litigation involving the right to publish comment on court cases prior to a final settlement.

This issue is presented in contempt of court convictions of Harry Bridges, West Coast C. I. O. labor leader, and the Los Angeles Times.

The newspaper was convicted following the publication of editorials on two labor cases. Bridges' conviction resulted from sending to Secretary of Labor Perkins a telegram, subsequently published, criticizing a decision by the Los Angeles Superior Court.

Further action was possible in each of the cases commented upon by Bridges and the newspaper.

Bridges and the Times contended that a contempt conviction was justified only when there was a "clear and present danger" that the published matter would interfere with the orderly administration of justice.

Conviction Ruled Proper

The California Supreme Court ruled, however, that conviction was proper if there was a "reasonable tendency" that the work of the courts would be impeded.

The cases have been before the Supreme Court here for more than a year. They have been argued twice.

Seventeen other disputes are awaiting decision today at the first session of the present term devoted to delivering opinions. Justices Byrnes and Jackson will have their first opportunity to hand down opinions since they took their seats in October.

Some of the other cases on which opinions are possible involve:

1. The propriety of exhibiting two live rattlesnakes to the jury which convicted Robert S. James, Los Angeles barber, of slaying his wife. The State alleged that he drowned her, in order to collect insurance, after first failing to kill her by thrusting her foot into a box containing the rattlesnakes. The conviction was upheld last term in a 4-to-4 ruling, but a rehearing then was granted.

"Anti-Okie" Law Tested

2. Constitutionality of California legislation which prohibits anyone from assisting nonresident indigent persons to come into the State. Twenty-seven other states have similar "anti-Okie" laws.

3. Whether states (Alabama specifically) have the right to impose sales and use taxes on national defense contracts executed by the Government on a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee basis. The Justice Department estimated that such taxes, if upheld, might cost the Government as much as 100 million dollars a year and would amount to 28 million dollars on contracts already let.

Smart Luncheon Honors Mrs. Leighton McCarthy

Washington Has First Official Glimpse Of Charming Wife of Canadian Minister

By Elizabeth Henney.

Though she has slipped in and out of town briefly once or twice since her husband assumed his duties as Canadian Minister last February, Mrs. Leighton McCarthy arrived here to stay only last week, and yesterday was the first time Washington had an official glimpse of the charming new chatelaine of the legation.

The event was a luncheon given in honor of the Canadian Minister and Mrs. McCarthy by the retiring Air Commodore of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. W. R. Kenny at their apartment in the Shoreham, and guests included diplomats, service set, and cave-dwellers of the residential set.

Mrs. Kenny, who received in the drawing room of the apartment, was gowned in black crepe, over which she had tossed a scarf of silver fox.

Mrs. McCarthy looked chic and exquisite in a smart black tailleur, to which she had pinned a corsage of gardenias. With it she wore a small hat of the French beret type.

The dining table, a symphony in pink and mauve, was centered with a cluster of baby mums and autumn leaves, and throughout the apartment were masses of shaggy white chrysanthemums and pink Chinese lilies.

Ranking guests at the luncheon were the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, the Norwegian Minister and Madame Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Minister of Australia and Mrs. Richard G. Casey, the Assistant to the Chief of Naval Operations, Rear Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, and Mrs. Ingersoll, and the Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy, Rear Admiral John H. Towers, and Mrs. Towers.

Other guests included Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and their house guest, Mme. Grouitch, whose husband was formerly Minister from Yugoslavia to this country and later represented his government in London.

Still other guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, the Counselor of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, and the Assistant Military Attache of the Canadian Legation, Maj. C. M. Drury.

Air Commodore and Mrs. Kenny will entertain again within the next two weeks in honor of Air Commodore George Walsh, who will be Commodore Kenny's successor as air attache at the Canadian Legation here. The Kennys will remain in Washington until about Christmas time and then will go south, probably to Mexico City, for the duration of Commodore Kenny's sick leave.

Gift Bearer Without Gift

Delfino Sanchez Latour, Chief of Protocol of Guatemala, who arrived in Washington Friday evening bearing a gift from President Ubico of Guatemala for President Roosevelt, has come upon troubled times. His mission to this country also included a contribution of Guatemalan textiles to be sold at a benefit in New York for Bundles for Britain.

When the call for such donations was broadcast to the world, the little country of Guatemala was the first to respond. Because the articles were scheduled to be sold, Senor Latour did not ask for diplomatic immunity on them. As a result everything, including the gift for the President, is now tied up in the customs, and Senor Latour is in the peculiar and embarrassing position of being a gift bearer sans gift.

Mrs. McLean Entertains

AT ANOTHER and the largest to date of her famous Sunday night suppers, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean entertained last evening at her estate, Friendship. Diplomats, Supreme Court members, Congressional, service and residential set members made up the large guest list.

Another guest at the McLean dinner, who was the center of much attention during the evening, was Dr. Frederic Wertham, author of "Dark Legend," which is just off the press. The theme of this new novel has attracted wide attention from literary, psychiatric and legal groups, as the theme of it is the analysis of the motives responsible for the action of a tenement boy in killing his mother. Dr. Wertham is senior psychiatrist of the New York Department of Hospitals and director of the mental hygiene clinic at Queens General Hospital.

Envoy to Guatemala And Wife Honored

THE United States Minister to Guatemala and Mrs. Fay Allen Des Portes were honored at a dinner on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gross, of the Federal Communications Commission.

Still other parties on yesterday's program included the cocktail party given by Commander and Mrs. C. Benedict Platt and Mrs. Elizabeth Wight at the Platt home in Chevy Chase and the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. William M. Temple at the Officers Club at 1400 New Hampshire Avenue.

Miami Beach Season Opens

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 9.—For sun seekers, one thing circled in red on the calendar right now is winter in Miami Beach.

Already the season is well under way. In fact, the sharp line once drawn between winter and summer in Miami Beach has been thoroughly erased. This popular resort now holds sway as a year-round vacation city.

Dr. and Mrs. John P. Martin have as their house guest, Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. James H. Hughes, of Washington, who will be here during November. Senator Hughes hopes to join Mrs. Hughes as soon as his official duties in Washington permit a vacation. Mrs. Martin will entertain tomorrow at a luncheon for Mrs. Hughes at the Officers' Club at the Government air station at Opa Locka.

Mrs. Robert Forrest is passing a few weeks in Miami Beach having come here specially to enter her daughter, Miss Patricia Charmienne Yarwood, in Miss Harris' school for the winter. Mr Forrest, who came down with her, has returned to Washington, where he and Mrs. Forrest will be during the fall and winter months.

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward has opened her residence on Allison Road, Miami Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. Peck Honor Mr. Downing

Dr. and Mrs. Gustav Peck entertained at an "after-five" party in their home on Thirty-second Street yesterday in honor of Rossa F. Downing, chairman of the American-Irish Defense Association.

Hibernian names predominated a guest list which included Senator Rufus C. Holman, of Oregon; Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas; Senator Warren Barbour, of New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Shea, Mr. and Mrs. James V. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs Frederick R. Barkley, Daniel Murphey, John F. Bannon, Msgr. John A. Ryan, Patrick Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dell, Miss Louise McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Marlin, Miss Mary O'Sullivan, Miss Katherine Jones, Mrs. Francis O'Donnell, Murray Sheehan and several dozen others.

Army Junior to Become Navy Bride

Underwood and Underwood.

MISS CAROL STEPHANIE FRIES
whose engagement to Ensign Robert Gwathmey Merritt, U. S. Navy, is announced today by her parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries

Engagement of Carol S. Fries To Ensign Merritt Is Announced

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, former Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, United States Army, and Mrs. Fries announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Carol Stephanie Fries, to Ensign Robert Gwathmey Merritt, United States Navy, son of Robert G. Merritt, of Chicago, and Mrs. Peterson Merritt, of Washington.

The wedding will take place sometime on or before Thanksgiving but date, time and place will depend on the whereabouts of the U. S. Fleet at that time. Ensign Merrit is attached to the new battleship, U. S. S. Washington. The best man and ushers will be classmates and fellow officers of the bridegroom-to-be, but their identity will also depend on the movements of the fleet.

Miss Fries will wear the traditional family wedding gown, which has been worn by three brides in the family, two of whom will be members of the wedding party. She will be the ninth bride to wear the wedding veil with its tiara of heirloom rose-point lace. Mrs. W. Theodore Pierson, sister of the bride-to-be, will be the matron of honor.

Junior bridesmaid will be Miss Elise Merritt, sister of the bridegroom, and the bridal attendants will be Mrs. William Bion Moore, of Fort Worth, Tex., another sister of the bridegroom; Miss Rosalie Fahey, Mrs. Elizabeth Christine Henne, another sister of the bride; Miss Laura E. Terry and Miss Edna Mae Miller, whose engagement to Frederick Steiwer, son of the late Senator Steiwer, of Oregon, has recently been announced.

Ensign Merritt, who is in Washington on a brief leave, is the nephew of Admiral Thomas T. Craven, former Commander of battleships, Battle Force, United States Navy, and is also a nephew of the late Capt. William A. Merritt, U. S. N.; the late Maj. James Alfred Merritt, U. S. A., and the late Dr. Simon Wickes Merritt, Medical Corps, U. S. A. He attended the Randles School here and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1939.

Miss Fries attended George Washington University, the University of Miami and the University of Wisconsin. She studied art with Harry Fonda, and at the Corcoran Art School; and interior decorating at the University of Oregon, the Felix Mahoney School and at Critcher's. Since her return to Washington in June, she has been consultant in interior decorating for a local firm.

Wilsons Honor Mr., Mrs. Hill

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Leroy Wilson, who arrived in town from New York on Thursday entertained on Saturday at the Sulgrave Club at luncheon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snowdon Hill.

Mrs. Wilson, the former Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, has rented her house here for the season. She and Mr. Wilson (who were married last August in Mexico City will be at the Sulgrave Club for about two weeks. They will make their home in New York this winter but will be back and forth between there and the Capital during the season.

Senora Ledon Honored at Tea

At a tea and reception yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7, Senora Amalia de Castillo Ledon, outstanding feminist of Mexico, was honored by a group of prominent American women whom she had lavishly entertained last summer at her home in Mexico City.

Senora de Castillo Ledon, who is a member of the city council of Mexico City as well as an outstanding social leader in her country, has long made it a practice to further the "good neighbor" policy by entertaining visitors to her country. Last week she arrived in Washington as a representative of the Inter-American Commission of Women's annual meeting at the Pan American Union. And her friends were not long in seizing the opportunity to repay in some measure her generous hospitality. The event was given at the Daughters of the American Revolution Chapter House at 1732 Massachusetts Avenue.

In the receiving line were Miss Ethel Martin, Mrs. Harry Oberholzer, Miss Lillian Chenoweth, Miss Marian Mullins, Mrs. Howard Hodgkins, Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, Mrs. Roy Bowker, Mrs. Norman Goode, Mrs. David Wells, Mrs. Jessie Scott Arnold, Mrs. Cook. Miss Phoebe Ann Ross, Miss Louella Chase, Miss Minerva Culton, Mrs. Alexander Bell, Mrs. Netta Miller, Mrs. Hunt, Miss Edith Odle, Mrs. W. W. Sloan, Miss Helen Bliss, Miss Minerva Bernardino and Mrs. P. M. Shaffer.

Ranking guests included the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, Pedro de Alba, assistant director of the Pan American Union, and the Second Secretary of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Duhart.

Latin Lecture Sponsor to Give Dinner Tonight

Sponsors of the series of lectures on current events in Latin America to be presented this fall by Dr. Edwin Ryan are planning to entertain at a dinner before the opening lecture tonight at the Washington Hotel.

Added to the honor guest list are Senora de Michel, wife of the Chilean Ambassador; Senora de Baron, wife of the Minister Counselor of Cuba; Senora de Chacon, noted lawyer of Costa Rica; Senorita del Prado, Bolivian sculptress; Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico. Other guests at the dinner will include Mrs. John Towers, Mrs. Charles W. Lord, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lee Brite, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fannon, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Alba, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fannon, Mrs. Dorothy Brezy, Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Boas, Mrs. Elsie Bennett, Miss May Flatterly, Mrs. Gertrude Scott. Mrs. Tilman B. Parks, Mrs. Kathryn Thornett, Mrs. Walter Clifford Burke and Mrs. Leila Cornish.

Dr. and Mrs. Avery Become Grandparents

Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Avery, of 1623 Massachusetts Avenue, announce the birth of their first grandchild, Frederick Scott Avery 3d, on Saturday morning in Los Angeles, Calif.

The child is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Avery. Mrs. Avery is the former Miss Dorothy Anne Pickering, of Detroit, Mich.

Admiral Standley Is Feted at Home Of Comdr. Burns

Commander James Burns, U. S. Navy, and Mrs. Burns entertained yesterday afternoon informally at their home, 1700 Surrey Lane, in honor of Admiral William H. Standley.

Assisting generally throughout the afternoon was Mrs. John Kliegl of New York, mother of Mrs. Burns. Mrs. Kliegl, who arrived on Friday for a long weekend visit with her son-in-law and daughter, will return to her home tomorrow.

Miss McNab Married to Louis Saxton

The wedding yesterday in Tampa, Fla., of Miss Annie Laurie McNab, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Calvin McNab, of 3117 Kensington Circle, Tampa, to Louis Manley Saxton, son of Mrs. Louis M. Saxton and the late Mr. Saxton, of Washington, is of great interest to their many Capital friends.

The ceremony took place in the First Presbyterian Church in Tampa, with the Rev. Samuel P. Bowles officiating. Barbara Mabry sang the nuptial music and Bob Seltzer was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory slipper satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline bordered with seed pearls in a flower design. The long sleeves ended in points over the hands and the full skirt billowed into a fan-shaped train. Her three-tiered veil was held to her hair by a halo of orange blossoms and she carried white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Saxton Matron of Honor

Mrs. Lamont Saxton was the matron of honor, and was gowned in dusty green slipper satin, fashioned with a full, shirred skirt. She carried a heart shaped bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums outlined with a frill of satin matching her gown. Miss Frances Johnston, the maid of honor was gowned in ashes of roses shade, and carried dark roses and chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Catherine Ortmeyer, Miss Margaret Hearin and Miss Dorothy Rudasill. Lynn McNab, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. They were gowned like the other attendants in gold, bronze and dusty blue and carried chrysanthemums.

Capt. Lamont Saxton, of West Point, was best man, and the ushers were R. Calvin McNab, jr., and Carson McNab, brothers of the bride; Lieut. Henry S. Brooks and Lieut. John R. Farriz. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Bride Wears Green Traveling Suit

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a Valley Forge green costume suit, trimmed with mink tails, a brown draped wool turban and brown accessories. Following a trip to Washington, New York and West Point, the couple will make their home at the Hillcourt Apartments in Tampa.

The bride was graduated from Florida State College for Women and Mr. Saxton was graduated from George Washington University.

Andersons Give Tea Party in Honor Of Miss Millard

Honoring Miss Elizabeth Rhodes Millard and David Lindsay Crawford, whose wedding will take place on November 22, Mr. and Mrs. Norman T. Anderson entertained at tea yesterday afternoon. Miss Millard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Lewis Millard and niece of Miss Emily Millard, of the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Assisting at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Genevieve Chase, Mrs. Rowland Lyons, Miss Martha H. Lindsay, Miss Julia Minnegerode, Mrs. Thomas Myers, and Mrs. Alonzo Jan Peeke, the former Miss Anne Hyde Cochrane.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The Style Expert

(An Interview in a Hotel Lobby.)

Q—Mr. Skeedle, what are your theories on women's clothes?

A—I think women should always wear clothes that are simple, plain, conservative, modest, retiring, dignified, inconspicuous—

Q—Just a minute Mr. Skeedle! Isn't it true that men respond to attention getting devices when worn by women?

A—It is NOT! No man wants to be around a woman who is in the least conspicuous—by the way, do you happen to know who that young lady is over by the desk?

A—You mean the one in black with the big gold alligator and the long pink plush gloves?

A—Yes—that is—I mean—her her face is very familiar.

Q—I think she's just checking in. But to get back to clothes, Mr. Skeedle. Do you feel that men are the best judges of what their wives should wear?

A—Undoubtedly! I always know better what my wife looks well in than she does herself.

Q—What kind of clothes do you select for your wife Mr. Skeedle?

A—Clothes that are simple, conservative, dignified, dark in color—

A—Oh, home—I suppose..

Q—Do you think most other men share your views on women's clothes, Mr. Skeedle?

A—Yes indeed! All men prefer women to be dressed simply and elegantly. Nothing extreme. No fads—Oh how do you do!

Q—That fascinating woman you just spoke to, Mr. Skeedle—the one in green with the slit skirt and the green mesh hose?

A—Yes—Oh, er, well of course, I hadn't noticed that. What I mean is she's an old friend of my wife's.

Q—How do you feel about the present styles for women, Mr. Skeedle?

A—I think they're atrocious!-Immodest! Disgusting! There ought to be a law——.

Q—To what do you particularly object?

A—The hats! They're a disgrace to the country—Oh how do you do? . . . How do you do? . . . Just fine, thank you.

Q—What fascinating girls! Who is the one in the harem wimple with only her eyes showing?

A—Oh—er I don't just recall her name. They're both friends of my wife.

Q—How do you feel about skirt lengths, Mr. Skeedle?

A—Any woman looks better with a skirt nearly to her ankles—say, by the way, who is that girl sitting over there by the door?

Q—You mean in the purple hose and the platform shoes—with her legs crossed?

A—Well—er I hadn't noticed that, of course, but she's been trying to pull her dress down over her knees for 27 minutes by the clock. I've timed her!

Q—Do you really feel, Mr. Skeedle, that men prefer the woman who is unobtrusive in dress?

A—Without doubt! Every man wants the woman he goes out with to be severely simple in her clothes. Ladylike, modest, genteel—say, what time is it?

Q—It's nearly 1 o'clock. Why?

A—I had an appointment to meet a friend here—ah, there she comes.

Q—The one in the leopard coat and the big purple orchid?

Off-Whites for Winter Scenes

Winter "lights" shading all the way from dead whites to pale, refreshing pastels are the news right now. "Yenshou," a budding, young green, culled from antique Chinese tapestries, fashions the two-piece dress, above, of Forstmann woolen. The wide, though rounded shoulder line is retained through shaped tucks, narrowing at the waist and extending into pockets. Shirring at both the shoulder and waist, plus oversize jeweled buttons, add to the dressmaker appearance.

Don't Eat Heavy Sweets to Gain Curves; Protective Foods Needed

By Ida Jean Kain

A HEAVY DIET of pie, cake, and chocolate nut sundaes is no way for the thin girl to gain. Only the fat girls can get full benefit of the calories in such rich concoctions.

If you are underweight, what you need is a highly protective diet, an abundance of the best life-giving foods. You want more red blood cells, steadier nerves and a better digestive system. Foods that are rich merely in calories will not do these things for you.

You should go right down the line with the nutrition yardstick and make your three meals a day measure up to it. According to the yardstick, a moderately active woman requires 2500 calories a day, providing 80 grams of protein, .8 grams of calcium, 12 milligrams of iron, 5000 units of Vitamin A, 500 units of Vitamin B1, 1400 units of Vitamin C, 400 units of Vitamin D, and 2.2 milligrams of Vitamin B2 or G, technically known as ribodavin.

Don't Get Confused

Don't let those figures confuse you. Just take a good look at them so that you will realize the importance of eating to get your required amounts if the different essentials instead of following a diet that is topheavy in carbohydrates. To make it easy for you, the essentials have been worked out in terms of your three meals a day.

What is your usual breakfast? Jot down what you have and then compare it with the foods you should have: orange juice or other citrus fruit, a hot whole grain ereal with dates or raisins and whole milk and cream, an egg, buttered toast of either enriched calories or whole grain bread and coffee. That can amount to around 800 calories, which is about one-third the number needed for the day. At the same time it supplies an abundance of the protective elements.

You may think that you couldn't possibly eat that much. But it is largely a question of time and habit. You should allow 15 to 20 minutes for breakfast and gradually increase the amount of food you eat.

Have Some Croquettes

At lunch, instead of grabbing a sandwich and a beverage, have rice and cheese croquettes or a similar dish, a vegetable, salad, roll, butter, fruit and milk! There's another 900 calories and all in the form of easily digested, wholesome food.

Dinner can be a regular meal, with a serving of meat, potatoes, a green leafy vegetable, enriched bread, two pats of butter, a pudding with a custard base and a glass of milk. Then, with another galss of milk before retiring, you have calories to spare for curves. In case your appetite is unequal to all this food, build it up by taking the vitamin B complex.

You also need more rest in your gaining program for you then assimilate your calories more easily. It is a good plan to rest for 30 minutes after each meal, but if you rest only after dinner that's a great help.

Silhouettes New Fashion Idea

Hollywood, Calif.—Cut-out silhouettes to be introduced by Alexis Smith in her latest picture are another case of new fashions born because screen designers think in terms of black and white. Studies in contrast are always effective.

Reminiscent of a knight's shield is the triangular plastron of heavy white lines which Howard Shoup places on a dress of French blue wool. And a black crepe evening gown has its only trim at a square neckline, where the border is a chorus of hand-holding colonial dames and dandies cut from a 2-inch strip of silver kid.

Shoup considers cut-out silhouettes a nautral style and will work them out in various ways this winter.

Pastel Seat Covers

A new synthetic fabric, "saran," is now being used for automobile seat covers which is highly resistant to moisture, easy to clean and hard to soil. Hence it makes pastel colors posible for car seats—for those who are pining for that luxury.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Although Beautiful and a Good Listener, Woman Can't Hold Men's Attention for More Than Two Dates; Asks Explanation of Her Lack of Charm

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am one of those unfortunate women who is unattractive to men. When I was a child, I was really beautiful and men of all ages paid me lots of attention. As I grew up, I was still considered beautiful, but I seemed to have lost my attraction for men. Although I am well groomed and well dressed, I seem to be actually repulsive to some men. I happen to be a "good listener," because I am really interested in other people's views. And although I have had some few men talk me almost to death at times, I never could hold their attention for more than one or two dates.

Yet I have seen girls who were homely, girls who were shy, girls who were selfish, girls who were unfriendly, girls who talked too much and girls who openly "chased men,"—I have seen such girls walk off with the most sought-after swains. And I would like to know what quality of charm they possessed that I haven't got. Is it a quality of physical magnetism that a girl must have, or be out of luck? I have met men who, by ordinary standards, would be considered attractive;—but they lacked that indefinable "spark," for me. Do I lack that "spark" for men? And what does it consist of? I would like your opinion on the subject. LENA.

DEAR LENA: Remember the hoary sayings: "He who would have friends must show himself friendly." And, "Love begets love." It occurs to me that those none-too-attractive girls whom you have seen "walk off with the most sought-after swains" probably owed their success to the single-hearted enthusiasm and ardor with which they bade for the attention of the particular man of their choice. It is well known to socially experienced persons that the way to make a good impression upon anyone is to let him think that he is making a terrific impression upon you.

Your childhood experience of receiving much attention from men primarily because of your "beautiful doll" appearance, may have had the regrettable effect of making you stodgily self-centered. Your social manner as of today may be distinctly "negative"—in the sense of failing to project a glowing beam of cordial interest, lively anticipation, open admiration or delighted recognition upon those you meet in company. Perhaps you evade your proper responsibilities in a social encounter,—in the sense of neglecting to make a helpful effort to put the other fellow at ease; or by assuming that all you need do is look pretty and listen, while he tries one subject after another in a fatiguing search for one that may prove of interest to both.

Do you ever give to men the kind of attention you long to receive from them? For instance, can you think of a time when you straightforwardly praised some man's appearance or his taste in clothes? Complimented his mind? Told him something pleasant you had heard another say of him? Intelligently broached the subject of his work, for the purpose of letting him know that you think he does a very good job of it?

Or (getting away from superficialities and down to fundamentals) are you capable of caring deeply for a man,—of liking, loving or admiring him wholeheartedly,—regardless of whether he reciprocates the feeling? Are you so "interested in other people" that you can take the measure of some man's personality, while he continues to be more or less unaware of your existence? And, supposing you found yourself greatly attracted by a man, could you be ingenuously true to your feelings, to the extent of letting your conversation and conduct reveal the devotional quality of your regard for him? Or do you operate on the niggardly theory that unless and until a man takes the initiative in diligently suing your favor, it behooves you neither to feel nor to show any interest in him I am inclined to think that the latter is the case.

Now, speaking of "physical magnetism,"—I am reminded of one wiseacre's apt remark that "sex appeal is a state of mind." Which is to say, a lively, discerning appreciation of the charms of the opposite sex, and a predisposition to be happily captivated by them. There is nothing self-conscious or even self-aware about this emotional receptivity or sensitivity; this "state of mind." Rather, it is an invariable characteristic of a vital nature, and, as a correspondent once wrote to this column, it is a potential of temperament which most frequently speaks via the medium of "the 'you' look."

That "indefinable" spark you mention is nothing more nor less than the involuntary conviction (on the part of him who feels the "spark") that here is a person with whom he could be in emotional accord. And that conviction or feeling, conveyed by "the 'you' look," quite often captures the other person's pleased attention sufficiently to establish the foundations of a lifelasting relationship.

It is entirely possible that you do (as you dejectedly surmise) "lack that 'spark' for men." And if you do, it is probably because you are habitually more concerned with repressing than with honestly and intelligently expressing, your profound interest in them,—whether as individuals or as a species.

Thus, it is reasonable to think that, by changing your fundamental attitude and social performance, you can vastly improve your relations with men and compel an adequate portion of their devotion. As for "that quality of charm which other girls have" (and you do not possess, as yet), it probably amounts, in the majority of instances, to a generous disposition to forget themselves in their engrossment with their respective partners tete-a-tete. M. H.

New Slip Cover Improves Sofa

THE STAR of the show—your sofa! If that looks shabby then the whole room droops. So why not start the fall out right by making your sofa a slip cover? It can be as effective as brand-new upholstery and—the pin-on way—you can do a regular decorator's job.

For formal elegance try a rayon and cotton upholstery fabric with a luxurious satin stripe. Burgundy and beige would be lovely.

The sofa itself is your pattern. Just remove cushions and smooth a width of the fabric down back and over seat of each section, being careful to center the stripes.

Allow a tuck-in of 4½ inches between back and seat. Then pin fabric in place along lines of the upholstery and cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams.

By the same pin-on method you cover the arms, sides, back and cushions. Then you remove your pinned-up cover and baste and try on.

Finally finish seams with welting or binding and stitch on the flounce—perhaps a smart straight, one with kick pleats at corners.

Covering chairs, too—even the wing and barrel types—is easy the pin-on way. Our 40-page booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," gives step-by-step diagrams and directions for chairs and sofas; tells how to cut, sew, finish and trim. Has decorator's advice on fabrics, styles.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Who's the Goat?

William Hines, of College Park, Md., gladly retrieved his car which had been stolen, but he refused to take the billy goat which was found in it when Prince Georges County Policemen Hamilton and Sweitzer recovered the car. Now the Hyattsville Police Station has the goat—or is it the goat that has the cops' goat?

Sauce for the Goose

Members of the Montgomery County Board of Education will hold their regular meeting tomorrow. County school children have to go to school on the Armistice Day holiday and the board decided it wouldn't be a good example for them to enjoy a holiday while the children attend classes.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

Many Federal Bosses Pay Aides More Than They Get

When a boss pays an employe more money than he gets himself, well, that's a miracle in Government. But it's being done in isolated cases, despite all the rules, regulations and general red tape. Chairman Leo T. Crowley and the other two members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation are paid $10,000. But Fred C. Kellogg, chief if the Liquidation Division, is paid $12,000, and John C. Nichols is paid $11,000 for serving as chief of the Examination Division. Three other officials are paid $10,000 salaries. They are Francis C. Brown and James E. Markham, counsels, and Henry W. Riley, comptroller and personnel director.

The five RFC commissioners are paid $10,000, but the new Blue Book of who's who in the Government lists Lynn P. Talley, assistant to the directors, at $12,500. RFC, staffed with some of the best brains in the Government, appears to pay the best salaries of any Federal agency. Twenty officials are paid $10,000 salaries besides the five board members, a situation that is unprecedented. The general counsel, Claude E. Hamilton, jr., and four of his assistants, for example, are drawing $10,000 each. The general counsels of most departments are paid $10,000. At RFC, however, every official has a dozen or so jobs.

Uncle Sam pays a few $12,000 salaries. Admiral Emory S. Land is the only board chairman to be paid $12,000. He's chairman of Maritime Commission. The other four members are paid $10,000 each. Gen. Frank T. Hines draws $12,000 as administrator of veterans' affairs. By recent Congressional riders, the $10,000 salaries of Comptroller General Lindsey Warren and FHA Administrator Abner Ferguson were raised to $12,000. The only $15,000 salary, besides Cabinet members, is paid to Comptroller of the Currency Preston Delano, who is a relative of F. D. R.

The lowest paid board members belong to the U. S. Employes Compensation Commission. Chairman Jewell W. Swofford and the two other members are paid $8500 each. Civil Service Commissioners were paid only $8500 until a few months ago. War and Navy Departments have precious few civilians paid more than $5000, annually. Not nearly so many as much smaller agencies. The House Appropriations Committee appears to have it in for the Navy, and the department can't pay a civilian more than $5000 now unless Congress assents.

The best paid officials in national defense aren't William Knudsen, Sidney Hillman and all the other big names. In fact those two men and many more are WOC's (they work without compensation). At OPM, $9000 salaries are listed for John Lord O'Brian, the negeral counsel who has the Government's No. 1 legal spot; Herbert S. Marks, an assistant counsel; Executive Secretary Herbert Emmerich; Stacy May, chief of Research and Statistics, and E. W. Reid, Materials Branch official. Many more defense officials are now in and over the $9000 pay bracket. The Blue Book, though just released, was published as of May 1.

Herbert Putnam is paid $5000 as librarian emeritus of the Library of Congress. Librarian Archibald MacLeish drews $10,000. The second-best salary is paid to Luther H. Evans, an assistant. It's $6500. . . This year's official register covers 271 pages, 36 more pages and about 1500 more names than the year previous. . . Bill Bowen, Railroad Retirement's efficient personnel director, has resigned to join the Red Cross.

More conflicting stories are told about Harriet Elliott and her Office of Price Administration consumer division. Some insiders say Miss Elliott and her division are going to get the ax. Still others say the consumer division soon will be expanded into a larger and separate unit. My best sources relate the former version. All agree that the consumer unit has gotten into the hair of defense chieftains.

NLRB is asking Congress for $422,300 to hire new employes and to re-allocate the positions upward of many present employes. . . Civil Service is recruiting bakers for nearby Federal institutions. . . Civil Service soon will start a publicity campaign in the 20 under-quota States in an effort to bring those States up to their full job allotments in the District. The campaign should be popular with members of Congress.

4 State Units Schedule Fall Social Events

Four State societies and the Yugoslavic American Association have arranged autumn events for the next two weeks, with the Arkansas Society holding the first on Friday, at the Shoreham Hotel.

High light of the Arkansas program will be a special dance given by members from each Congressional district, led by a Congressman, with the State's Senators participating.

The Yugoslavic group will dance from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. at the Willard Hotel Saturday, giving the proceeds to the Red Cross for Yugoslav war relief.

The California Society's Thanksgiving breakfast-luncheon will be held in the Rose Room, Washington Hotel, at 12:30 p. m. Sunday. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, lawyer, of Los Angeles, will speak.

The North Carolina State Society will have Gov. and Mrs. J. Melville Broughton, of North Carolina, as its guest at a dance to be held at the Shoreham Hotel Saturday, November 22, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, the organization president, announced yesterday.

The Maryland Society will dance at the Kennedy-Warren Hotel, 3133 Connecticut Avenue, at 9:30 p. m., Friday, November 21.

Free Radio Service For Soldiers Away Will Start Today

The first link in a network of short wave radio stations to enable service men to send free messages to their families will be dedicated at 5 p. m. today.

The station is located at the United Service Organizations-National Catholic Welfare Service Club at New London, Conn. This U. S. O. club serves the naval base there.

The dedicatory program will be heard over a Nation-wide network of the Mutual Broadcasting System. Speakers will include Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, of the Office of Civilian Defense; W. Spencer Robertson, U. S. O. executive committee chairman; Miss Carol Bruce, film actress, and Maj. Gen. Dawson Olmstead, Chief Signal Officer of the Army.

A transcription of the program will be broadcast over Station WOL here at 8:15 p. m.

Venture Club Installs Members

Five young women were installed as members of the Venture Club yesterday at a tea given by Mrs. Lorraine Good at her home, 1713 Morningside Drive, Chevy Chase, Md. Mrs. Good is president of the Soroptimist Club, which sponsors the Venture Club. The installation ceremonies were conducted by Miss Gene Meara, chairman of the Venture Club's membership committee, and Mrs. Zada Daniels, chariman of Soroptimist's Venture Club committee.

Gunston Alumni to Meet

Plans for celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Gunston Hall School will be discussed at an alumnae association meeting at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday at the school. Mrs. John C. Donnally will preside and tentative plans for the observance will be presented by Mrs. Benjamin H. Lingo, chairman of a semicentennial committee.

At Ease

Missing D. C. Boy Found In Miami

Missing from his home here since last Wednesday, 11-year-old Ronnie Doremus, of 618 Morris Place Northwest, was discovered by police yesterday at Miami Beach, Fla. He was shooting soap ducks with an air rifle on Biscayne Bay.

Ronnie told police, according to United Press, that he "borrowed $160 from his father's wallet and boarded a Florida-bound train. Also aboard was the West Virginia Wesleyan football team, en route to Miami to ploy the University of Miami. So the brown-eyed, brown-haired youngster attached himself to the team as mascot, until challenged at the football team's hotel.

The youngster then entrained for Jacksonville, found another youth there of adventurous mind, and the two returned to Miami. Registering at another hotel, Ronnie then went on a shopping tour, buying three air rifles and some soap ducks—the very same he was shooting at when found by police. Ronnie still had $100 in his possession, police said.

Whether Ronnie, who last June also was reported missing from home, will be returned here to his foster parents, or will be placed in the custody of a grandmother at Miami Beach, was a question still to e decided today.

Strikes Involving A. F. of L. Locals Continue Here

Two strikes for higher wages involving District American Federation of Labor locals continued last night.

At midnight, the strike at the Troika Club entered its tenth day with United States conciliators still struggling to arrange a meeting of minds. The strike of 100 employes of the Peoples Drug Store warehouse which began Saturday continued with wages and union recognition the main issues. Strikers are demanding a $5 to $8 increase in wages from the present level of $20 a week with the company understood to have offered a $2-a-week increase.

Representatives of the A. F. of L. Building and Construction Trades Council were reported "satisfied" with War Department assurances that proper safety precautions will be taken during construction of the new building at Arlington. Early accident reports which "alarmed" union representatives were attributed to the work of getting the big project under way by the Army.

Mileham Will Address Business Group Tonight

William J. Mileham, president of the Federation of Business Men's Association, will be guest speaker at an "Armistice Night" meeting of the Cleveland Park Business Men's Association to be held ta 8:30 p. m. today in the City Bank, officers of the organization announced yesterday.

Nominations for new officers will be submitted at the meeting, according to secretary Berneard Elman, and free movie tickets are to be distributed to the members in attendance.

Citizen Groups To Concentrate On Raid Plans

Eighteen citizens groups meeting this week will concentrate on perfecting the air raid warden service in their areas, and on Armistice Day, in the words of M. M. McLean, president of the Brookland Association, "we won't be out flag-waving, we'll be working at it."

The West End group will have a "mystery" guest as their speaker tonight and according to their president, Walter F. Wasson, who "wouldn't even tell his brother the person's identity," the speaker will be a high-placed Government official.

Boy Scout Troop No. 3, under the direction of Scoutmaster Vincent W. Plumpton, will give a first-aid demonstration tonight at the meeting of the Burleith Association and the air raid warden members of that area, President C. C. Tatum said.

Besides this and election of officers, a motion picture will be shown with L. Guernsey, assistant executive secretary of the District Tuberculosis Association commenting. J. Clyde Smith, chairman of the special committee on rodent control will report progress to the members. The entire area has been organized with block chairmen ready to start the vermin extermination program when the date is announced, it was learned.

Other groups electing tonight are the Kalorama Association, Commander Frank Slingluff has announced, and the Piney Branch Association, according to President Elwood Seal. Nomination of officers will be held tonight, Parkview President B. J. Kroger said.

John L. C. Sullivan, dinner chairman of the Mid-City Association, has announced that the group will hold an informal dinner Saturday at 7 p. m. in the Lee-Sheraton Hotel. Zoning will be the main topic of the American University Association Thursday, Secretary M R. Wilkes said.

Reports on the proposed increase in water rates will be heard Friday by the Brightwood members, Secretary S. A. Swiggett declared, while the Rhode Island Avenue citizens on Wednesday will view the Community Chest film on underprivileged children.

Hill Crest members tonight will elect an air raid warden chief and will hear a speaker from the Civilian Defense headquarters. Home defense will also be the main business of the Summit Park citizens, President James S. Davis said.

Encores Asked At 'Music Tzigane'

"Music Tzigane," a series of six concerts featuring the gypsy violin virtuoso, Michel, and Sasha Bartnovsky, pianist, opened last night in the auditorium of the Washington Club.

A large audience greeted the small, but unique ensemble, demanding four encores at the conclusion of the program. Nicolai Grushko, gypsy barytone, appeared as guest artist. It was announced a different guest will probably appear in each of the succeeding concerts, which will be held every Sunday night throughout November and December.

Police Seize 93 in Swift Gaming Raid

Bootleg, 'Alley Joints' Stormed; Street Robberies Continue; 16 Women Taken

Police stormed three alleged gambling and bootleg establishments yesterday and arrested 93 persons, 16 of them women.

Both white and Negro prisoners were taken in the swift roundup. Most were promptly charged with disorderly conduct and released under $5 collateral. Others were booked at headquarters for investigation.

Conducted by Second and Thirteenth Precinct police and headquarters detectives, the raids netted 45 arrests at an establishment in the 1900 block of Ninth Street Northwest and 48 at two places described by police as "alley joints" in the vicinity of Seventh, Eighth and O Streets Northwest.

Meantime, police reported a sharp decline in street holdups and housebreakings over the weekend. There were four street incidents and one grand larceny.

Under arrest for investigation in two of the street jobs is a 46-year-old Negro. He was picked up following an attack and robbery of a waiter at the Chevy Chase Country Club.

Mrs. Helena Espinel, mother of Lieut. George Espinel of the Columbian army, who is taking a course of instruction at Fort Belvoir, was one of the weekend victims.

Mrs. Espinel, who is visiting here at Henderson Castle rooming house, 2200 Sixteenth Street Northwest, reported the theft of $530 worth of jewels taken from a jewel box in her room. The loot included several family heirlooms, according to her son. Included were a diamond ring, a brooch, wristwatch, earrings and 12 loose emerald stones. Police suspect a Negro who came to work at the rooming house at 9 a. m. Saturday, left the same day at 11 a. m. and has not been seen since.

Mrs. Mary Miles, of 1314 Fifteenth Street, reported that her pocketbook containing $5 was snatched as she walked in the 1400 block of P Street Northwest about noon yesterday. The culprit she described as a 12-year-old Negro.

Antoine Rupp, 70, of 1003 L Street Northwest, told police he was hit on the face by two Negro men about 5 a. m. yesterday while in the 1600 block of Eleventh Street Northwest and robbed of $1.60.

Harrison Dall Thompson, Negro, 42, of 1336 R Street Northwest, a waiter at the Chevy Chase Country Club, was attacked early yesterday in the 700 block of North Capitol Street by two Negroes, one of whom was later arrested and is now being held for investigation at No. 1 Precinct. Five dollars was taken from Thompson.

Purse Is Taken

Miss Selma Braverman, of 1749 Lanier Place Northwest, reported to police that her pocketbook was snatched while she was walking along the 600 block of Seventh Street Southwest.

She told police that her purse contained $65 in cash and $3 in defense stamps and was stolen by a young Negro boy.

Last weekend police had about 20 robberies, including six strongarms on Washington streets. The week prior to that there were also about 20 robberies, including at least eight attacks on citizens walking the streets.

Nine Boys Flee Receiving Home By Fire Escapes

Nine boys broke out of the Receiving Home yesterday by forcing a door, breaking a window and descending fire escapes.

They scattered in all directions from the building, at Ninth Street and Potomac Avenue Southeast. Several hours later one returned, saying he had been home and his mother had persuaded him to go back.

Late last night police picked up two more of the escaped prisoners and returned them to the home.

Grady Leonard, superintendent of the home, said the boys were being held on charges of taking property without right. All are juveniles, five of them white and four Negro.

Forcing a door from the playroom to the dormitory on the third floor, the boys removed the hinges from a window to a fire escape at the rear of the building, police said. They descended this fire escape to a roof and then went down another to Ninth Street.

Dr. Russell Uses Collapse of France As Example in Talk

The importance of citizenship education to national morale was the theme of a talk by Dr. William F. Russell, dean of the Columbia University Teachers' College, at a meeting of the Columbia University Alumnae Club in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Dr. Russell used the collapse of France as an example in his talk, asserting that a lack of unity and willingness to sacrifice brought about the country's fall.

In Washington as director of the National Citizenship Education Program, he urged the need of such an educational system to "stiffen the back of the American people." Both foreign and native-born Americans, he said, need to be educated to appreciate democracy and be willing to sacrifice for it.

Dr. Russell was introduced by Dr. Julia Hahn, vice president of the group, while Miss Anna Halberg, president, acted as chairman.

Andrew B. Burt, Defense Realtor, Dies Suddenly

Andrew Barclay Burt, 52, died unexpectedly of a heart attack yesterday noon at his apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel. His wife, Mrs. Estelle Burt, found him unconscious, and he was pronounced dead shortly afterward by a resident physician.

A native of New York City, Mr. Burt had lived in Washington for the past two and a half years. He was a realtor and was working with the Federal Housing Administration and several other government agencies in connection with defense housing shortly before his death.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three daughters, Miss Janet Burt and Miss Nancy Burt, both of Washington, and Miss Eileen Burt, of Asbury Park, N. J.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Christian Endeavor Sponsors Turkey Dinner

The District Christian Endeavor Union will sponsor a turkey dinner—with all the trimmings—tomorrow from 2 to 5 p. m. at Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth and Maryland Avenue Northeast. Children can eat for 45 cents, adults for 85 cents.

Fire Sweeps Widow's Rooms; Life's Savings Found in Ruins

A weeping little widow stumbled through the dark, fire-swept second-story rooms of her home at 18 Third Street Southeast late yesterday, searching for hundreds of dollars in cash and five diamond rings which but a few moments before had been safely hidden away.

"Oh, my God," she cried, "every cent that I had saved is gone. And my rings, they're gone, too."

The elderly woman, Mrs. Fannie B. Ballard, started blankly into her bedroom as firemen threw shovelful after shovelful of burned clothing, furniture and household goods out the window.

"Please," she begged, "my money and my rings—see if they are there!"

Two firemen down in the street knelt on the sidewalk, examining the burned ruins with a flashlight. Then one of them pulled a pocketbook out of the pile. It was filled with 10 and 20-dollar bills, and was only singed on the edges.

The fireman dashed upstairs. "Hold out your hands," he said "here is your money."

Mrs. Ballard laughed hysterically through her tears. "Thank God, there's something," she cried. "I had insurance once, but I don't think I have it any more. At least, there's something."

Several hours later, George Perkins, Negro, husband of a maid at the house, came upon the five rings, fastened to a safety pin, in a pile of the burnt rubble and returned them to Mrs. Ballard.

The fire, believed to have been caused by a defective oil burner, was discovered by Mrs. Frank O. Bilson, Mrs. Ballard's daughter. The daughter was taking an afternoon nap in her bedroom, and was awakened by the smell of smoke. She saw flames coming from her mother's bedroom in the front. She did not have time to complete an alarm to a telephone operator, as the flames were approaching the wall near the phone.

Rushing into the hall, Mrs. Bilson screamed a warning to six other persons in the house, and all escaped without harm. Mrs. Ballard was downstairs in the kitchen at the time, and fled from the house when she heard her daughter's scream.

Paul Beaudoin, a third floor tenant, had his eyebrows singed when he attempted, for a moment, to fight the flames with an extinguisher.

First report of the blaze came to the fire board through a local alarm, believed to have been turned in by a passerby. Truck Number 7 from Engine House 18 answered the alarm. Damage was estimated at $2000.

Dr. Marshall Calls Meeting To Elect Officers

The annual election meeting of the District of Columbia branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be held at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A., it was announced yesterday by Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, president of the group.

"This annual meeting is a barometer of the interest of individual members in the work of the organization," Marshall declared in announcing the session. "Every one of the 3000 members in the District of Columbia should feel an obligation to attend this meeting to hear the reports of officers who have served during the past year, and to carefully consider the selection of new officers to carry on the program."

Mother and Four Sons Lead Services at Church Meeting

In a unique religious service, a mother and four sons—all five ordained ministers—yesterday participated in another phase of the four-day religious emphasis program at Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 3400 Lowell Street Northwest.

In addition, the talented wives of the ministers also took part in the services.

The Rev. Clement Yinger, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, of Haverhill, Mass., in his sermon at the morning service stressed the value of Christian discipleship, and Mrs. Dempster Yinger, wife of the pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Albion, Mich., sang several selections.

Earlier, in the Sunday school service, the Rev. and Mrs. G. Dempster Yinger presented a song and verse interpretation of the life of Christ. At last night's service, the four brothers' male quartet sang. They were Dempster, Clement; Paul W. Yinger, pastor of the local church, and the Rev. Homer Yinger, of La Crosse, Wis. Mrs. Homer Yinger, reproduced Hoffman's "Head of Christ" in chalk, and the Rev. Dempster Yinger preached.

The "religious emphasis" program will be continued with a Men's Club program tonight at 8 o'clock and a public service tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Emma B. Yinger—the mother—comes from Albiom, Mich., and was one of the first women ordained in the former Methodist Episcopal Church. She is the widow of the Rev. G. Y. Yinger, once a Methodist Episcopal cleric.

Loew's Palace Primping For Anniversary Week

House Opened 23 Years Ago This Month; Civic Theater Accedes to Popular Taste; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THAT WAS AN EVENTFUL WINTER in the history of the Washington cinema, back in 1918. Three of the plushiest "cathedrals of the celluloids" known to the Capital up to that time opened practically within a month. Loew's Palace was the first to unlock its doors to the public, Crandall's Metropolitan second and the Rialto third. By some strange irony, the last of the three to switch on its lights was the first to succumb to the westward course of cinemazation. Tom Moore's "Temple of the Muses," as the chiseling over the entrance proclaimed it, has since been leveled off into a mid-city corrall for checked motor cars. The other two are barging along as strong as ever—maybe stronger.

EILEEN RITTER

So, beginning Thursday, Loew's Palace will be celebrating its twenty-third anniversary since Mary Pickford first caused a stampede at the ticket wicket in "Johanna Enlists." The temper of the times, incidentally, was about the same, back yonder in 1918, as it is today. Anybody who "enlisted" in anything was doing all right by himself and his country. So the Palace got off to a flying start, with the late Marcus Loew and a carload of other celebrities on hand to see that it did. It has been doing nicely ever since and is a better house now than it was then, what with its recurrent beauty treatments, rejuvenations and all.

Probably until another 23 years has elapsed, the crowning glory of the Palace will remain the premiere Washington engagement of "Gone With the Wind," the three-hour-and-47-minute Gargantua of the gelatins, that nothing has approached so far in magnitude and Technicolor magnificence. It was there, too, that Jean Harlow made her first personal appearance in the Capital and Wesley Eddy ran up a record run as master of ceremonies that no one but Maxine Doyle, at the Earle, ever has been able to equal. A book could be written about the place.

Greeting patrons during anniversary week, as he has been for the past 20 years, will be Col. Orangelo Ratto, "Angie" to you, "Mayor of F Street" and Washington's best-known and most beloved theater manager. Angie has been a member of the Palace staff since 1921 and manager of the house since 1926. If you have time, he'll count off a conservative 10,000 or so customers he knows by name and describe a million or so more with whom he has a nodding acquaintance. Three other employes have been with the Palace since it opened—Thomas Reed, projectionist; Walter Collins, electrician, and Nell Clark, matron. Nick Toscano, the doorman and official reception committee to all Washington, does not quite equal their record but has been a Palace fixture for 19 years. Never mind that crack about what tempus does. We've got worries enough. Wishing everybody concerned many happy returns, however, isn't one of them.

The Civic Changes Its Pace

Not having thundered quite so loudly as had been anticipated, Robert Ardrey's "Thunder Rock" closed at Wardman Park Saturday night and will be replaced the last two weeks of the projected run—Wednesday through Saturday night of each—by Clare Boothe's "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," a proved Civic Theater success. This sudden move was precipitated principally by an irresistible public demand for a little more gayety than was to be found in Mr. Ardrey's stolid piece, which is more library work than play. Only three substitutions in the original cast will be noted when Miss Boothe's sprightly comedy opens at Wardman Wednesday night. Cort Steen, the aviator in "Thunder Rock," and George T. Buchan will succeed Charles Grunwell and Robert Langley, both called to the colors, and William Zuckert will supplant Kenneth Banghart, convalescing from a recent operation.

ᔓᔓ

Eileen Ritter, the "Sing-a-Song with Mike" girl and mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater, played her last performance as a Roxyette last Thursday night. One of the liveliest and most popular of the unparalleled group, Eileen left Washington Saturday for her home in Middleton, Ohio, where she will renew her acquaintanceship with her family, preliminary to being married in December. And here we have been thinking all along that she already was wedded to her art! But Earle patrons will not be without a Ritter as high priestess of ceremonies. Eileen has handed the whip over to her younger cousin, Joan. Congratulations all around.

Dots and Dashes

As soon as we can get our face straight from reading it, we shall pen Cornelia Otis Skinner a grateful note for the cordially autographed copy of her new book of sketches, "Soap Behind the Ears"... It is a delightfully and characteristically humorous symposium of her pieces appearing originally in the New Yorker, Theater Arts Magazine and elsewhere... But fun! And Jean Dalrymple writes that a copy of Peggy Wood's "How Young You Look" also is on the way, for which hearty thanks in advance—for the book, not the title! ... All Warner Brothers neighborhood theaters will present Armistice Day holiday matinees tomorrow, beginning at 1... And Harry Anger, having scored a smash hit in the training camps with his "Marching Along" revue, first of the lot to make the circuit, is cooking up another to be called "Second Edition of Marching Along."... Rehearsals have already begun with Harry and Cousin Mary Mason in charge... Tomorrow night at 9, the Drama Workshop will hold its second experimental dramatic reading—Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape"—at the Jewish Community Center.

Why-Scenery-Is-Fireproofed Note

"You ain't seen nothing yet" until you have caught Carmen Miranda setting fire to the English language in "Weekend in Havana!"

Trans-Lux

Thrilling shots of the U. S. Navy patrol system of the Atlantic, with its secret bases and planes for the convoys to Britain, are easily tops in the news section at the Trans-Lux Theater for the current week. Also breath-taking, are the splendid pictures from the Russian fronts, showing hundreds of captured men, guns, tanks and ammunition. These pictures prove how firm is the Russian stand against the invading Nazis.

The attraction extraordinary for the week is, "Will Democracy Survive?" third in the International Forum series, and shown for the first time in Washington. Those taking part in the round-table discussion are Senator Claude Pepper, Florida; Fannie Hurst, authoress; Admiral Harry E. Yarnell and Johannes Steele, newspaper columnist.

Other important news items include; Secretary Knox, at the Marine Corps graduation; Duke of Gloucester, inspecting Gibraltar; Gen. Tojo and new Jap cabinet, first R. A. F. Airacobra squadron.

The sports world is all-out for football, with the exception of the corn-husking contest, in LaSalle County, Ill.; surf bathing for invalid horses; the Belmont steeplechase and the roller skating derby at Chicago.

The travelog has to do with "What's Happening in Argentina?" "Little Cesario" is a color cartoon, a bit different.

Gayety

Margie Hart, one of burlesque's outstanding personalities, is the featured attraction at the Gayety Theater this week. The bill is aptly entitled "Heart Breakers" and turns out to be one of the fastest and funniest revues of the current season.

Miss Hart, whose photograph you've probably seen in numerous national magazines, is one of the most publicized women in the profession—and with good reason. A nice looking gal with an electric manner, Margie presents her white-hot musical specialties in a manner both original and daring. Incidentally, Miss Hart wears some stunning gowns, though mostly not!

Heading the comedy portion of the bill are Looney Lewis and Bobby Faye, ably assisted by Billy Crooks and Eddie Yubell. Both boys are making their initial appearance here and a sensationally successfully one. Their numbers are different and very, very funny.

On the distaff side, are such pretties as Irma Vogelee, Lamee Lane and Lillias Cairns. Particularly pleasing is the work of Miss Cairns, who reveals herself as a graceful and talented acrobatic dancer.

Completing the roster are two vaudeville specialities, the dance team of Clayton and Phillips and Tom Collins, a sepian lad who offers a nifty tap dance routine. The settings and lighting are effective, and the youthful chorus well-trained.

ART JOHN.

Hail to Hypnotic Photographer!

LUPE VELEZ

who must have fallen under some potent mesmeric influence to permit of the taking of this exotic portrait study. Usually, Senorita Velez is as placid as a tropical hurricane on the loose. Perhaps she will revert to form—of which she has plenty—in "Honolulu Lu," her next starring venture for Columbia Pictures

HEDDA HOPPER

That 16 to 1 Issue!

Hollywood, Nov. 9.

Good grief! That daughter born to Miriam Hopkins and Brian Donlevy in "Heliotrope Harry" was portrayed by 16 different kids. First seven went from birth to six weeks, second seven to three months, fifteenth shows her at the age of three, and the sixteenth was done by Sharon Douglas, who takes over at eighteen and finishes the job.

MIRIAM HOPKINS

"Gene Tierney is so refreshingly childlike," said Director John Cromwell on the set of "Son of Fury." She brought a bunch of clippings about one of her recent pictures to John and said, "Isn't this awful? Only one of them said nice things about me. Could I be that bad?"

ᔓᔓ

When Ginny Simms was in San Francisco recently, the kids asked for kiss-prints, instead of signatures. In Mexico, says Cary Grant, they asked for dough to go with the autographs. While George Bancroft signed signatures at the Brown Derby, a casting director spotted him, gave him a part in "Syncopation."

ᔓᔓ

In most of his scenes in "Lady for a Night," Ray Middleton is stewed to the gills, but nary a single shot of him imbibing. He's worried stiff for fear his public'll just think it's his nacherl condition.

ᔓᔓ

"Anita Louise" "shadow shape" is the despair of all of us would-be-slender females. Seems she drinks an eggnog instead of tea, and her favorite dessert is hot fudge sundae topped with pecans and whipped cream. Just born lucky!

ᔓᔓ

Warners had better be careful of their selection to play Will Rogers on the screen. If they pick the wrong man, the screen will be torn right out of the theater in Claremont, Okla.

ᔓᔓ

Our inconsistencies are not only heart-breaking, but can and do ruin a man's career. A well-known director, while making a recent picture, kept sending notes to his producer about story changes, thinking they'd reach the head man, and changes would be made. Nothing happened. When picture was finished, it "stunk." Director was called in to the main man for an accounting, and showed him the copy of every note on every change. But by that time another director had been assigned for retakes, and the damage was done.

ᔓᔓ

Orson Welles will m. c. that Victory dinner at Ciro's tonight for the purpose of liberating 49 anti-Hitlerites from concentration camps in France. These men represent the tops in literature, medicine, arts, engineering and science. Arrangements have been perfected to bring them here, but speed is important. It's Hollywood against the Gestapo, with Walter Duranty, Cedric Hardwicke, Ida Lupino, Louis Bromfield, Philip Merivale heading a list of sponsors that reads like the Blue Book.

ᔓᔓ

The night before leaving on their current dance tour, Veloz and Yolanda listened to Phil Ohman improvising at the Mocambo. They liked the tune so much that he wrote it out for them. Yesterday they wired that his number, "Dancing With a Deb" was the hit of their repertoire.

ᔓᔓ

Allan Jones and Irene Hervey leave the first of the year for a singing tour of South America ... Roz Russell's confided to friends that she wants lots of babies.

ᔓᔓ

The Joe E. Browns won't have to worry about the paper shortage for Christmas wrapping. Mrs. Brown's giving Joe a swimming pool, and he's giving her a new fireplace.

ᔓᔓ

There's been so much confusion over how to spell and pronounce Paul Henreid's oft-changed name that his co-workers merely call him "Night Train" ... Incidentally, Paul tells me the reason Rex Harrison, from that picture, hasn't got into the British army yet is that he's near-sighted.

ᔓᔓ

Hal Block knows a radio comic who's in an awful dither—his wife divorced him and won the custody of his gag writer.

ᔓᔓ

Universal is looking for a new girl to take Deanna Durbin's place in "The Phantom of the Opera." Hear Susanna Foster is being considered.

Old Army-Navy Game!

New York, Nov. 9.

Lawrence Langner, who is head of the National Inventors Council, is one of the men in charge of the defense inventions submitted by amateur and professional technicians throughout the country. One of the inventions accepted by the Council was submitted by Hedy Lamarr ... Langner conferred with a U. S. Army official about that invention, and asked: "What do you think of it?" ... "Well, the Army would like to meet Miss Lamarr," said the official, "and ... er ... incidentally, so would the navy."

HEDY LAMARR

ᔓᔓ

Noel Coward's mother, who attended the premiere of Noel's "Blithe Spirit," will return to England in January ... George Hale, the producer, is signing Joe E. Lewis, and Micha Auer for his new show. Hale, who co-produced the Al Jolson musical and is suing Al for having terminated the New York run prematurely, recently wired every chorus girl in the traveling Jolson troupe—and offered them jobs in his forthcoming production ... "Pal Joey"—the character created by John O'Hara in magazine stories which were collected into a best-selling book and then adapted into the current musical comedy hit—has no future, as far as O'Hara is concerned. The author will write no more "Pal Joey" stories.

ᔓᔓ

Milton Douglas, the new singer at La Martinique, went to Dunhill's to order some clothes for his night club opening ... "I need them in a hurry," said Douglas, "and I'd like to see what styles you have?" ... The manager exhibited some suits which the store had just made, but hadn't as yet delivered, for another customer ... "This is your exact size," Douglas was told, "and they should fit you like a king" ... The night club singer tried them on, liked them, and ordered duplicates ... "I told you they'd fit you like a king," said the salesman to the night club singer. "Those suits belong to the Duke of Windsor."

ᔓᔓ

Leonora Corbett, the young British actress, makes her first American appearance as a member of the excellent cast of "Blithe Spirit." Before she was engaged for this play Miss Corbett, newly arrived from London's West End, visited the offices of Wharton & Gable, the producers. She discussed a role in "The Yohimbe Tree," the Alexander King-Clare Boothe play. "But Miss Corbett," she was reminded, "the role calls for a typical, American girl" ... "Yes, yes, 'fcawse," she replied, "but my deah, deah friends tell me that I'm so terrrrrib'ly, terrrrrib'ly Am'rican."

ᔓᔓ

Solen Burry, the former burlesque comic who has applied for a Guggenheim Fellowship, has a new play for which he is trying to find a producer. He met Charles Martin, who produces the radio adaptation of Broadway hits, and complained: "In the unknowns, like me, lies the future and hope of the American theater. If somebody only would give the unknowns a chance. If I, for instance, could arrange a reading of my play" ... "I'll do it," Martin agreed. "I'll hire a group of unknown actors from AFRA, and have them give a reading of your play, before a group of producers" ... "Oh, no," Burry protested. "For the proper reading of my play, I want Joan Crawford and Burgess Meredith."

ᔓᔓ

Jed Harris will write, produce and direct his first picture, for RKO ... Walter Duranty had to go to Hollywood to write his new book, "The Kremlin and the People." "That's the only place I could work without interruption," said Duranty. "Because I work at night—and in Hollywood everyone retires before midnight" ... Democratic leaders now are wagering that Senator Mead will be the candidate for Governorship, and Gov. Lehman will be the candidate for the Senatorship ... Mike Romanoff is doing so well as a restaurateur that he has arranged to have an unlisted telephone number for his cafe. The only Romanoff listed in the directory is "Confucius Romanoff." Confucius is Mike's dog—a gift from Mark Hellinger.

ᔓᔓ

Sinclair Lewis visited the lower East Side, where he saw "The Man of Tomorrow," the Yiddish play at the Downtown National Theater. He went backstage after the show, and expressed his compliments to Samuel Goldenburg. "I like it very much," said Lewis ... "That's because you don't understand the language," said Goldenburg ... "But I do," Lewis assured him. "I have a smattering of German—enough to like the Yiddish tongue, and to detest Hitler's."

ᔓᔓ

For the fourth successive evening, George Jessel's "High Kickers" played to standees. On his way home from the theater, Jessel wrote a note to a critic who hadn't liked the show ... "Maybe you were right," was the message George wrote, "but the amount of business we do will tell" ... He then added this postscript: "Please pardon the pencil. I'm writing this in my new Rolls-Royce. It has everything, except a fountain pen."

Pix

That winningly adult comedy, "The Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn playing the role which won back for her a vast public and which copped for James Stewart the much-prized "Oscar," was reviewed over the weekend by the Pix Theater, where it will continue through tomorrow evening.

Viewed again after a year, this sharply chiseled screen version of the Philip Barry stage success retains its adroitness of dialogue and its thoughtful comments on the relationships among humans. The characters are as vividly defined as ever, with John Halliday's understanding father seeming the finer for a second view.

Besides Miss Hepburn and Stewart, the charming quadrangle is completed by Cary Grant and Ruth Hussey, both expert at the art of polite banter. John Howard is the suitor who doesn't suit, while Virginia Weidler, Roland Young and Mary Nash appear as other members of the Main Line family. In case you missed it, here's a chance to catch up with yourself.

Garfield Emotes On a Shoestring

Actors are always turning up with queer superstitions, but credit for the strangest so far goes to John Garfield.

Before he goes into a take in his new Warner Bros. picture, "Dangerously They Live," Johnny always bends down and reties his shoelace on his right shoe.

Johnny says he isn't quite sure how and where the supersition began, but he guesses it had something to do with reminding himself always to start out with the right foot forward.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

As near as we can decipher our miserable shorthand, these are our notes of the Notre Dame-Navy game and what they might mean:

POVICH

"A Beaut." This could mean, of course, Linda Darnell, the first girl ever to crash a Naval Academy press box, but it doesn't. It's our two-word, monosyllabic reaction to the football game we were watching at Baltimore. Down on that field was football to please the scholars of the game and bate the breadth of even the 'mum wearers. On that day when the list of the great games of the generation is finally posted, they'll have to include "Notre Dame-Navy, 1941."

For sheer ferocity it rivaled even the Boston College-Georgetown game of last season which produced everything but fanged football. Ball carriers were hit with all the force of a sidewalk tackling a falling body. The mountage of thuds as the big Irish and Navy lines collided sounded like the snorting grunts of twin monsters. The old pair of linemen, Swede Larson and Frank Leahy, had coached their teams well.

You saw the forward pass win over the running attack. Notre Dame won by its only chance to beat Navy, Bertelli's passes. The Irish had no ball carriers to challenge Navy's Howie Clark and Bill Busik. Nor as smart a line to spring them loose. But when Bertelli drew back his throwing arm there was bewilderment in the Navy secondary. The latest statistics show that Bertelli threw all 18 of the Irish passes and completed 13 of them.

"Rock." In his celestial abode, Knute Rockne probably gasped at the streamlining of the Rockne system by his former pupil, Leahy. Scarcely recognizable to Notre Dame men was Leahy's version of Rockne football. The box and the single wing that was the brand of Rockne teams served merely to window-dress Leahy's T-formations and spread plays. This was a far shout from Rockne. It was an original Leahy, exhibiting much of the same plays he had devised for his unbeaten Boston College team last year.

But withal, Rockne probably looked on approvingly. Perhaps during the last ten years he had been finding fault with his immediate successors at Notre Dame, Hunk Anderson and Elmer Layden. Perhaps they were hewing too close to Rockne football when the changing times demand new innovations. The men who knew Rock well used to say that his teams were always ahead of the football trend. Leahy's first Notre Dame team is certainly anything but dated.

"Howie." That notation has to mean Howie Clark, the little 150-pound Navy back who with all due respect to Bertelli, was the finest backfield man on the field at Baltimore. Only slightly less proficient than Bertelli with his passes was Clark's own passing, and on the same afternoon the little Californian was an All-American ball-carrier.

Certainly the most inspiring exhibition of the afternoon was Clark's one-man charge toward what barely missed being the tying touchdown in the final quarter. On a 56-yard drive that contained 12 Navy plays that carried to the Irish 3-yard line, Clark took the ball nine times. When he wasn't carrying the ball, Navy wasn't gaining. The source of his leg drive is still a mystery, but he was moving through the Irish line as if motor-driven. Bad quarter backing by somebody, perhaps himself, may have cost Navy the tying touchdown when, with the ball on the Notre Dame 2-line, Clark was sent around end and smeared for a 5-yard loss by Juzwick after never failing to gain at the tackles and guards.

"Redskins." They had nothing to do with the ball game, of course, but it was a carbon copy of an old Redskin play that sent Steve Juzwik over the goal line for Notre Dame's second touchdown. Dick Todd once ran 90 yards for a touchdown against Brooklyn on the same play.

In the old days it used to be called the screen pass and for a time there was a loud whoop over its legality. The play is simply executed. The pass catcher, Juzwik, in this case, never crossed the line of scrimmage until he took a short throw from Bertelli behind center. The Notre Dame line meanwhile merely checked and then let Navy forwards sift through, and the bulk of Navy's team was in the rear of Juzwik while in front of him was a wave of his own blockers to take him down field. There was no chance to rush the passer inasmuch as Bertelli had only a short throw to make to an appointed spot.

Juzwik's blockers took him most of the way but at the 5-yard line, where he was strictly on his own, he met up with Donaldson, defensive center, and Woods, Navy halfback. They didn't distinguish themselves at that point with their tackling attempts and Juzwik, with a fancy wriggle, went all the way.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Behind the Scores:

PITTS, 13; FORDHAM, 0—When this thumping news was announced we recalled something Jock Sutherland had said a few days before. He said, "Don't kid yourself. The talent at Pitt is as good as it ever was. The school is still getting just about the best of the region." That, plus Fordham's overconfidence, plus perhaps too many visions of too many Bowls, plus a grand young football player from Scranton named Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones, curdled what should have been Jim Crowley's greatest season. We suspect that if the clubs played again tomorrow, it would be the other way around. But this isn't the first fight that was ever won with a well-timed, well-conceived sneak punch.

CONSIDINE

NOTRE DAME, 20; NAVY, 13—What a superb ball game this was! The hitting was terrific all day, and the deeds of merit would fill a book. Angelo Bortolo Bertelli is a passer who in years to come may make pro league fans forget Sam Baugh. Dippy Evans was a dervish all day, as were Steve Juzwik and the substitute end, Kovatch. Between those last two Notre Dame generated the defense it so sorely needed with a stirring Navy team, paced by a 150-pound projectile named Howie Clark, came within three excruciating yards of tying the score in the fourth period. But, ah, that Angelo—how she can peetch!

PENN, 19; COLUMBIA, 16—Department of utter confusion. With eight minutes to go Columbia was trailing, 19-14. Governali was back in kick formation, deep in his own territory. He got the ball, started to pass it, couldn't find a man at first, then flipped it over the heads of two pursuers into the adjacent arms of McIlvennan, who ran 53 yards to plant the ball on Penn's 30 and set the Columbia stands mad with joy. But Referee Bill Maginnes called everything off, ruled that Governali's knee had touched the ground on the Lion 10-yard line, and then put the ball in play on the 17 by mistake. He was assailed by fans afterward, but Lou Little raised no squawk, after speaking to the officials. It would have been a stirring victory for Columbia, if it could have capitalized on this, but a cruel break for Penn—which was the bigger, stronger and better team.

TEXAS, 7; BAYLOR, 7—The story here seems to be that Pete Layden, Mal Kutner and Julian Garrett, regular fullback, end and tackle, were too battered to play. And that Noble Doss, the Texas halfback, was about half his usual self with a bad ankle. But that left Jack Crain and quite a bit of the same club which hadn't won by less than four touchdowns in six previous starts and which had made sparing use of its stars. So all hail to Baylor for a first-class upset. Its fine back, Kitt Kittrell, moved it 82 yards in the closing minutes to get this tie, which caused as much jubilation at Texas A. and M. (still unbeaten and untied) as at Baylor.

STANFORD, 13; SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, 6—The Indians, who earlier in the season blew a game to Oregon State, can now start looking around for a Rose Bowl opponent. It might be of interest to proteam owners who like to say that there is no place for pro ball on the Coast to learn that 45,000 customers bought tickets for this game on Saturday morning alone—to up the total crowd to 87,000.

MINNESOTA, 9; NEBRASKA, 6—Fifteen straight, and a little child (145-pound and runty Bud Higgins) led 'em. The Gophers won this tough one without Bruce Smith. Higgins, who beat Northwestern, set up the Gopher touchdown, then kicked a frozen ball into a strong head wind and out of bounds on the Nebraska three—to set up the place-kick.

HARVARD, 20; ARMY, 6—Lemme see, Navy and Harvard tide. Hmm, that makes Navy two touchdowns better than Army. But Navy couldn't score on Harvard. Hmm . . . nothing times 14 equals the divisional ratio of the cube root of Slippery Rock's backfield. Anyway, Harvard found a scoring punch to match its defense, Army is still a credit to our Army, and don't miss the Army-Navy game.

DUKE, 56; DAVIDSON, 0—Somebody on the Davidson team must have broken training.

Dodgers Tumble Redskins From Lead, 13 to 7

Redskin Quick Kick That Wasn't Quick Enough—the Dodgers Capitalized

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Much of the Redskins' trouble as they went down to a 13-7 defeat before the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday resulted from this Sammy Baugh quick kick which was blocked by Bruiser Kinard on Washington's 20-yard line. The Dodgers scored their first touchdown soon afterward. Redskin players shown are Hare (11), Zimmerman (22) and Barber (15), and Dodgers are Kristufek (19) and Ricinski (26)

Sam Baugh's Late Aerials Prove Futile

31,713 Fans Witness 'Skins Loss in Rain As McAdams' Pass Leads to Score

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Brooklyn, Nov. 9.—Sammy Baugh threw three terrifying final minutes at the Brooklyn Dodgers here today in a pressure-packed climax to a great ball game but his touchdown bids fell into opposing hands with seconds to play and left the Redskins on the short end of a 13-7 score.

The defeat, patterned after last year's game here which found Baugh firing passes in the final minutes with his team two points behind, knocked the Redskins into second place in the Eastern Division of the National Pro League. For in the neighboring Polo Grounds the New York Giants beat the Detroit Lions and regained the top rung on the standings and now even the once-lowly Dodgers loom as a title threat, just a half game back of Washington.

Brooklyn had scored the winning touchdown with less than five minutes to play in the final period when Don Wemple, replacement for the great end, Perry Schwartz, caught a Don McAdams pass on the 2 and toppled over into the end zone wrapped tightly in Andy Farkas' arms.

'Skins Start Last Drive

After each team lost the ball on following sets of downs, the Redskins took over on their own 20-yard line with 2 minutes and 45 seconds to go.

The 31,713 at Ebbets Field, some still wet from the downpour of rain in the first half and all of them shivering with cold, sensed the dramatic moments to follow. They knew it was going to be Sammy Baugh at the passing controls in a desperate touchdown bid, which if it failed may cost the Redskins the title.

The lean Texan stepped back, wiped his fingers on the only remaining dry spot on his uniform and went to work. A bullet-like pass to Ray Hare was good for 4 yards and then Slingin' Sam faded far back and whipped a long one to Boy Seymour, who watched it evade his eager grasp in Dodger territory. It was sure a touchdown if good.

Clair Stopped

Frank Clair was stopped in his tracks after taking a short hard pass, and it was fourth down and three for the 'Skins on their own 27. The next one had to be good, and it was, a long, accurate heave to surprise Receiver Vic Carroll, who was hauled down on the Dodger 45. Just one minute and 45 seconds to go now.

The Dodgers were on the panicky side by now. Al Kreuger, the clutch pass receiver for Southern California, a Rose Bowl hero, came into the game for one of his specialties and on the first play Baugh whipped a low aerial which Kreuger snatched on the 12-yard line, another first down, and the big clock showed 81 seconds.

Baugh passed short to Kreuger but Pug Manders threw a savage tackle to inflict a two-yard loss and when Jim Barber came in for

27,875 Watch Giants Down Lions, 20 to 13

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—The New York Giants smeared the Detroit Lions, 20-13, in the mud and rain of the Polo Grounds today to climb back into first place in the Eastern Division pennant chase of the National Professional Football League.

With a chilled crowd of 27,875 customers cheering them on, the revamped New Yorkers snapped out of their two-game losing slump by clicking for a touchdown in the first period, adding a pair of field goals and then clinching the argument with a 58-yard march for the deciding points at the start of the final chukker.

The Lions, meantime, looked like a well-oiled machine only in spasms. While Whizzer White was in there galloping, the Detroits were able to move. When the former Colorado All-American was on the bench, the Westerners just couldn't untrack, particularly in the first half, when the Giants pushed them all over the field.

Drop to Second

The victory, coupled with the defeat of the Washington Redskins in Brooklyn, boosted the Giants back up to the top of the list in the East after a one-week dive into second place. The defeat dropped the Lions into fourth place in the Western race, back of the idle Chicago Cardinals.

With Bill Edwards, the former Baylor Bear, bolstering the Giant line and Tuffy Leemans spear-heading the backs both in running and passing, the New Yorkers piled up nine first downs, 114 yards rushing and 128 yards passing during the afternoon, and excepting in the fourth quarter were just about the whole show. The Lions collected six first downs, rushed only 53 yards and passed for 63.

The Giants started the scoring late in the opening period after receiving a punt on the Lion 43.

Duquesne's Power Subdues St. Mary's, 9-0

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—Duquesne's Fighting Dukes battered a bulkier St. Mary's football team into submission today to score a 9 to 0 victory and retain their proud status as one of the four remaining unbeaten, untied major college teams of the country.

It increased the victory string of the swift striking Eastern squad to 12 straight, a record that had its beginning after the third game of last season, when Mississippi came out on the long end of a 14 to 6 count.

The ukes, outweighed but decidedly not outplayed, settled down to workman-like business as they came out for the start of the third period. They received the kickoff and in eight plays scored a touchdown.

Penalties Hurt Lions in Loss To Hershey

By Jack Munhall

Playing the same reckless brand of hockey popularized by their coach, Ching Johnson, the Washington Lions last night roughed themselves out of a 4-to-3 overtime match with the Hershey Bears, second of the American League western division clubs to visit Uline Arena.

Before an estimated 3500 fans, including 1500 service men who were admitted free, the Lions drew two damaging penalties for roughness to induce their second defeat against two victories and as many ties this season.

First of the two fouls that greatly helped the Bears to win win was called against Defenseman Leo Lamoureaux for fighting with Hershey's Kilby MacDonald. At the time that Lamoureaux and MacDonald mixed it up, Washington was leading, 3-2, with about seven minutes remaining of the third period. Lamowreaux was penalized five minutes for "starting" the fight, but MacDonald drew only a two-minute sentence.

During the three-minute interval when Hershey had the Lions outnumbered, the Bears deadlocked the count on a long goal by Big Frank Goldham.

Draws Penalty

Then in the overtime period after the Bears had forged ahead, 4-3, on a marker by MacDonald, Defenseman Alex Singbush dissipated any hopes the Lions might have had of a tying rally by drawing a penalty for tripping.

While Singbush languished in the cooler the Lions not only were unable to launch any powerful drives for a deadlocking score, but they were hard pressed to stave off further points by the Bears, smoothest passing outfit yet to invade here.

Prior to Goldham's goal that sent the rough match into overtime, the Lions had appeared the winners. Center Frank Mailley, a Lions' ac-

Bears Crush Rams, 31-13 and Set Record

Chicago Smashes First-Down Mark as 18,102 Look On; Champs Halted Early

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 9.—For one period today, the Chicago Bears played like the team that lost to the Green Bay Packers last week, but they turned on the power in the next three quarters to wallop the Cleveland Rams, 31 to 13, in a National Football League game before 18,102 spectators in Wrigley Field.

The Bears, up to their old ways once they got under way, set a new National League record of 24 first downs. The previous high was 22, made by the Green Bay Packers against the same Cleveland team earlier this season.

The Bears scored four touchdowns, two in the second, one in the third and one in the fourth, and also made two field goals. Only one point after touchdown was converted.

The most sensational scoring play came in the final quarter when Bill Osmanski, of the Bears, intercepted a pass by Parker Hall on the Chicago 42-yard line. Osmanski ran to the Cleveland 43, where he was trapped, but he lateraled to Teammate George McAfee, who raced the rest of the way to the goal line.

The Bears, who were knocked out of the Western Division lead last week by the Packers, gained back a half game because of the first-place Green Bay club's idleness today.

In the initial period the Bears played like they were still bucking the Packer defense. They made one scoring drive on numerous short gains which carried them from their own 41 to the Rams' 1 yard line. But they couldn't get it over the goal.

Their next try was successful. Starting from the Chicago 45, the Bears sped 41 yards on Sid Luckman's pass to Dick Plasman and another Luckman throw ruled complete on interference. On the first play of the second period Chicago broke the ice, Bill Osmanski plunging to the 4 and then going over for the score. The try for the point was missed.

In a half minute the Bears were on their way again, with a 17-yard run by Bob Swisher and a 41-yard gallop by McAfee taking the ball to the Cleveland 2. Osmanski took the ball from Bob Snyder and went over. Snyder's kick was good and the Bears led, 13 to 0.

With 4½ minutes left, the Rams scored, piling up three straight first downs on Parker Hall's accurate passing. The touchdown came on Hall's long pass from the Bears' 34 to Howard Hickey, who nabbed it on the 2 and fell into the end zone.

Todd Injured, May Be Out For Season

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

En Route to Washington, Nov. 9.—Dick Todd may have dodged his way to his last gain of the 1941 season for your Redskins. The little halfback suffered a badly torn ligament in his left leg in the second half of today's battle with the Dodgers and Dr. Pete Moran, the club physician, said, "Todd will be out of action for three or four weeks."

That means that the former Texas A. and M. star is sure to miss the games with the Bears, Giants and Packers, in addition to being a doubtful starter in the scheduled finale of the season against the Eagles.

The tone of Dr. Moran's voice seemed to indicate that Dick is through for the year. However, after having the injury taped tightly, Todd spurned the use of a wheel chair or crutches and, with some help, limped to the train.

His First Leg Injury

This is the first time in his career that Todd has had a leg injury and one of the few times that he has been taken from a game. His injury is described as tear of the inner-lateral ligament in the region of his knee. It is in a vulnerable spot for Todd, who makes most of his gains by quick stops and changes of direction.

Todd was hurt when he was tackled by Perry Schwartz, Dodger end, after Dick had made a dash into the left side of the Brooklyn line. Unnecessary roughness would be a mild definition of the way the massive Schwartz handled Todd. However, the officials did not act.

The elimination of Todd just about completes the rout of the backfield known as "Filchock's combination." Illness forced Bob Hoffman out, Wilbur Moore broke his collarbone and, in addition, Frank Filchock again injured his already ailing left shoulder. Frank, however, has informed all concerned that he will be ready for the Bears next Sunday.

Coach Ray Flaherty was anything except a happy man tonight.

"It looks like Turk Edwards will be playing wingback and I'll be in there at tailback before this thing is over," said Flaherty.

Regarding the game, he said that he had seen few football lines in better charging form than that of the Dodgers today. "They were a good ball club today and they played a winning game," said the coach.

Millner Is Hero

One of the biggest heroes in the defeat was Wayne Millner. The former Notre Dame ace not only paved a way for the Redskins' lone touchdown with that 33-yard run on a pass from Baugh but he also was at his best defensively. Millner several times tackled ball carriers for losses and he continually rushed passers.

Vic Carroll again lived up to his

Fort Myer Horse Takes Touch-and-Out Event As Last-Minute Entry

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 9.—A last minute decision to enter Hi-Ho in the touch-and-out class just as the National Horse Show entries were closing developed in a spectacular victory for Lieut. and Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, jr.'s great-hearted little chestnut mare at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Lone performer to get past the fourth fence of the difficult 8-jump course, Hi-Ho was leaping in the best form of her career, despite an injury five months ago that left her with only one eye. Earlier in the show she had qualified for appearance in the finals of the class with a high-bouncing round that put her near the top of the list, but experts considered her accounting tonight as even superior to other effort.

Faced with competition that included 12 of the Nation's finest leapers, the part-Hackney mare gave her followers one uneasy moment when she came into a 4½-foot Toronto bank fence on her blind side, got in unexpectedly close, and managed to twist carefully in mid-air to avoid hitting it.

Mrs. Hughes almost decided to enter Hi-Ho in the 5-foot jumping, one of the other features of the show, but her husband urged her to

Wickey Harkins Slight Favorite Over Phil Furr Tonight

Welters in 10-Rounder At Turner's

Local Fighter in Excellent Shape; Landis, Fernando Meet in 6-Rounder

By Tony Neri

Clinging to the newly adopted policy of staging weekly boxing shows, Messrs. Joe Turner and Gabe Menendez present the second edition of their winter series tonight with Wickey Harkins, of Germantown, Pa., and Phil Furr, of Washington, in the leading roles.

The main event is scheduled for ten rounds and the scene of action will be Turner's Arena, located at Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest.

The boys along Post Square have installed Harkins a slight choice in the betting. The Germantown battler is a rough, tough two-handed fighter who can box when the occasion demands. Under the management of Charley Bennett, Harkins has compiled an excellent record in the welterweight division.

Carves Trees for Living

Harkins is 24 years old, married and the father of two boys. When not training for a boxing contest, he is employed as a tree surgeon for the State of Pennsylvania. Around Philadelphia Harkins is considered one of the best club fighters in the game.

Furr, on the other hand, is no neophyte in the beak-busting business. He has been around a long time and still possesses the ring cunning and punching power that stamped him an outstanding contender a couple of years ago.

He is currently in superb shape, a condition Phil hasn't always adhered to. But Phil has been training faithfully for this bout and looks in the "pink."

Furr Beats Franklin

In his last encounter, Furr outpointed Al Franklin at the ball park in August. The victory settled an old score for Phil as Franklin had previously beaten him.

The supporting card lists a pair of six-round bouts and two fours. In the 6-round semi-windup, Ray Landis, a local product and protege of Furr, engages Fred Fernando, of New York. The other six pits Carroll Alexander and Wayne Stewart, local featherweights. In the fours, Rosecoe Perry meets Tommy Hoover and Jimmy Hill fights Horace Jones. The first bout is listed for 8:30 p. m.

SHORT JABS—Claudio Villar, Spanish heavyweight, who is making Washington his home at present, was rated the best heavyweight prospect of the month for November by the Ring Magazine. Villar made a hit here in a bout against Lee Savold on the Blunt-Poland card. It appears doubtful that the Harry Bobo-Lee Savold bout will be staged here. The much-postponed heavyweight scrap was last shifted to Riverside Stadium for November 19, but Bobo's manager is balking at the change. A Pittsburgh informant sends word that Bobo will be used by Matchmaker Jake Mintz in the main bout of his November 26 show.

Promoter Johnny Attell is expected to send word down from New York this week telling of the signing of a pair of leading middleweights for a show November 17 at Uline Arena.

Another request to the District Boxing Commission: "How about reinstating Bob Hayden?"

Romney Wins Title

Romney, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Ringing the bell for a touchdown in every quarter, Coach Bob Kyle's Romney High gridmen routed Bill Hahn's Ridgeley High combination, 24-0, here yesterday afternoon to capture their second consecutive Potomac Valley Conference football championship.

William & Mary, Duke Still Top Conference

Blue Devils Engage North Carolina State, Indians Idle This Saturday

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9.—It was three down and two to go in the waning 1941 football season for Duke and William and Mary, Southern Conference championship race leaders.

Tied for the top spot with a trio of loop successes, Duke meets neighboring North Carolina at Durham Saturday while William and Mary has an open date in preparation for the Indians' annual Thanksgiving Day clash with Richmond.

Both of these clubs wind up their campaign's against North Carolina State, Duke playing the Wolfpack on November 22, and W. & M. on November 29.

It was soft pickings for the high-powered Blue Devils at Davidson yesterday, Duke winning 56-0 for a total of 149 points against 14 in three family tilts played.

The Dukemen are the loop's only undefeated team, boasting circuit decisions over Wake Forest and Maryland; intersectional triumphs over Pitt and Colgate, and wins over Tennessee and Georgia Tech of the Southeastern Conference.

Boast 7 Victories

William and Mary has won seven games in eight, losing only to Navy, and holds a major intersectional scalp as the result of a 3-0 verdict over Dartmouth. Within the conference, W. & M. handed Virginia Tech's Gobblers their only family setback in four starts, routed George Washington 48-0, and yesterday swept over V. M. I., 21-0. The latter game marked the first time this season that V. M. I.'s Joe Muha-Bosh Pritchard backfield combination had been held scoreless. The Cadets had piled up four touchdowns against Richmond, three against Army, two each against Temple and Davidson and one each against Clemson and Virginia.

South Carolina's strong club, which lost to Kansas State, of the Big Six Conference, 3 to 1, Saturday, returns to the loop wars by playing host to Furman this weekend. The Gamecocks have beaten North Carolina, Clemson's 1940 champions, and The Citadel, and tied Wake Forst in four conference games.

Next in Line

Clemson and Virginia Tech, with three out of four, are the next ranking circuit squads, while Wake Forest also has won three, but lost one and tied one.

Clemson's Tigers, conquerors of Boston College and beaten only by South Carolina, engages Wake Forest in one of the feature scraps listed for Saturday. Other counting toward the loop standings are Davidson, at Washingon & Lee and V. M. I. at Maryland.

North Carolina State, nosed 14 to 13 by Virginia Tech yesterday, travels to Georgetown, and George Washington's Colonials, who scored their first touchdown in six games in losing to Furman, 6 to 14, entertain Bucknell Friday night. Other conference teams have open dates this week.

The standings:

	W.	L.	T.	PP.	PA.
Duke	3	0	0	149	14
William and Mary	3	0	0	83	7
South Carolina	3	0	1	50	33

Generals Meet Davidson in Home-Coming

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9.—Washington and Lee's Generals will perform before a homecoming crowd at Lexington Saturday against Davidson's Southern Conference football tailenders.

The University of Virginia's Cavaliers, victors in six of seven games this season, tackle Lehigh in a game which should give the Cavaliers' All-American candidate, Bill Dudley, a good chance to boost his scoring, rushing and passing totals.

The only other college game in the State this week will be Randolph-Macon's tilt with Blue Ridge College at Ashland Saturday.

The battered V. M. I. club, which has broken even in four Southern Conference games, engages Maryland at College Park and Roanoke goes to Catawba.

Meet Thanksgiving

Richmond and William and Mary will spend this week preparing for their Thanksgiving Day meeting, while Virginia Tech also has an open date ahead of the annual engagement with V. M. I. Hampden-Sydney will be idle before a season's finale at Randolph-Macon on November 22.

Emory and Henry closed out its 1941 card with a 12-2 triumph over Tusculum Saturday. The record of five successes in eight games is the best turned in by the Wasps in several years.

Washington and Lee and Davidson appear to be evenly matched on paper, with the Generals perhaps having an edge in the line, and Davidson, with Spencer and Fredericks as threats, having the most imposing set of backs.

Both Need Victory

Both clubs need a victory badly to brighten up their records for the season. Davidson hasn't yet won a game, but tied Hollins and North Carolina State. W. and L.'s Generals have beaten Richmond, tied George Washington and lost to five other foes. They met one common rival, Virginia Tech, with the Gobblers trouncing Davidson, 16 to 0, and W. and L., 19 to 3.

Virginia opened with a 32-to-0 victory over Lehigh last year and the Pennsylvanians appear to have about the same caliber ball club this year. The 1941 Cavaliers are stronge and should be able to use this game as a final proving ground for the North Carolina scrap on the following Thursday.

Virginia's 27-to-7 decision over W. and L. Saturday was the fourth Big Six verdict of the season for the Cavaliers and assures them at least a ties toke on the State title with William and Mary. The Indians have beaten V. P. I. and V. M. I., the latter bowing, 21 to 0, yesterday, and wind up their State campaigns against Richmond, November 20.

The "Big Six" standings:

	W.	Y.	PF.	PA.
Virginia	4	0	132	14
William and Mary	2	0	77	7
Washington and Lee	1	2	31	40
V. M. I.	1	2	39	85
Virginia Tech	1	2	23	53
Richmond	0	3	7	90

Winning Service Club Finds Barracks on Fire

Spartansburg, S. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Camp Croft football team really turned on the heat when it beat Western Carolina Teachers College, 41 to 0, here yesterday. But things were still hotter out at the camp. When the soldier-footballers got home, they found their barracks gutted by fire.

Bears Crush Rams, 31 to 13, Set Record

Chet Adams' kick was good and the Rams trailed only 13 to 7.

The Chicagoans were thwarted of a touchdown in another drive of 62 yards as the end of the first half neared. Lee Artoe kicked a field goal with three seconds left, the Bears leading at the half, 16 to 7.

From the opening kickoff of the second half the Bears turned loose another barrage of running and passing with Hugh Gallarneau shooting across the goal line from the 6 for a 22-7 Chicago lead.

The Rams countered with an 88-yard march to score. Corby Davis and Hall raced in three plays to the Chicago 45 and Hall passed to Howard Hickey, who wasn't nailed until he reached the 3. Hall went over for the touchdown.

Harold Lahar's field goal after the Bears had been stopped on the Cleveland 13 made the score 25 to 13 for Chicago in the fourth period and the Osmanski-McAfee romp later in the quarter completed the scoring.

Redskins Get Bid To Soccer, Rugby Games Wednesday

Sammy Baugh and Andy Farkas and other Washington Redskin mates will have a chance to view football as it's played in Merrie Old England when they are guests of honor at the rugby and soccer matches Wednesday night at Griffith Stadium.

Announcement of the pro stars' invitation was made yesterday by the American Legion committee sponsoring the program for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps, Bundles for Britain and the local Community Chest. Performers will be crew members of the Illustrious and Formidable, British airplane carriers now docked at Norfolk for repairs.

Baugh, the committee said, may be induced to help in public address reporting of the two games. Soccer will open hostilities, after which the first authentic rugby match in the District will be staged. Periods in both affairs will be slightly shortened.

Plaza Eleven Wins

The Plaza Victors' 145-pound eleven won its fifth straight game yesterday by defeating the Georgetown Trojans, 33-6, on the Monument lot field.

Billy Ham, Old-Time Jockey, Passes Away

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—William Henry (Billy) Ham, 65, one of the great jockeys of the country in a past generation, died today at Auburn City Hospital.

Years ago, before the horse gave way to the automobile, Billy Ham was known in the racing world as one of the ace jockeys in the big circuits. At one time he had his own racing stable in Chicago.

Hoyas Lone .500 Eleven In D. C. Ranks

Last weekend's games were significant for the four local college elevens, but for all but Georgetown the significance was unfortunate. American University finished its season with a 16-3 loss to Juniata for a final record of only one victory and five defeats, and both George Washington and Maryland were consigned to losing seasons.

This leaves Georgetown as the only local team able to finish the year with a winning mark. The Hoyas, by drubbing Maryland, 26-0, lifted their record to the .500 level at three triumphs and three losses and now must win two of their three remaining games to escape a losing season.

George Washington and Maryland both have only two games to play and consequently neither can possibly finish with a winning record. The Colonials have won only one game, tied one and lost four. Maryland has won two, tied one and dropped four. This will be G. W.'s first losing season under Coach Bill Reinhart.

George Washington's next test will be with Bucknell Friday night at Griffith Stadium, while Maryland meets V. M. I. at home Saturday in a Southern Conference game. At best, G. W. will be an even money choice and Maryland a slight underdog.

Hoyas Meet State

The other game of the week here, at the stadium Saturday, will pit Georgetown against North Carolina State, whose 13-14 upset by V. P. I. removed much of the polish from this attraction. Georgetown will be favored to take State and also Manhattan and Xavier of Cincinnati, in that order, in their other games.

The final Georgetown-Maryland game turned out as predicted, with the Hoyas proving four touchdowns better than the Terps and adding insult to injury by beating the Liners at their own game—passing.

Frank Dornfeld, by his fine all-around exhibition against Maryland, finally justified Coach Jack Hagerty's optimistic expectations. Before the season Hagerty enthusiastically described the shifty, triple-threat Dornfeld as just the back needed to make Georgetown's spread formation move. But until Maryland, Dornfeld had been anything but a success. His feat of completing 9 of 13 passes for 142 yards and three direct and one indirect touchdowns, however, was enough to convince all witnesses that Dornfeld, when in form, is indeed the great back that Hagerty said he was.

Ready for State

Dornfeld's return to the stardom he enjoyed in last year's Orange Bowl game with Mississippi State in which he was Georgetown's outstanding back means that the Hoyas' attack for North Carolina State should be at its season's best. For both Benny Bulvin and Joe Gyorgydeak are expected to be back in shape at that time and to resume their regular places in the line-up.

With Bulvin and Gyorgydeak back, Coach Hagerty will have a slight problem on his hands. In order to get Dornfeld into the first line-up, he'll either have to put him in Bulvin's place at tailback, or substitute him for Benny Reiges at wingback. The second alternative is the one Hagerty is likely to carry out.

Army Invited To Coast Game

Los Angeles, Nov 9 (AP).—Army's football team has been invited to play a postseason football game here December 14, against a top California Service eleven.

Harry Myers, Los Angeles American Legion official, said today the academy team had been asked to play either Moffit Field's team or the winner of an Armistice Day game here between Fort Ord and Camp San Luis Obispo in Memorial Coliseum.

Dodgers Win Thriller As 'Skins' Rally Fails

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

REDSKINS AMBUSH DODGER PASS—Merlyn Condit (left, hands in air) and Perry Schwartz (light headgear), of Brooklyn's Dodgers were all set to snag this first period pass when two, Washington Redskins ambushed them. Nobody caught it

Brooklyn Scores First and Last in 13-7 Victory; Baugh's Passing Checked in Last Seconds

Bill Young to stop the clock it was too many times out for the Redskins and a five-yard penalty, back to the 19. Sammy slipped back this time but charging around end came Schwartz, an outstanding end today, and before Baugh got the pass away Schwartz buried him in the mud back on the 29-yard line.

Leckeonby Intercepts

Fourth down again, less than 30 seconds to go and every person in Ebbets Field standing for one last Redskin attempt. Baugh took the ball again, stepped back and fired a low pass, intended for a mud-covered receiver but it never reached its goal as Bill Leckeonby stepped in for a threat-ending interception for the Dodgers and before they put the ball in play the game was over.

The Dodgers were first and last to score today. They hit the numbers first in the opening moments of the second period when Pug Manders, also known as the league's leading ground gainer, added 2 feet and a touchdown to his total with a smash off right center.

Bruiser Kinard was the motivating force behind this one, however, as the all-league guard and All-American from Ole Miss, threw 220 pounds into an attempted Baugh quick kick and blocked it out on the Redskin 12-yard line where the Dodgers took over.

Manders Scores

This was in the last 2 minutes of the first period when the driving rain made play difficult. Ace Parker parted the mud for 4 yards and Merlyn Condit took a reverse from Parker and crawled to the one where Jim Barber and Ed Cifers temporarily stopped the touchdown bid. A new Redskin team tok the field at this point, the end of the first quarter, and stopped Pug Manders on the first attempt but he sailed through on the second and Condit added the seventh point.

It's too bad the Redskins did not win today for they took the ball on the following kickoff and marched to a touchdown in a drive which was a thing of beauty and was deserving of winning a ball game. Andy Farkas put the score in motion by returning the kickoff to his own 32.

Here Baugh decided it was pass time and despite the slippery ball, which received a towel massage after every play, he stepped briskly back behind a wall of protectors and fired a spinning pass in Wayne Millner's direction, towards the left hand out-of-bounds stripe and well in Dodger territory. Millner was chugging at top speed, past the Dodger safety men and on into the muddy infield of the baseball diamond. The pass looked too long but Millner was not to be denied on this one in a desperate grasp which must have ripped his arms from their sockets he pulled down the wet pigskin, off balance, and danced along the white stripe until he finally fell out on the 12-yard line after a 53-yard gain.

Tally for Seymour

Andy Farkas slipped wide to the left from the Redskin shift on the next play and while Dodger eyes followed him Baugh passed swiftly to the right corner of the end zone where Bob Seymour, playing his first starting game with the Redskin second quarter team, was alone as he tucked it to his gold jersey for the touchdown. The Redskins were all gold attired today as the Dodgers were in their home uniforms of red, a conflict with the usual burgandy jerseys of the 'skins. Ky Aldrich was called on the placekicker and he made good to tie the score.

Ace Parker and Dean McAdams between them matched Baugh's passing yardage for the day and it was the latter, who played his college ball for the University of Washington, who set up the second and decisive Dodger touchdown with a succession of completed passes in the final period.

Brooklyn had been marching in one potential scoring drive after the other and each time they finished deep enough in Redskin territory so there was no alternative for the visitors but to kick.

Dodgers Superior

The Dodgers started with the one that counted from their own 48. McAdams passing for successive first downs to Herman Hodges and McAdams and then Leckonby picked up interference for a 12-yard gain to the Redskin 26. McAdams took this occasion to fade back and loft a 24-yard pass to Wemple, the rookie end from Colgate, who scored from the 2. Condit's kick was low.

The statistics, which often paint a confusing picture as to the outstanding team, were all-revealing today in showing 17 first downs to 8 in favor of the Dodgers and more than 150-yard edge in total gains.

You can stop at two when looking for the Redskin invasions into Dodgers territory, first the touchdown drive and second the Baugh-led touchdown bid in the final minutes.

On the other hand, the Dodgers monopolized the ball handling for the day and were stopped time and again at the fag end of steady marches. Once they tried a field goal to break a 7-all tie but Condit's kick did not pass the leaping form of Wee Willie Wilkin, a specialist in that department.

For Dodger stars today you must include Parker, Manders, Leckonby and McAdams, but please place them second. Save the spotlight for Schwartz, his partner at the other end spot, Eddie Rucinski and that so aptly nicknamed left tackle, Bruiser Kinard.

The already crippled Redskins were further affected when Dick Todd was carried off the field early in the third period, but the backfield replacements, Bob Seymour and Roy Zimmerman, justified their presence in the line-up and when on both offense and defense the efforts of Ky Aldrich and Wayne Millner, among several others, were outstanding. And, of course, there was Sammy Baugh.

Silver Spring Pin Tourney Topped By Miss Burkhart

Mary Helen Burkhart held a 9-pin lead in the fifth annual American Legion Handicap bowling tournament at the Silver Spring alleys with a score of 725 last night.

Miss Burkhart rolled a total of 510 and added a handicap of 215 pins to hold the edge over M. Nocera, who posted a 626-90x716. Jules Bernard, with 624-80x704, and W. Hayghe, with 599-105x704, were tied for third honors. Ray Quigley was next with 607-95x702.

A record entry of 300 bowlers entered the annual affair. The Cissell-Saxon Post is sponsoring the event.

Gonzaga's Thrilling Finish Trips St. John's, 19-13

Raba, Nolan Stand Out In Victory

8500 at Stadium See Annual Grid Battle Decided by Aerial In Final Quarter

By Bill Burnett

A scant 2 minutes of play remained and his team was staring defeat in the face when Elmer Raba, Gonzaga High's triple-threat, launched a deadly-straight pass which earned the Purple a 19-13 edge over St. John's yesterday at Grith Stadium.

A crowd of 8500, on hand to see the torrid Catholic rivals tangle the thirteenth time in their modern series, was beginning to file out when Raba connected. It already had been treated to one of the most exciting grid battles of the year, and was content to see St. John's win, 13-12.

Raba had other ideas, however. As Halfback Bernie Nolan tore for the goal-line, Raba wound up back of the St. John's 31, hurled and dropped the ball in his mate's extended arms on the 10-yard line. The force of his drive carried Nolan over despite Buddy Speiss, who was draped around his neck like a scarf. Raba then crossed up his foes with a pass to End Bill McKay for the extra point.

Nolan Surprises

Nolan proved the big surprise to all and sundry who had come to see Raba's poison function alone on the Johnnies. The gangly first-year man, considerable of a basketball star, caught as many St. John's passes as did the Cadets. Each snared three as St. John's tried nine. His off-tackle smashes, too, accounted for almost as much yardage as Raba's, helping Gonzaga to a 241 to 80 advantage in yards rushing. Gonzaga also tried nine aerials, completed five for a gain of 60 yards.

Eighty yards were gained by St. John's on its three pass completions, two of which went for touchdowns in the first half. And on the throwing end of each payoff pitch was 140-pound Speiss, who shone despite his team's loss. He capped a 38-yard drive in the first period with a 30-yard heave to George Hughes, and in the second quarter picked out Lucas for a touchdown pass good for 49 yards. Hughes' placement after the second tally was good.

Gonzaga Scores

Gonzaga's first-half point retaliation was all Raba. After being stopped on the 1-yard marker once, the Purple moved back to the Cadet 2-yard line early in the second quarter with Raba and Nolan carrying. Hard-hitting Elmer then packed Harold Krug across on his back.

Later in the period Gonzaga took over on its own 33 and started rolling again. High spot of the advance was Ronny Waldron's 43-yard sprint through the line to the Johnnie 15, where he fumbled and the bounding ball was recovered by Reserve Miles Quail on the 2. Raba went over on the first try but his conversion placement for the second time was low.

Fumble 6 Times

In avenging a 6-6 tie to which it were held last year when supposed to win easily, the Purple committed 6 fumbles, recovering two of their own and the only two charged against St. John's. Quarterback Murphy and Linesman O'Keefe were credited with a pair of recoveries apiece.

About the only thing lacking in a thoroughly exciting tussle was a safety and a blocked punt. Hughes overshadowed Raba in the kicking department with an average of 37 yards to 31 yards.

All the ceremony of a professional game was supplied before hostilities when the cadet student body marched on the field in its bright crimson and gray uniforms, and the first Gonzaga band in several years kicked in with martial music.

Cavaliers Engage All-Star Pinmen

Hap Newman, Del Ray manager and well known in local bowling circles, announces that his team of experts, the Cavaliers, will roll special matches the night of November 21 against Jack White's All-Stars of New Haven, Conn., at the nearby Virginia alleys. The Cavaliers have won wide attention among special match teams as they have victories over the Del Rios, the Franklin All-Stars and other expert quintets to their credit.

The boys from Connecticut number some of the best duckpinners in the country, including Jack White, who was second to Astor Clarke in national standing last year by only a slim margin. Ben Kosky, Ralph Russo, Si Johnson, Hiram Ferri and Fox Healy.

The Cavaliers will be chosen from the following local duckpinners, all of whom rank high on local and national lists: Lou Jenkins, El Geib, Bert Lynn, Eddie Keith, Bill King, Buck McDonald Newman himself.

Buffalo Tigers Upset Bulls, Loop Leaders

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The Buffalo Tigers upset the Columbus Bulls, American football league leaders, 14 to 7, today.

Larry Yurkonis' pass interception set the stage for the first Buffalo touchdown, scored by Merle Osborne on a 7-yard slash. Andy Karpus took a lateral from Steve Kryscyszyn on the second-half kickoff and ran 50 yards for the second.

Russ Buckley's 7-yard sweep climaxed the Bulls' 26-yard scoring drive in the third period.

It was Columbus' first league defeat of the year.

Chiefs, Bengals Tie

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Milwaukee Chiefs and the Cincinnati Bengals played to a scoreless tie in an American League game at State Fair Park here this afternoon. Good and bad football were seen on the muddy gridiron.

The Chiefs twice worked the ball to the Bengals' 12-yard line in the first half via the aerial route, with the Bengals' principal threat in the fourth period when they got to the Chiefs' 10.

Luis Castillo, Mexican Fighter, Near Death

Mexico City, Nov. 9 (INS).—Luis Castillo, national flyweight boxing champion of Mexico and one of the world leaders in his division, was near death tonight following an operation for the removal of an infected appendix.

Castillo underwent an operation Saturday but has failed to rally. Doctors hold little hope for his recovery.

Tee to Green

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Any day now, 40 or 50 golf professionals, most of them familiar names but some of them youngsters looking to the big time, will be bidding farewell to their Northern acquaintances for five months on the winter tour, the coast to coast and back again trip which dangles $100,000 in purses but pays off only on subpar golf.

If any of the regulars, the home town boys who will pick up the tournaments here and there or the Florida and California stickers who play only in their home State events, hope to take down enough of the hundred grand to make expenses, they must produce subpar golf or take a financial licking.

WHITTLESEY

Wiffy Cox, who was one of the biggest names on the winter trip up until a few years ago, knows all the angles. He made the circuit too many times to recall, possibly a dozen, and take it from Wiffy, if you want to take the missus, live in style and not worry about next week's meals, don't start unless you have about $3500 to spare.

Of course, some of the young single pros who will rough it, travel four or five together and split expenses out and back just for the experience can do it on around $1500, but it's not much fun that way.

Mid-South Opens

Pinehurst, with its annual fall event, the Mid-South Open starts things off November 11-14, but the real opening is the $10,000 Miami Open just a month later. For the first time Texas offers a $5000 pre-Christmas affair, and from there the boys will go to the Coast for the month of January.

The only practicable way of travel is by automobile, for a car is a definite necessity in all the towns. Most of them will pack up at Harlingen, Tex., and beat it for Hollywood, where they will get together for their own Christmas and New Year's celebration.

Los Angeles, with Miami the only other $10,000 event on the tour, is next January 9-12, and for the rest of the month they'll travel between Oakland, San Francisco and then the favorite social gathering of the entire trip, Bing Crosby's amateur-pro championship and open tournament at Rancho Santa Fe.

Then it's back through Phoenix, Ariz., for the Western, on through San Antonio and then New Orleans during Mardi Gras time. St. Petersburg, the Miami four-ball and championship pro-amateur at St. Augustine are Florida fixtures in March. North Carolina is the next stop for Pinehurst again, Greensboro and Asheville, and then it's backtracking into Georgia for the tournament which has notched a place second only to the Open and P. G. A. in importance, the Augusta Masters' Championship, which annually features Bobby Jones in his lone competitive appearance of the year.

All $5000 or Better

The goal of the P. G. A. tournament bureau has been reached, and on the circuit this year there is nothing less than a $5000 purse, all carrying a first prize in excess of $1000.

Figure up gasoline and wear and tear on the car for a trip of some 14,000 miles. Three meals a day, caddy fees at tournament prices, hotels, golf equipment, tips and incidental expenses quickly total into the hundreds and thousands of dollars, and any pro, one with an established name or a first-timer, must produce, for when they all get on that first tee names are forgotten.

The trip has an educational advantage, and many of the experiences could not be bought for twice the prize sum. If you can afford it there is ample consolation in a losing season, for the grapefruit circuit of the golf professionals is unique in the sports world.

Cox would like one more fling, possibly next year. This season he plans a Florida trip, and may pick up a tournament or two, but his plans for the entire trip are in the future.

Wiffy was one of the big-name pros who for the sake of the promotion of the game of golf traveled and lived first class. He made money all but one or two years, but when you figure the total expenses for two can run over $3000 and that Harold McSpaden, the thirteenth leading money winner of the year, has won but $3544, you can figure it up how many show a worth-while profit.

To coin a phrase, they don't make much money but they have a lot of fun.

Football Outlook Hopeless for Prisoners

Salt Lake City, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Rockland "U" varsity—State prison team—is discouraged.

Six times it accepted invitations for outside games. Six times it faled to score and lost.

In desperaton it arranged a series of "intramural" games. The first two ended in scoreless ties.

Yesterday, in the third of the series, the varsity scored. Then its opponents scored. Each failed to convert. Then each scored again and each scored two safeties. The game ended 16 to 16.

Warwick A. C. Wins, Claims Sandlot Title

Warwick A. C. eleven claimed the unlimited sandlot football championship of Washington yesterday, following a 6-0 triumph over the Bethesda Giants at Bullis School field. Punchy Kemp went over for the lone touchdown in the third period.

Local teams doubting Warwick's title claim are invited to call Franklin 8638 for a game.

Sacred Heart Wins

The Sacred Heart A. C. captured its sixth consecutive game of the season yesterday by defeating Friendship Heights, 12-0, on the Palisades Field.

Rice Captures Cross-Country Championship

By the Associated Press

Yonkers, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Greg Rice, former Notre Dame track star, won the National A. A. U. Cross Country Championship today and Joe Smith, 27-year-old milkman from Medford, Mass., triumphed in the marathon.

The two meets were held simultaneously on the Empire City race track with Rice covering the approximate 6¼ miles in 29 minutes 19.7 seconds. Smith did the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2 hours, 36 minutes, 6 seconds.

Rice, now running for the New York Athletic Club, finished well ahead of his teammates, Jim Rafferty and Joe McCluskey who were timed in 29:56 and 30:23, respectively.

The chunky litlte runner succeeds Don Lash, the Indiana State policeman who won the seven previous races but did not have time to compete this year.

The New York A. C., in taking the first three places, plus fifth with Gene Venzke and seventh with veteran Eino Pentti, also captured the team title with 18 points to 43 for the Millrose A. A., whose Lou Gregory was fourth.

Smith, who has been competing in the marthon event only four years, finished 50 yards ahead of Fred McGlone, of Roxbury, Mass.

Third place went to Johnny Kelley, Arlington, Mass., who ran abreast of Smith and McGlone most of the way, but dropped back in the final miles. Don Heinicke, of Baltimore, Md., was fifth, while the 1940 winner and today's favorite, Gerard Cote, of Ste. Hyacinthe, Quebec, was sixth.

St. Thomas Bows To St. Ambrose

Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—A 54-yard touchdown run by Tony Rotunno gave St. Ambrose College a 7-to-6 homecoming victory today over St. Thomas—toppling the St. Paul, Minn., team from the ranks of undefeated football teams and ending its seven-game winning streak.

The fleet St. Ambrose left halfback made the scoring dash on the first play from scrimmage. Don Sullivan, substitute end, placekicked the extra point.

St. Thomas, playing its last game of the season, came back to score in the third quarter on a 2-yard plunge by Fullback Bob Pates to climax a 26-yard drive. But End Jim Fitzharris' attempted placekick conversion was wide.

St. Thomas ended its season with a total of 154 points to its opponents' 26.

Mrs. Quigg, Overselt Win Golf Tourney

Mrs. Betty Quigg and S. D. Overselt captured the Mixed Scotch Foursome golf play yesterday at Bannockburn with 99-24, 66. Second low net honors were to Ruby Long and Leo Pass with 91-19, 72. Mrs. Allen B. Lang and Bob Brown posted low gross of 86.

MANOR

A blind bogey turkey tournament was held over the weekend with four players winning the gobblers. Six had tied but George Landick, 87-12, 75 and J. V. Brownell, 83-8, 75, were drawn out. The turkey winners were B. D. Gamble, 85-10, 75; C. H. Willingham, 82-7, 75; Ray Sim, 87-12, 75; and W. W. Smith, 87-12, 75.

KENWOOD

George Diffenbaugh reported 11 turkeys were won by Kenwood members yesterday in the blind bogey play. The winners follow:

Paul Elliott	104	25	79
Mrs. J. Fetters	109	30	79
J. P. Vance	91	12	79
R. E. Read	91	12	79

L. V. Bowley	93	18	75
William Burrell	100	25	75
J. G. Lurhsen	102	27	75
Frank Takang	89	14	75

CONGRESSIONAL

W. T. Hayes' 86-18, 68 topped the turkey tournament scores yesterday. Second was T. D. Conlyn with 81-12, 69. Three tied for third, V. P. Simmons, 81-11, 70; H. S. McDonald, 83-13, 70, and H. L. Post, 92-22,70.

Play Scoreless Tie

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Nov. 9. Kept on the defensive most of the afternoon, a determined Harper's Ferry High School battled the Berkeley Springs High Indians through four periods of grueling football here yesterday to gain a scoreless tie.

Boys' Town Gridders Win By 7-6 Count

Union City, N. J., Nov. 9.—Father Flanagan's Boys' Town (Nebr.) football team held off a desperate bid by St. Michael's High School eleven today to skim through to a 7-to-6 victory before a crowd of 11,000.

The visitors tallied in the second quarter on an off-tackle run by Lester Thomas. Thomas then plunged through the homesters line for the extra point and margin of victory.

A lateral forward pass play in the last two minutes of the game gave St. Michael's a chance for a tie. James Caufield dropped back to his own 30-yard line to lateral to Felix Percuocco, who tossed to John Clancy in the end zone. Kieth Hausman, Boys' Town center, blocked the kick on the attempted conversion.

San Francisco Defeats Loyola

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—Loyola University's football team unleashed a belate d last quarter rally which fell short and the University of San Francisco handed the Lions their fifth defeat of the season today, 27 to 20.

A crowd of 9000 saw the contest, which the Bay City aggregation cinched in the second period with three touchdowns. The most spectacular play of the game saw San Francisco's Pete Francheschi take a pass from Neill Sheridan and score on a completion that went for 93 yards.

Pimlico and Bowie Tracks Offer Turf Fans Distance Racing

$10,000 Test Thursday for Marathoners

Sport Will Shift Friday to Bowie Where Long Races Dominate Programs

Only four days remain of the Pimlico meeting before the horses move right up to Washington's side door at Bowie for the final lap of Maryland's major season starting on Friday. After Bowie, Charles Town will come into the picture for three weeks after which turf fans hereabouts will have to travel South or West or confine their racing interest to charts and stories.

Distance racing, growing in popularity in Maryland, will hold the spolight, not only during the final stages of the Pimlico session but also at Bowie. On closing day, Thursday, the Maryland Jockey Club will conduct its annual running of the historic Gov. Bowie, a test of a mile and five-sixteenths with $10,000 in added money. At Bowie, the condition book reveals that for the first time there will be more distance races than sprints. In all 57 events have been listed at long routes.

The Governor Bowie Handicap will have its twenty-ninth running and is for 3-year-olds and upward. It lists among its winners most of the famous names of the American turf. Its inaugural held in 1909 was won by Fitz Herbert, owned and trained by Sam Hildreth and ridden by Carroll Schilling. Hildreth scored again in 1911 with Zeus, and made it three when his great handicap star, Mad Hatter, was returned the winner in 1920. This is the record for any one owner in the history of the race.

August Belmont won twice, with Mission and Stromboli, the latter horse being trained by Sam Hildreth, who leads the trainers with four victories. Other owners who have twice won Bowie's are the Quincy Stable and the Wheatley Stable.

Omar Khayyam Second Twice

Earle Sande used to regard the Bowie Handicap as "his race." The famous rider piloted Mad Hatter, Boniface and My Dear to triumphs in 1920, '21 and '23 and he leads the jockeys. Both Carroll Schilling, Johnny McTaggart and Frank Keogh won the race on two occasions.

No horse in the history of the race has won it twice, though both Princess Doreen and Boniface finished second after taking first money in another effort. Attesting to the class of its fields, many of the most famous horses in the country could do no betteer than seecond in this handicap.

Omar Khayyam was second twice in consecutive years. Others second were Superstition, Exodus, Aga Khan, Display and William T. This is unusual that so many horses should take the place money on two occasions and not gain a victory.

The mighty Seabiscuit could do no better than second in the Governor Bowie. He was beaten a nose by the great mare, Esposa, in the then track record time of 2:45 1-5. Two years later, however, the C. S. Howard barn accounted for victory through the effort of Kayak II which set the present track mark of 2:44 2-5.

Exterminator, The Porter, My Own and Sun Beau are a few of the turf greats who could do no better than third in the distance test. Highest winning weight was carried by George Smith, who packed 130 pounds and took the chief award in 1918. This same weight stopped Seabiscuit, Cudgel, Omar Khayyam and Sun Beau.

While the Bowie track will not offer a race as long as the Exterminator Handicap, which Pimlico stages at 2 1-16 miles, the Prince Georges County oval will have three events at a mile and 6 furlongs, one at a mile and 5 furlongs and three at 1½ miles.

Dear Al:

Saturday was one of the very few times this year that Jockey Willie Garner has not been aboard the good distance runner, Shot Put. This router has always raced well under Garner and for this reason he has been kept as a steady rider. However, he was unable to get a plane here so Wendell Eads was substituted in the Grayson. Garner wired at the last minute that it would be impossible to get reservations due to the heavy plane traffic to and from the football games. Trainer Vince Mara, who conditions R. Sterling Clark's good 2-year-old, Colchis, has announced that his charge would be wintered at the Holly Beach Farm near Annapolis. Mara states that his charge will be pointed for the Harford Handicap and then the Chesapeake States next spring. These races will determine whether or not Colchis will be sent to Kentucky for the Derby. This is looking far in the future but that's the way it is with those good 2-year-olds. Colchis, by finishing third in the Heiser Handicap here last week, kept his record intact and wound up the season by never being out of the money as a 2-year-old. That's quite a record, too. While speaking of the excellent race ridden by Don Meade, when he won with Charming Herod Friday, it was brought to light that Don rode his first winner in Maryland on October 30, 1930, and that the trainer of that winner was none other than Bill Shrewbridge, a member of the official family here. Just for a check on your memory, the horse was John Robert, remember? At that time Meade weighed a mere 83 pounds. Louis Tufano's Market Wise, winner over Haltal in the Pimlico Special, turned in a sensational trial here Saturday morning when he went a mile over the slow track in the excellent time of 1:43. The fractions for the work were as follows, 0:49 2-5 for the half, three quarters in 1:16 and he was well in hand to complete the mile. There were many present Friday who were asking what had happened to the recently claimed Jacsteal. This was accounted for by the announcement of Trainer Don Yates that his charge had knocked out a tooth and bruised his mouth while in the starting gate. Just received a wire from Frank Cronán, newly appointed director of public relations at Charles Town. Cronan states that during their meeting, which is from December 1 to December 20, there will be $500 minimum purses and that on Saturdays they will put on a $1000 feature. He also informs us that there will be an $800 feature on both Monday and Wednesday. Freddie Burton expects to release condition books the first of this week. See you on the rail. BILL.

Steelers Tie Eagles, 7 to 7, Before 15,601

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.—The luckless Pittsburgh Steelers, losers of seven games in the National Professional Football League, put on a great second half rally today to tie fore 15,601 at Shibe Park, 7 to 7, before 15,601 at Shribe Park. The Steelers scored on Art Jones' 25-yard end run in the third period after Jim Castiglia's 47-yard run gave the Eagles their touchdown in the opening quarter.

Two penalties nullified two long Pittsburgh gains in the last quarter and cost the Steelers an opportunity for an apparent victory. Alan Donelli's 30-yard end run to the Eagles' 35 was called back because of holding and in the closing minutes a 50-yard gain to the Eagles' 12 on Jones' interception of a Tommy Thompson aerial and a lateral to Dick Bassi was erased for interference.

Playing their first game under their new head coach, W. Walt Kiesling, who it was announced will coach the team through the 1942 season, the Steelers threw back three Eagle threats in the first half on their 24, 27 and 38-yard lines. Midway in the final period a fourth Eagle threat ended on the Steelers' 30 where Castiglia failed to make first down by inches.

Eagles Held for Downs

The Pittsburghers threatened only once in the first half. Boyd Brumbaugh ran back the opening kickoff 55 yards to the Eagles' 40 where he was caught from behind by Bob Krieger. But the Eagles held for downs on their 34.

Starting from there the Eagles marched to the Steelers' 24 before losing the pigskin on downs. Dan Disantis ran back Jones' punt to the Pittsburgh 47 and on the first play Castiglia, on a reverse, got loose around left end and outran the Steelers secondary for a touchdown. Nick Basca booted the extra point.

Agua Caliente's Double Returns $1191 Pay-Off

By the Associated Press

Agua Caliente, Mexico, Nov. 9.—Recording one of the track's biggest pay-offs, Agua Caliente's daily double today returned $1191 to fans who paired Lady Vain and Polvo's Pride, winners of the second and third races.

Winner of but one race in her two years of racing, Lady Vain, owned by Tom Carson, of New Port Beach, Calif., thrilled the crowd of 8000 fans when she won by two lengths to pay $131.60, $84.40, $32.

Polvo's Pride, owned by C. E. Brown, jr., of San Ysidro, Calif., then came through as the favorite under Joe Kobruk's handling to create the large double. Both were wire-to-wire winners in 6-furlong races. Polvo's Pride paid only $5.60, $3.20, $2.80.

Todd Hurt, May Be Out for Season

recently acquired reputation as an opportunist. Coach Flaherty sent him into the game in the waning moments. Unknown to the Dodgers, he crouched a yard behind the line of scrimmage to make himself eligible and then Baugh whipped a pass to him. Carroll was forced out of bounds but he made what appeared at the time to be a mighty important first down.

Wee Willie Wilkin was up to his old trick of blocking kicks today. He smeared that try for extra point on the Dodgers' second touchdown which opened a gap for the Redskins to win if they could get a 6-pointer.

Other notes—Al Kreuger, rookie end from California, gave a nice exhibition of pass catching near the end of the game . . . He is going to prove mighty useful . . . Roy Zimmerman got off some long boots, one particularly important kick from behind his goal line . . . Watching Zimmerman and Bob Titchenal perform was Dud DeGroot, former All-American center at Stanford, who coached Roy and Bob when they were with San Jose State . . . Like Milliner, Bob McChesney seems to get better with age . . . He was whipping down interference and getting his man all afternoon . . . Incidentally, Milliner has a slight knee injury . . . Although for the most part they admit they were outplayed, the Redskins also contend they were outlucked . . . Several fumbles narrowly missed their arms and inches separated them from touchdowns on some passes . . . However, on the other side, Andy Farkas intercepted a pass on the Redskin goal line that stopped one Dodger threat . . . The Brooklyn club, facing elimination from the Eastern title fight, played as if it were hungry . . . Ace Parker and Pug Manders were never better . . . It is a toss up as to which club was hampered more by the wet ball . . . Baugh was not getting protection today that is usually afforded him on passes . . . The Dodgers were rushing him every time and it is miraculous that he connected for 11 out of 15 . . . I believe that is the right figure . . . Ed Justice, who will be ready for the Bears, scouted the Giants in their game with the Lions . . . But he took a portable radio with him so he could listen to the Redskin game . . . Ed Beinor, former All-American from Notre Dame, saw action for the first time since coming from the Chicago Cardinals . . . Beinor has taken over Hoffman's No. 45 . . . Bill Young, with the aid of a mechanical knee, played some 20 minutes . . . He is a tough guy . . . Bob Seymour made a nice catch of that touchdown pass . . . He's going to see a lot of service from now on and is going to surprise somebody . . . Despite the fact that he was suffering intense pain, Todd stopped outside the dressing room to autograph programs for a group of youngsters . . . Dick calls them "lil old boys" . . . Dr. Moran finally rescued Todd . . . The Hare Brothers, Cecil and Ray, belie their name . . . They work more like a couple of lions . . . Ky Aldrich played excellently despite an ailing left hand.

Panthers Triumph

Newark, N. J., Nov. 9 (INS).—Paterson's Panthers continued domination of the American Association today. The Panthers beat Newark, 6 to 0, in one of the two games listed in the play-for-pay circuit. In the other contest, Jersey City downed the hapless New York Yankees, 7 to 0.

Cardinals Beaten

A 20-6 grid victory was registered by Tucker A. C. over the Washington Cardinals yesterday at Fairlawn Field. Wednesday night the winners are scheduled to meet Meadowbrook R. A. at Ballston Stadium.

Dayton Upset

Cincinnati, Nov. 9 (INS).—An underdog Xavier University football team today upset the dope bucket by overwhelming the Dayton University Flyers, 27 to 0, before 15,000 fans.

change to the touch-and-out instead because she has had an unusually successful season in such events this year.

In the jump-off for the minor awards, the three entries that managed to get to the fourth fence staged a jump-off that finally gave second place to F. H. Taylor, jr.'s Birdwood Hazard, New York entry which has won several important ribbons here; third, to Winters Health Farm's Our Mr. Jorrocks, and fourth to F. E. McBride's Grand Larceny.

In the next class, an error on the part of the ring hands turned out to be a blessing in disguise for Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Billy Do, who was the first horse to go in the tough handy event and scored one refusal. Just as he left the ring the committee discovered that the wrong course had been set up, so that when he went again, he turned in an excellent round and placed second to May Top Stables' Bartender, a New York entrant. Lew Dunbar, Mrs. Elizabeth Correll's good fencer, was third over Eleanor Moffett's Candolette.

The late victories boosted the total prize money won by Virginia and Washington entries to $1625, an impressive total that eclipses Northern stables' earnings.

Dixie's Best Year

Recent ribbons have given Hi-Ho $75, Big Boy a total of $135, and Margaret Cotter's Rocksie $285 to lead the Southern victory march. In ribbon winning, Virginia and District exhibitors have taken away 14 blues, 11 seconds, 8 thirds, 4 fourths, and the pony championship and Reserve, making the South's best year in the National. Many of the blues were on by Old Dominion ponies, which batted .750 in the half-pint classes.

The $1000 International Military Stake was a rhapsody in blue as the United States Army's formally clad team members made a clean sweep of all six ribbons, with Capt. Marshall Frame and Dakota combining to score the only clean performance over the circuitous route. Second, after three jump-offs was Capt. Frank Wing with Democrat, with Autumn Mart third, Dinger fourth, Ethel D fifth, and Smacko sixth. The last horse, loaned to the Fort Riley officers by Maj. Charles B. McClelland, jr., of Fort Myer, Va., would have tied with Dakota on the first round if he had not whacked a pole on the first fence, jumping the remaining nine in perfect form.

Peruvian and Cuban officers went down swinging at a deceptive Liverpool fence that proved to be the undoing of many of the foreign representatives.

Hockey Eagles Beaten, 5-2, In Exhibition

Special Dispatch to The Post

Valleyfield, Quebec, Nov. 9.—A free-for-all involving both teams was barely averted in the final moments here today as the Valleyfield Braves, runner-up in the Montreal Senior B League last season, turned back the Washington (D. C.) Eagles in a heatedly contested hockey exhibition, 5 to 2.

First Sale Is Arranged Week Ahead of National Art Exhibit

Washington's National Art Exhibition, to be held November 17 through November 23 in connection with National Art Week, received a premature launching Saturday when the show's first sale was arranged a week before the official opening.

Thomas H. Cooper, local artist who has submitted two water colors for the exhibition, was the purchaser, arranging to buy a plaster statuette called "Hypocrite," sculptured by Perna Krick, of Baltimore.

Those in charge of the exhibit at the Departmental Auditorium were caught off guard by the impromptu sale, but ruled that the transaction could not be consumated before the show's opening. The work is being reserved for Cooper, they said.

Similar exhibitions are scheduled throughout the country during the week of November 17, which has been proclaimed as Art Week by President Roosevelt. Thomas J. Watson and Mrs. Florence Kerr are national co-chairmen of the observance, while Mrs. Roosevelt is acting as honorary chairman.

Two hundred Washington artists have submitted works of art for the show here, officials of the exhibition reported, with many more entered from 20 States of the Union.

It is scheduled to open at 3 p. m. on Monday, November 17, and will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. during the rest of the showing, with the exception of the closing Sunday, when it will open at 1 p. m.

Mt. Vernon Place Church Has 'Douglass Night'

More than 300 Methodist young adults last night honored the president of American University with a celebration of "Douglas night" at the weekly program on "Creating Cooperative Christian Fellowship" at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, teacher of the fellowship course in "The Bible and My Life," shared the receiving line with students of his course, who were hosts at the social hour opening last night's program.

After the fellowship hour, the young adults—including many visitors from other Methodist churches—attended their courses, which included, in addition to Dr. Douglass' class, the following: "Things That Newcomers Should Know About Washington," Miss Hazel Feagans, instructress; "Personality Development and Understanding Ourselves," Dr. Norma Bird; "Dale Carnegie's Effective Speaking and Human Relations," Frank Patterson, and "Creative Friendships," Harry Gulbreth. Dr. Bird and Miss Feagans are faculty members of American University.

Arnold Blames Businessmen For Defense Lag

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—Thurman Arnold, Assistant United States Attorney General, declared today that "dominant American business" was to blame for a defense production lag.

In an N. B. C. radio address on the University of Chicago Round Table, Arnold said that "for the first ten months our defense effort was hampered by the fear of expansion of the production of basic materials."

"Businessmen," he said, "indulged in wishful thinking, concealed shortages by overoptimistic predictions of supply. . . .

"I would still insist that the general attitude of dominant American business, fearing overproduction after the war, was responsible for this lag in production."

Leo M. Cherne, director of the Research Institute of America, told the same audience that labor also was partly responsible.

He estimated that American production at the present rate could not beat Hitler in ten years, but if 50 per cent of our energy were devoted to defense, we could out-produce Germany in three years.

Army Truck Turns Into Funeral Pyre For Four Soldiers

Fort Lawn, S. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—Four soldiers were burned to death and 11 others injured seriously in a collision of two Army trucks early today. One of the injured was not expected to live.

One truck was loaded with gasoline containers. It exploded and showered flames on occupants of the other truck, loaded with soldiers participating in the Carolina war maneuvers.

The dead, members of Company A of the 103rd Field Artillery, are: Privates Robert P. Gardiner, of Riverside, R. I.; Emil Jagiellowicz, Providence, R. I.; Herman R. Weisman, Philadelphia, and Rocco Stagnolo, of Rochester, N. Y.

The critically injured soldier was Private William H. Connolly, Fort Lawn is 30 miles south of Rock Hill, S. C.

Owners Register Trucks, Buses With Government

Civilian owners of about a third of an estimated five million motor trucks and buses operated in the United States have listed them with the Army.

Reporting this yesterday, the War Department said information sought in an inventory undertaken by its highway advisory committee was "vital in order to plan for any emergency and to minimize interference with normal civilian highway transportation."

Soviet Sub Sinks Italian Tanker

Ankara, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The Italian tanker Tortello, 3340 tons, was sunk by a Russian submarine torpedo in the Black Sea Thursday while traveling from Istanbul to Constanta, it was learned today.

(Lloyd's shipping registry lists no ship of that name.)

Sen. Reynolds, Bride Take Trip in Cuba

Havana, Nov. 9.—Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, and his 19-year-old bride, the former Evalyn Washington McLean, who arrived here yesterday, left today "en route down the island."

Conflicting reports said they had left either for the resort of Varadero Beach or for Guantanamo Bay to inspect the United States naval base there. The Reynolds have reserved rooms at the Hotel Nacional here for November 15.

Capital's First Jewish School Nears Reality

Washington's first parochial school for Jewish children will be launched in the very near future, it was disclosed here yesterday by Rabbi Julius T. Loeb, prominent local Jewish leader.

Rabbi Loeb, former spiritual leader of the Southeast Hebrew Congregation and guiding spirit behind the organization of several other local Jewish congregations, told The Post that already $3000 has been raised as a nucleus for the building of the school.

The school, he explained, is intended for children of orthodox parents who are anxious to give their children a thorough and intensive training in Hebrew lore and ancient traditions.

In addition to the Hebrew studies, the curriculum will include a complete course of education commensurate with that of the public school system, according to Rabbi Loeb. Lower grades will be available at first, and higher grades added later.

The project, it was pointed out, is being started through the initiative of Jeremiah Weitz, president of the Combined Hebrew Congregations of Washington, an organization in which Rabbi Loeb is very active. Rabbi Loeb is affiliated with the M'lave Malke.

Sulpician Fathers Today Open 300th Anniversary Fete

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Scores of prominent Catholic clergymen renewed old friendships tonight on the eve of the three-day, triple jubilee celebration of the Sulpician fathers.

More than 100 members of the American Hierarchy are expected to attend the celebration, marking the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Society of St. Sulpice, and the 150th anniversary of both the arrival of the Sulpicians in this country, and the founding of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore.

The program will open with a pontifical mass tomorrow morning celebrated by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate representing Pope Pius XII.

Defense Plant Dedicated With Mock Warfare

Louisiana, Mo., Nav. 9 (AP).—"War" came to a peaceful valley near this Mississippi River town today as a new 20 million dollar anhydrous ammonia plant was dedicated.

While 300 Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., troops banged away from three sides, 75-mm. guns spent 30 minutes demolishing a 15-building cardboard "city" in mock warfare staged for an appreciative gallery of thousands.

The attack on the make-believe city, built along movie set lines, is believed to be the first such event accompanying the dedication of a defense propect.

Mesdames Chiang, Kung Present 2 Pandas to U.S.

Chungking, Nov. 9 (AP).—In a 15-minute ceremony today Mesdames Chiang Kai-shek and H. H. Kung presented two pandas, the thirteenth and fourteenth ever reported captured, one each to the United China relief organization in the United States and the Bronx Zoo of New York City.

The American-educated wives, respectively, of China's generallissimo and finance minister, presented the rare animals to John Tee-Van, of the Bronx Zoo.

The pandas are to be installed in the Bronx Zoo "as man and wife," Tee-Van said.

Bombers Off for Georgia

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Fourteen twin-motored B-25 medium bombers left today in one of the largest mass deliveries of aircraft from a southern California plant.

The bombers were turned over to the Army by North American Aviation Co. and took off from the adjoining municipal airport for Augusta, Ga., where they will join the Seventeenth Bombardment group.

The planes were under command of Maj. John J. O'Hara who arrived with a party of 28 officers and 14 sergeants by train Saturday night.

The bombers took off in groups of two and three and within a half hour all 14 were on their way to Georgia for maneuvers with the Fourth Army Corps.

Meeting Called To Settle Service Strike at Yale

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The State Board of Mediation and Arbitration arranged tonight to bring together tomorrow representatives of Yale University and of Local 142, United Construction Workers Union (C. I. O.), in an effort to iron out differences which resulted in the union's calling a strike of the school's service employes for 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Morgan Mooney, representative of the board, said that the parley will start at 10:30 a. m. and every effort will be made to reach a speedy decision.

Picket lines are scheduled to be established at the campus here and at the Yale Club in New York City at 9 a. m.

The union claims that in a bargaining election last month it received 426 votes, a large majority of those cast by the university's porters, maids, campus police and power and maintenance men. The union demands a closed shop.

DeLashmutt to Speak

Basil DeLashmutt, reelected last week as a member of the Arlington County Board, will speak tomorrow night at 8 before the New Arlington Civic Association meeting at the home of Ralph Arble, 1624 South Pollard Street, Arlington.

Dr. Walsh Denies Church Link to Nazis

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—A Catholic educator today denounced what he described as "the whispering campaign" designed to label the Catholic Church as a secret friend of nazlism and fascism, because it opposed communism.

Speaking at the Armistice Day mass attended by 2000 Catholic War Veterans of America at St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, declared that nazlism had "invaded the sanctuary of faith and morals as wantonly, as grossly, and as obscenely as its Muscovite predecessor."

Father Walsh, who is also regent of the university's school of foreign service, said that political democracy would collapse if the religious foundations of America were undermined.

Asserting that it was not a new experience for the Catholic Church "to behold the fruits of human folly," Father Walsh expressed belief that "impartial history will record that it was in Moscow that the disintegration of modern Europe was first plotted, planned and organized."

Saying that he believed American democracy was about to enter the arena of conflict, he demanded "an end to the whispering campaign in certain quarters—the innuendos and fears—that the Catholic Church, because it opposes communism, is consequently a secret friend of nazlism and fascism."

Pope Pius XI had stated the uncompromising opposition of the church to nazlism, he said, adding that "the creed that salvation comes from the state is a direct assault on the universal redemption of the human race."

He declared that "every modern Caesar will first seek to annihilate the Christian church if he will annihilate democracy. For it is the spiritual concept of essential brotherhood, of indentical origins and common destiny that justifies democracy as an acceptable and workable system of civilized living."

Jewish Soldiers Under Own Flag Urged by Zionist

London, Nov. 9.—A new and strong plea for the creation of a Jewish fighting force in which Jews from all over the world may enlist for service with the British force under the name and flag of the Jewish race was made here today by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency fir Palestine and the World Zionist Organization, in an address before a conference of representative Zionists.

"In the war against Hitler," Dr. Weizman said, "the Jewish nation claims a place among the fighters in the forefront and, moreover, its right to fight under its own name and flag."

He described the efforts he had made since August, 1939, first with the unsympathetic Chamberlain government and later with the more sympathetic Churchill government, to win support for his conception of a Jewish fighting force for action both in the Near East and in the West.

At first, Dr. Weizmann said, the British would accept Jewish recruits in Palestine only for noncombatant duty. Later, he said, it was decided to enlist Palestinians for combatant service but only on the condition of numerical parity between the Jews and Arabs, but this parity rule snice has been relaxed.

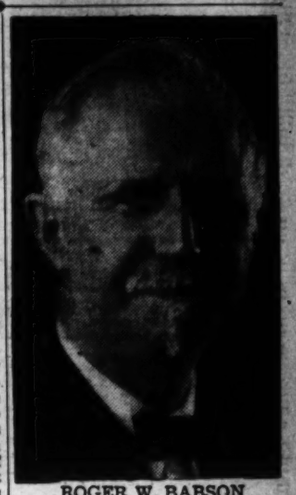
Palestinian Jews have supplied 10,000 men to the British forces and are still supplying them, he said.

The Stock Paradox

By Roger W. Babson

Lethargy and Fear in Wall Street

With all the activity and confidence existing abroad, we see lethargy and fear in Wall Street. Where the Dow Jones Average was 138 at the outbreak of the war, and later reached the high of 157, it is now at 122. Let me give you the reputed reasons for this situation and my comments thereupon.



ROGER W. BABSON

1. "Although the present industrial recovery is now 60 per cent above the level at the outbreak of the war, practically all of this increase has been on war business." My comment: What of it? Our industrial increase has always been due to something—the automobile industry, the radio craze, buying on instalments, or a political victory. The defense industry is a legitimate and permanent industry.

2. "Although gross profits are very high, yet taxes are terrific. In many cases the gross profits have increased 100 per cent while the net profits, after the payment of taxes, show an increase of only 10 per cent." My comment: If these companies had had an increase of only 10 per cent in net profits and no increase in taxes, investors would be very happy. Yet what is the difference, especially as income taxes cannot be collected except upon dividends paid. A comparison of today's dividends with the prices at which the stocks are selling makes them look ridiculously cheap.

3. "Notwithstanding the huge taxes that are now being paid by our corporations, Secretary Morgenthau talks about an 'all out' tax program which will take all profits above 6 per cent." My comment: Employers have always feared increased taxes. Turn to the history of any nation and you will see a continual wail over "taxes." Of course, taxes at times have been almost confiscatory to investors who live idly on inherited wealth. Those in active business, however, have always found that they could pass on the taxes to the ultimate consumer.

4. "Although there have been no panics in the stock market since World War II started in September, 1939, yet there has not been any definite trend one way or the other. People like a market which is moving." My comment: The fact that the average speculator does not like today's market is one of the reasons for my liking it. As a rule, most speculators are wrong. They are enthusiastic about the market when they should stay away out of it; and they are discouraged with the market when they should enter it.

5. "Most commodity prices have gone up so much recently, many chart readers have become bearish. It is an old saying in Wall Street that high commodity prices precede lower stock prices." My comment: Although commodity prices have advanced considerably during the last year, they are as nothing compared with what they were during World War I. For instnace, in World War I wheat sold at $3.40 per bushel; cotton sold at 38 cents per pound, copper sold at 37 cents per pound; steel sold at $100 per ton, and sugar you couldn't buy, beg or steal.

6. "The fact that money rates are controlled by the Federal Reserve Banks makes many wary of buying securities dependent upon money rates. They claim that the low rates received on good bonds, savings, etc., are a great detriment to the situation." My comment: For 40 years I have been watching securities. Until the past year a surplus of money and low rates have always been given as the basis of a bull market. Why the change?

7. "Although the stock market can never safely be forecasted by charts, yet there is something in studying the tcehnical position of the market. These market technicians claim that their charts do not now look very good." My comment: If these chart technicians could tell by their charts whether the stock market is going up or down, they wouldn't be working in back rooms in Wall Street offices for $35 a week. Enough said.

8. "The bears insist that the public have been fed up on the inflation argument and are no longer interested in it. Hence, they refuse to accept this as an argument for higher stock market prices." My comment; I dno't look forward to any radical inflation that is going to wreck this country; but I do believe that we are experiencing some inflation all the time and that it is going on at the rate of about 10 per cent a year. Certainly, anyone with common sense will try to hedge against inflation by now buying certain common stcoks.

9. "The labor situation is a sufficient reason for the present stock market inactivity." My comment: It is true that corporations, as a rule, do not make as much money after they are organized under a labor union as they did before. On the other hand, investors are free to shift from companies that are organized to companies that are unorganized. Instead of squawking about the stock of some companies which has recently been organized by the C. I. O. why not sell that stock and buy stock in some chain merchandizing corporation which will benefit from these increased wages?

10. "Finally, there is the war. Investors are now selling stocks because they are afraid that Russia is to get a licking, whereas a few years ago these same people were selling stocks because they thought Russia was going to control all of Europe." My comment: I am 100 per cent for Great Britain, but I have sense enough to see that this entire war is a great paradox. The only hope for world peace is to have Europe consolidated under one control, and yet we are fighting the man who is trying to bring this about. Hitlerism will be smashed, but some of his ideas will live and World War II will be worth all it costs. The truth is that the world has always been at war and investors who will look at war as one of the normal events of life will fare best in the end.

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau Washington, D. C., Sunday, November 9. Forecasts:

For District of Columbia—Partly cloudy, continued cold Monday; slightly colder Monday night; Tuesday fair with slowly rising temperature; moderate west and northwest winds.

Conditions

The cyclonic condition over the Great Lakes region has decreased considerably in intensity during the past 24 hours, but cloudy, cold weather with light snow flurries continues throughout the Lake region, the central Plains States and the Ohio Valley. A slight disturbance moving northeastward along the North Atlantic Coast was attended by a few light showers. An area of high pressure attended by cold, polar air is moving southeastward over the Missouri Valley and pressure continues high over the Southeastern States. The continued flow of cold polar air over the central and eastern portions of the United States has resulted in unseasonable cold weather in most sections, particularly in the central Plains States, the Ohio Valley and the Southeastern States. Pressure continues high in the far Western States, where fair weather prevails, and the unseasonably warm weather continues.

Contract Bridge

Sparkling defense followed up neat bidding to trap a bluff no-trump bidder on today's hand. A double and a redouble were involved, but it was all "business."

The hand was dealt in a rubber-bridge game at the Regency Club, the players were all experts. Walter Malowan paired with Mrs. Stuyvesant Wainwright set Robert McPherran and George Kennedy three tricks, redoubled, at one no-trump; that is, they made three no-trump while Bobbie took in four tricks with his seven-card-club suit.

As a matter of fact, a bluff no-trump with a strong "out" suit is a call that has paid dividends time after time. McPherran has seven sure tricks once he can win the lead, and he can always escape to clubs if he does not wish to risk playing a doubled contract.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	1 NT
Dble.	Redble.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: 5 ♠.

Kennedy's redouble was a signal for his partner to stay at one no-trump—that he had a spade stopper and some other good cards. That the result was extremely unhappy was due to the excellent play of the defenders.

Mr. Wainwright opened her fourth-best spade; small was played from dummy and Malowan won with the queen. He returned his fourth-best diamond; declarer put on the ten; West took the jack and followed with another low spade. Dummy's ten forced out the ace from East and a diamond back caught the king. Mrs. Wainwright won the ace, queen and eight. Malowan did not overtake with his nine, as he desired a lead through dummy's hearts.

Mrs. Wainwright understood this message and led her top heart; Malowan took the queen and cashed his diamond nine and the heart ace, defeating declarer three tricks, redoubled, for 1000 points.

Both Mrs. Wainwright and Malowan cleverly abandoned the spade suit, as they realized that McPherran must have had a "club" no-trump.

Purely for the armchair analysis, note that had West opened the jack of spades, an unconventional lead, declarer would have taken but one trick, being compelled to settle for a set of six.

The spade jack led through dummy would force the king, then a diamond return and the play of the spade nine would trap the ten. In this fashion East and West would win five spades, five diamonds and two hearts. But McPherran and Kennedy didn't talk about that.

Defense Parley On Recreation Slated Today

A full day's conference on recreation in relation to defense will be held here today in response to the President's Civilian Defense Week proclamation.

The conference, sponsored by the Community Center and Playgrounds Department, the District of Columbia Council of Defense and the Council of Social Agencies for Washington and Vicinity, will be held at 9:15 a. m. in the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest.

Mark A. McCloskey, recreation director for the Federal Social Security Agency, will lead the talks, to which all persons interested in recreation and morale in the declared emergency are invited, it was announced by Miss Sibyl Baker, chairman of the Training Institute.

Included on the panel will be Miss Mary K. Browne, deputy director to Alice Marble, assistant director of civilian defense; Maj. Richard G. O'Connell, morale officer, Third Corps Area, U. S. A.; Lieut. F. G. Loveless, public relations officer, Washington Navy Yard; Birch E. Bayh, director of physical training, Air Force Combat Command, Bolling Field, and Maj. Sherlock Davis, aide to the commanding general, Washington Brigade Headquarters.

Civilian Defense Week, under the President's proclamation, formally begins tomorrow, but the recreation forum was arranged for today so as not to conflict with the traditional Armistice Day exercises, Miss Baker explained.

Germans Strike At Swiss Through William Tell

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—Friedrich von Schiller's famous play "William Tell" will not be played this winter on German stages nor will teachers include it in their curricula for class reading and study.

Educational authorities it is understood, do not like the heroic role assigned by the Weimar poet to the Swiss people as personified by Tell.

The German press from time to time criticizes the Swiss for declining to join forces with the new order.

U. S. to Investigate Contracts by Army For Hats and Caps

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—A Government investigation of bidding on contracts for Army hats and caps was announced tonight by Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Kallick.

A Federal grand jury will start the investigation Wednesday and it probably will take two or three weeks, he said.

Subpenas have been sent to about 25 hat and cap manufacturers and also to national and local officers of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union (A. F. L.), Kallick asserted.

Kallick said many of the manufacturers involved are from Philadelphia, some from New York and one from Kansas City. He did not disclose their names.

U. S. Finds More Alien Caches Of Strategic Defense Material

Millions of dollars worth of foreign-owned strategic materials in this country have been disclosed and taken over for the United States' own war supplies through operations of the Division of Foreign Funds Control, the Treasury announced yesterday.

In administering President Roosevelt's executive order which "froze the assets of continental Europe, Japan and China in the United States, the Foreign Funds Control discovered stores of copper, aluminum, shipbuilding materials, airplane spruce, and other defense materials, held for "blocked" interests.

Banks have been required to report bills of lading, warehouse receipts and other documents of title held by them for blocked accounts. In addition, applications for licenses to dispose of the property or to pay storage fees and other charges have revelaed the existence of foreign-owned defense materials in this country.

Such information has been reported to the OPM, the Army, the Navy, the Lend-Lease Administration or the Procurement Division of the Treasury.

By withholding action upon applications to export or dispose of strategic materials, the Foreign Funds Control has prevented the materials from leaving the country or from going into nondefense industries until the defense agencies could arrange for their requisition or purchase.

In this way a large quantity of spruce wood suitable for airplane manufacture, held for French account, was directed to American manufacturers. Foreign Funds Control licensed the sale of the material to aircraft manufacturers on the basis of OPM's priority ratings.

Foreign-owned prefabricated steel shipbuilding parts, shipbuilding materials and copper were made available to the Navy. A load of zinc arrived in New York, destined for nondefense use. By informing OPM, Foreign Funds Control was able to insure the delivery of the zinc to a firm needing it for defense uses.

Machine tools held for a blocked account were speedily turned to American aircraft production through the efforts of the Foreign Funds Control. When the tools were found in the New York warehouse of a freight forwarder, the information was brought to the attention of an aircraft manufacturer who needed the tools to eliminate a bottleneck in the production line. On the request of a representative of the aircraft manufacturer, Foreign Funds Control acted to make the tools immediately available. By telephone, terms of sale were arranged with the freight forwarder and he was informed a license to sell would be issued immediately. Within the hour the license was issued and within two days the machines had been shipped to the factory, set up and placed in operation.

Chance Open To Get Away From It All

The Civil Service Commission is offering opportunity for a lot of isolated quietude, and makes the fact known in advance lest jitterbugs apply.

Offered are jobs as teachers for Indian community and boarding schools, with options in agriculture and home economics, and salaries ranging from $1600 to $2000 a year. But, "In the northern reservations and in Alaska some schools are cut off for months at a time from travel communication," it warns.

A four-year college course and two years of teaching experience in schools below college level are required.

"The teachers associate constantly with Indians and it is necessary that they have a full appreciation of the Indian viewpoint and culture, their native arts and crafts, music and religious ceremonials," the commission said. Applications close December 11.

Health education consultants, with salaries from $2600 to $3800 a year, will soon be appointed, the commission announced. They will work in defense areas, assisting State, county and local health authorities. A four-year college course and experience in public health work are basic requirements. Applications will close December 11.

The commission's announcement for radio mechanic technician positions has been amended to include the grade of chief radio mechanic technician with salary of $2600 a year. Applications will be received over an indefinite period.

Freedom Must Be Earned, Pastor Says

Freedom can never be given, but must be earned, Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce declared yesterday as All Souls' Unitarian congregation marked its 120th birthday. He has been its pastor 41 years.

Preaching in the high-towered landmark at Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest, he said that "our forefathers won their freedom at a great price and it is for us to maintain this freedom at all costs."

"Our devotion to freedom is measured by our efforts to defend it against all encroachments," said Dr. Pierce.

A talk about one of the church's early ministers—Moncure Daniel Conway, was given in the afternoon by Laurence C. Staples, executive secretary of the congregation, in the afternoon.

Fairfax Coroner Decides Fugitive Died Accidentally

Dr. T. B. McCord, Fairfax County coroner, yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the drowning of Charles O. Pickens, 36-year-old fugitive from the District Workhouse at Occoquan, whose body was found Saturday in Occoquan Run.

Pickens, whose address was given by police as 810 Fifth Street Northwest, escaped five hours after being committed to the institution October 28 for a short term.

Dr. McCord said the fugitive had been tracked by bloodhounds to the precipice of a steep cliff bordering Occoquan Run, and that he probably fell over the cliff in his flight.

Montgomery Group Meets Tonight at 8

Committee chairmen will present reports at the meeting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation tonight at 8 o'clock at the Bethesda elementary school.

Progress of the county-wide study on the Brookings Institution report on county government will be reported by Allen H. Gardner, chairman of the special committee in charge of fostering study of the report.

Each chairman of committee has been given a section of the Brookings report for study by his committee by Joseph B. Matre, president of the federation. The committees will report on the parts affecting the subject matter of their assignments.

Samuel Stonebraker, chairman of the public utilities committee, will report on suggested railroad commuter service from Maryland suburbs to downtown Washington. Raymond B. Leavitt, chairman of the membership committee, will report on progress of establishing association boundaries.

Herbert N. Eaton, chairman of the sanitation and public health and Stephen Duvall, jr., chairman of the budget committee, also will have reports.

Woodside Club To Present Comedy

"Nothing But the Truth," a comedy in 3 acts, will be presented by the Woodside Dramatic Club—Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 8:15 at the parish hall of the Woodside Methodist Church, Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring.

Settings for the prdouction, designed by E. Francis McDevitt, director of the play, have been built by club members. The show is public with no admission charge.

The cast includes Mrs. William B. Marks, Mrs. Cleo Linegar, Miss Betty Fleishell, Miss Jeanne Smith, Miss Louise Grotlisch, Miss Emily Keele, Raymond C. Williams, Robert Gibson, Harry Stevens, F. Leroy Murray and E. Francis McDevitt.

Montgomery Blair Students Raise $150

Ten students of Montgomery Blair Senior High School collected approximately $150 on "tag day," sponsored by the Silver Spring Health Center for its new quarters at the Blair schoolhouse on Old Bladensburg Road, it was announced yesterday.

Those who solicited funds pinning green tags on the donors were the Misses Mary Jane Garrison, Theo Redman, Betty Stone, Betty Kemp, Barbara Stewart, Dorothy Perkins, Marjorie Bean, Barbara Seviour, Betty Jane Moore and Joan Foley. Mrs. Hugo Winkler was chairman of the one-day drive, held Saturday.

Ground Broken By Lutherans In Arlington

Parishioners of the recently organized Resurrection Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Arlington, Va., yesterday afternoon broke ground for their first permanent edifice at Potomac Street and Washington Boulevard.

Leaders in the ceremonies were Dr. R. Homer Anderson, of Roanoke, superintendent of Home Missions of the Synod of Virginia; the Rev. Carl T. Yeager, pastor, and heads of the church and Sunday school groups.

The new building will be of Colonial design, with plans and specifications prepared by the firm of Smith, Werner and Billings, of Alexandria, Va. The church auditorium will be of 58 by 33 feet, with a two-story wing off the east side of the main structure.

The congregation, which was organized and admitted into the Virginia Synod last February, at present holds services at 3008 Wilson Boulevard.

Cellophane Ban At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9.—Grave concern is felt here over the possible effects of an order issued in Washington by the Office of Production Management forbidding further use of cellophane for wrapping certain products.

Principal output of the Sylvania Industrial Corporation, largest manufacturing plant here with 1600 wage earners, is cellophane, marketed under the trade name "Sylphrap."

At the office of the company it was said there would be no immediate curtailment of operations since the OPM decree permits completion of orders now in process but it was impossible to predict what readjustments might have to be made in the future.

Intractible Tractor Proves Cranky Twice

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9.—Milton Marshall, of Office Hall, King George County, broke his arm the other day while cranking a tractor.

The same arm was broken eight months ago while cranking the same tractor. Young Marshall is the son of Mrs. Anna Marshall.

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

THIS BOY IS TAKING THE PLACE OF THE THREE WISE GUYS ON OUR QUIZ BROADCAST. HE'S OUR NEW MENTAL GIANT!
PLEASED TO MEET YOU!
I WANT THIS TO FIT PROPERLY, MR. BODKINS. WHAT IS YOUR CHEST MEASUREMENT?
YOU MEAN NORMAL OR FULLY EXPANDED?
NORMAL IT'S 35¼ INCHES — AND WHEN IT'S EXPANDED, IT'S 35½!
I DON'T THINK THAT HAT FITS HIM WELL!
REMEMBER, MISS HALL, HE HAS A THICK HEAD OF HAIR!
EVEN WITHOUT THE HAIR, MR. SKINTS, I THINK IT WOULD STILL BE A LITTLE THICK!
WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN ON ODD'S FIRST BROADCAST???

JOE PALOOKA — A Weak Excuse — BY HAM FISHER

AT ARROWHEAD
WHY DIDN'T YOU BREAK HIS JAW AFTER WHAT HE CALLED YOU IN FRONT OF EVERY-BODY?
I TOLD YA I WOULDN'T LOWER MYSELF FIGHTIN' IN NIGHT CLUB BRAWLS. THE HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPEEN OF THE WORLD--
---CAN'T DO THEM THINGS, AN' I MIGHT KILL THE SAP. HE'S WASHED UP--A HAS-BEEN!
HA! HA! WELL FOLKS IF YA WANTA GIT A PHA-ZEEK LIKE MINE--- HOW ABOUT A LITTLE JOG OVER THE MOUNTAINS?
NOT FOR ME.
IT'S BAD FOR MY COMPLEXION.
I'D LIKE T'MURDER THAT PALOOKA THE ☆☆☆!! MADE ME LOOK LIKE A SUCKER!!

WINNIE WINKLE — The Man Hunt Starts — BY BRANNER

WHILE WINNIE WORKS, WONDERS AND WORRIES---
I'VE GOT ALL YOUR SUPPLIES LOADED ABOARD AND I'VE ENGAGED PRACTICALLY A WHOLE VILLAGE FOR YOUR EXPEDITION, MR. MANLEY!
FINE, CAPTAIN! WHERE DO WE CONTACT THEM?
AT TCHI-TCHI VILLAGE, 35 MILES UP THE MANSO RIVER, I GOT A HALF-BREED COOK FOR YOU, TOO! KNOWS TH' NATIVES! GOOD INTERPRETER!
GOOD WORK, CHAPPIE! LET'S GO!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

— AN THAT AIN'T ALL I CAN DO, EITHER! YUH GOTTA HAVE PLENTY OF MUSCLE TO DO THIS ONE! WATCH ME TEAR YER TELEPHONE DIRECTORY IN HALF!
HEY! THAT'S MY OVERCOAT YER TEARIN' UP!

JANE ARDEN Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — How About the Others? — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

THIS WAS A POWDER DUMP—WE'VE BUILT SIX OF THESE TO CUT DOWN EXPLOSION HAZARDS—
AND THESE WERE GOVERNMENT MUNITIONS?
WHEN WERE THEY STORED HERE?
WE JUST SENT THE LAST LOAD IN YESTERDAY—TODAY IT EXPLODED!
NOT MUCH CHANCE OF FINDING A CLUE HERE—THE PLACE IS COMPLETELY WRECKED—
HOW ABOUT THE OTHER STORAGE DUMPS—ARE THEY FILLED YET?
WE'RE FILLING THE SECOND ONE RIGHT NOW—IT'S ABOUT EIGHT MILES FROM HERE!

SUPERMAN — It's Rude to Be Late — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

ROLAND HAS MADE ARRANGEMENTS WITH A RELUCTANT LIL DANVERS TO LURE THE MAN OF TOMORROW TO HIS DOOM. LOIS, WHO LEARNED THAT IT IS IN REALITY RALPH ROLAND WHO KILLED LIL'S FATHER, HAS BEEN CAPTURED BY THE EVIL SCHEMER.
SUPERMAN HAS JOURNEYED TO LIL DANVERS' HOME IN ANSWER TO HER REQUEST. BUT NOW, AT THE EMPTY HOUSE, HE FINDS....
A NOTE... FROM LIL... ASKING ME TO GO DIRECT TO RALPH ROLAND'S OFFICE!
ROLAND WAS THE INSTIGATOR OF "THE SCIENTISTS OF SUDDEN DEATH"! I WONDER WHAT THOSE TWO ARE UP TO NOW?
AS SUPERMAN STREAKS INTO ROLAND'S OFFICE, LIL AND ROLAND STEP INTO VIEW....
ALMOST TO THE SECOND I HAD ANTICIPATED!
SUPERMAN IS NEVER LATE TO AN APPOINTMENT!
(—OH... WHY DID HE COME?—)
THIS ISN'T IN THE NATURE OF A SOCIAL CALL!

That familiar voice you hear over WJSV every week-day at 12:15 p. m. on the "Big Sister" program isn't Don Ameche, despite the fact that he seems to get into everything you see and hear these days. But it's the nearest thing to it that you can get without its being Don himself. It's his brother, Jim Ameche, who's doing the announcing on the show. Jim is 26 and is doing announcing as a steady job after making a couple of movies and appearing as the lead in the radio serial, "Jack Armstrong."

There should be more people like Mrs. Charles McLaughlin on the air. The slightly irreverent lady was a participant on the "Vox Pop" show last Monday and won the prize of a telephone call from New York to Rudy Vallee in Hollywood. "Hiya, Rudy," she shouted. "How's yer adernolds?" We failed to get his answer.

An evidence of the British sense of humor: While rehearsing as the guest conductor of the "Ford Sunday Hour" a couple of weeks ago, Sir Thomas Beecham learned during a control room conference that the planned performance of Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was a bit too long for the program. In his most dignified manner, Sir Thomas walked sedately back to the podium and announced to the orchestra: "Gentlemen, Mr. Mendelssohn made a grave miscalculation in composing this work. He wrote it three-quarters of a minute too long."

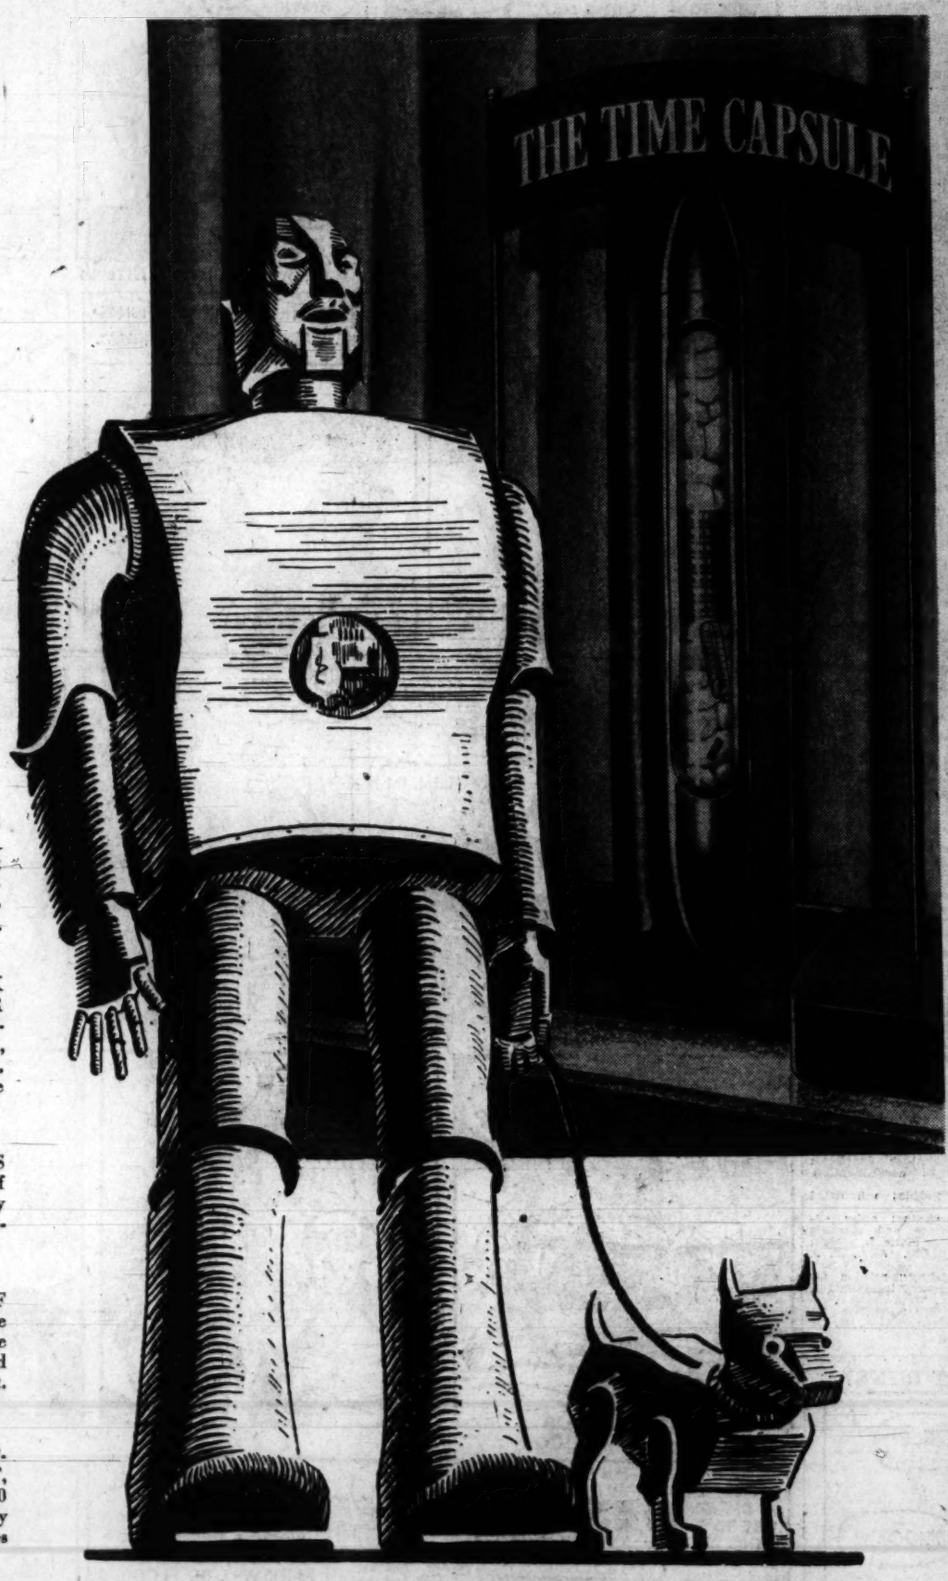
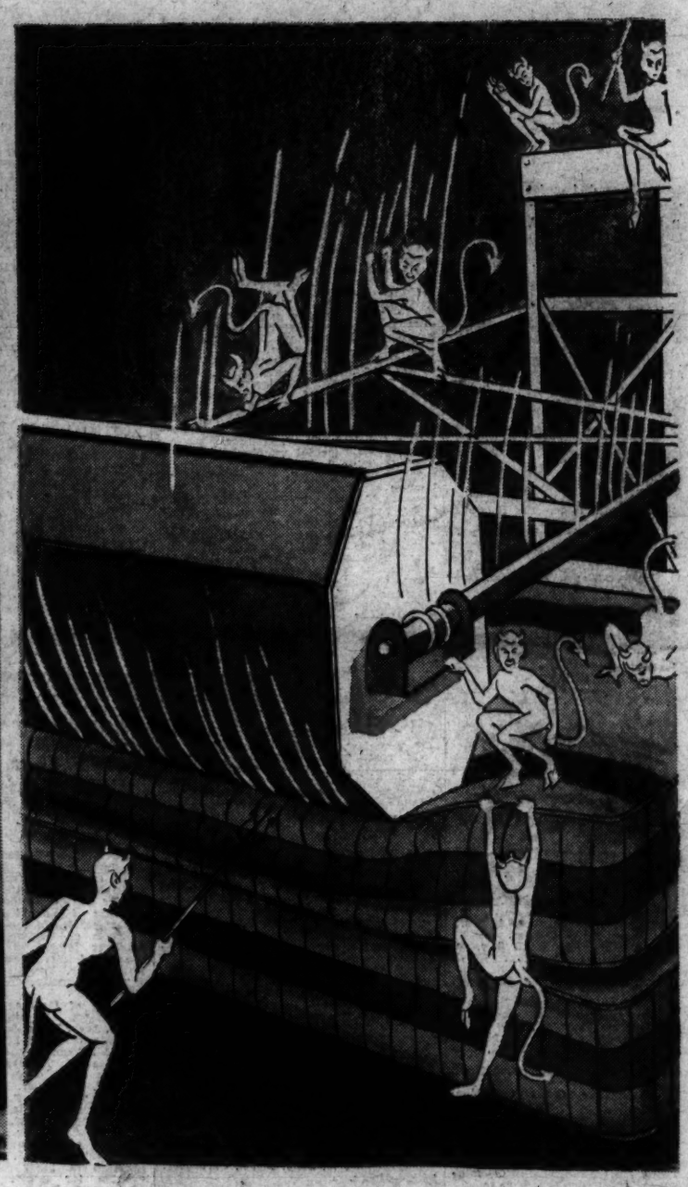
- COFFEE MAKERS OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY, interesting to everyone, for everybody loves a good cup of coffe.
- HOW MODERN PIGSKIN GLOVES ARE MADE. See the mounted pig . . and the cutting board with the glove patterns spread out ready for sewing.
- LEATHER AND TOOLING BEING DONE RIGHT BEFORE YOUR EYES. One of the most skilled craftsman in the country demonstrating the art of designing western belts.
- HOW LAMP BASES ARE MADE. You'd never dream at the start of the process of the decorative art finally achieved.
- EVOLUTION OF THE NURSE'S UNIFORM. An effective display of the first costumes worn and consequent change in styles. Displayed on doll mannequins.
- EARLY GLOVE SILK HOSIERY AND A PAIR WITH PANEL OF BELGIAN ROSE POINT LACE, Early "glove silks" . . . worn before the time of the full-fashioned stocking.
- QUEEN ELIZABETH'S GLOVES . . and those of Sir Walter Raleigh, Henry VIII, Charles II and Theodore Roosevelt.
- COTY PAGEANT OF PERFUMES . . 10 exquisite costumes designed by the celebrated Lester Gaba and on display in our E St. windows.
- REPLICA OF AN EGYPTIAN MANICURE SET, proved to be over 5000 years old. A commentary on the luxury loving wives of the Pharaohs.





- SEE THE EXACT REPLICA OF THE TIME CAPSULE, which is buried at the Westinghouse Site, New York World's Fair . . . buried in 1939 and not to be opened until the year 6939 A. D. See how perfectly the objects buried present a perfect cross-section of our life today . . . to those who come after us.
- SEE THE MIRACLE ROBOT AND HIS DOG. "Elektro" is seven feet tall and weighs 260 pounds. He talks, walks, counts on his fingers, blows up balloons and can distinguish between red and green. "Sparko," his dog, weighs 70 pounds and can sit up, bark and wag his tail.
- SEE THE TORTURE MACHINE . . . not a relic of the Inquisition, merely The Simmons Company's ingenious method of testing their famous products for "wear-and-tear."
